

Pitfield

A genealogy

Researched & compiled by Hugh Pitfield 2019

Introduction

In 1982 I thought it might be interesting to look into my family history. I started out knowing very little apart from the fact that my father, and his father, came from Southampton in Hampshire. I quickly found that there were far more references to the name Pitfield in the county of Dorset than anywhere else, and I established that my own Southampton Pitfields originated in Dorset.

Soon after starting on my genealogical quest I made contact with Michael Pitfield from Buckinghamshire who had already been doing some work on the Pitfield family. He had established that most of the Pitfield lines are descended from a Robert Pitfold of Allington in Dorset who had ten sons and who died in 1586. Michael and I worked together for some years on the Pitfield lines and found that we were both descendants of Sebastian Pitfold, the youngest of Robert's sons. Together we started to put more flesh on the bones of our pedigrees.

Michael Pitfield still does small pieces of Pitfield research and is heavily involved with the Dorset Online Parish Clerks (OPC) where he has published much material relating to the parish of Fordington (<http://www.opcdorset.org/>). I would like to acknowledge the help and support that I have received from Michael over many years.

I have continued to follow up Pitfold/Pitfield references wherever I can find them, with the aim of connecting them all together. These tables and notes show the results of my research. They are the sixth set of tables that I have produced on paper and incorporate revised interpretations of previous research, as well as new references uncovered in the last few years. I hope that by leaving copies with Record Offices and Genealogical Societies they will be available for many years to come for anybody who has an interest in the Pitfield family.

These tables do not show every Pitfields who has ever lived, as I have many references to individuals or small family groups found outside of Dorset and Devon, that I have been unable to connect with the main lines. I have shown the vast majority of those named Pitfield who appear in the 1911 census in England, Scotland and Wales, where I have been able to connect them to earlier generations. For those Pitfields who were married or born after 1911 I have relied on information passed onto to me by individual family members over the past few years. I have decided not to show any living Pitfield on these tables (including myself) for the sake of individual's privacy and possible exposure to identity fraud. If you had a grandparent whose name was Pitfield there is a very good chance that he/she will be shown on the tables that follow, allowing you to follow your line back through the generations.

The Dorset Family

The majority of the charts and notes in this volume relate to the Dorset family and show the known Pitfold/Pitfield descendants of Robert Pytfolde of Allington, Dorset (1516-1586). Details of the origins of this family are included in the Dorset Family Preface.

Petfield, Peatfield, Patefield, Pilfield, Pilfold etc

There are a number of family names, in various parts of Britain, that sound similar to Pitfield. Some of these names are well established and in some cases their use predates the name Pitfold, that later evolved into Pitfield. On occasion Pitfield might be written as Petfield or visa versa, which can cause problems when researching. In other instances these other family names have occasionally been written as Pitfield, with that spelling becoming the norm for a certain individual and for the generations that follow on. I have done very little research into the families of Petfield, Peatfield, Patefield etc but wherever the name changes into Pitfield I have researched the lines as much as possible, often working back to when the name change took place. Many of these family lines are connected to families that originated in Lancashire - see below and the Lancashire section of these tables. Other Pitfield families, whose names has evolved from other names, are shown elsewhere in these tables.

Unconnected Families

After the Dorset tables I have included a number of charts that show some family groups that I have been unable to connect with the main lines.

Lancashire Pitfields

The name Pitfield is also present in the county of Lancashire. These Pitfields are not connected with the Dorset family. Details of the origins of this family are included in the preface to this section.

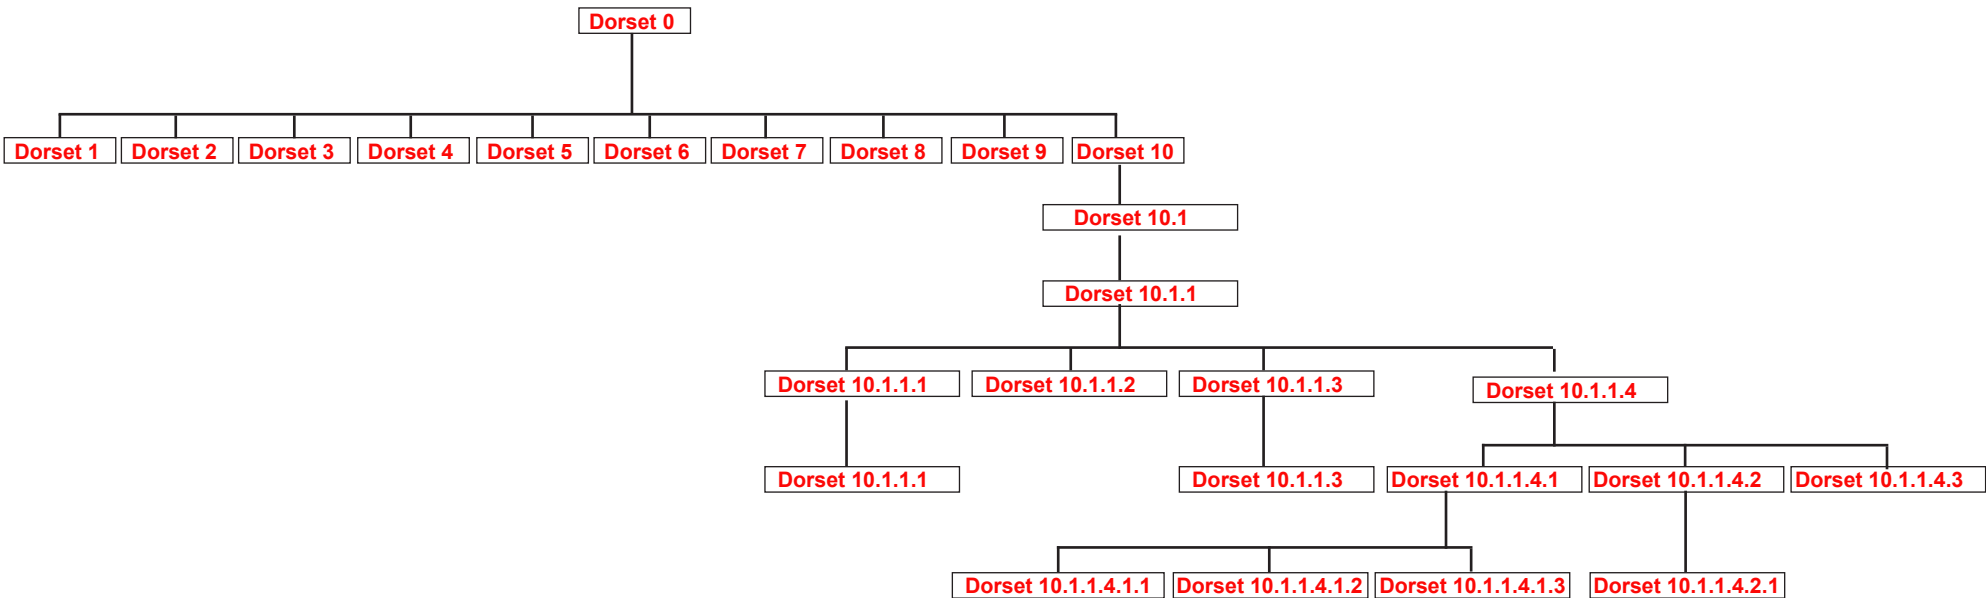

How to navigate the tables

The numbering on the Dorset family tables follows the seniority of Robert’s children – thus, for example, all tables that start with 8 show the descendants of Robert’s eighth son (Henry). Robert Pitfold himself, as the “founding father” of the Dorset family is shown on Table Dorset 0.

If you find a person of interest and wish to trace their Pitfield ancestors then the tables can be followed back by dropping the last digit in the number that used in a table to navigate to its predecessor. Thus, the person who heads Table Dorset 10.1.1.4.1.3 will also be shown on Table Dorset 10.1.1.4.1 together with the generation or generations who precede him. The graphic below shows how the tables that show the descendants of the 10th child of Robert Pitfold (1516-1586) - namely Sebastain Pitfold (1570-1613) - are interconnected.

There are a number of unconnected tables at the end of the Dorset section. These shown small family groups who I cannot link with the main lines.

Origins of the Pitfields

In Dorset and Devon the surname Pitfield evolved gradually from that of Pitfold/Pytfold/Pytefolde during the seventeenth century, with the Pitfold form staying in use until a later date in some parishes than in others, and with some individuals being referred to as Pitfield alias Pitfold. The earliest Pitfold traced in Dorset was John Pytfolde, who was taxed at Allington in 1525 and 1545. Despite lengthy research nothing else has been discovered regarding John and he appears to have no ancestors in Dorset, which seems to imply that he came from elsewhere in the country. After John Pytfolde of Allington there appears Robert Pitfolde (1516-1586), who was probably the son of John. A good deal is known about Robert and he is the “founding father” of a large group of Pitfield in Dorset and elsewhere and he is the ancestor of most of the individuals shown in this booklet.

An early family grouping has been found in the Berkshire parish of Brightwalton, who appeared to have used the surname PITFALL and PITFOLD. The Manor of Brightwalton was held by the Abbey of Battle in Sussex.

In the Manorial Court Rolls for Brightwalton, dated 1508, a William PITFALL is listed as a juror. The same document lists a Richard PYTVALE as a member of another jury and a Richard PYTFALL as a member of a third jury. Elsewhere in the same document it is noted that a Richard PYTFOLD was appointed to the office of deacon.

In a later Manorial Court Roll, that covers the years 1512-1529, a Richard Pitfall and a John Pitfall are listed in the same jury and a Richard Pitfall is listed in two further juries.

A document from 1522 (E 315/464 The National Archives) lists a John PITFOLD and a Richard PITFOLDE in the Manor of Brightwalton, as tenants of the Abbot of Battle and a John PITFOLD is listed as a servant.

To have three people with the same surname in the Manor of Brightwalton over the period of 1509-1529 implies that the family may have been present there for some time - to be members of a jury shows they must have been property owners and that Richard PYTFOLD must have been someone of some standing to be appointed to the position of deacon. We can only speculate how the three were related.

As can be seen in the chart opposite there are various other references to the names PITFALL and PITFOLD, in the county of Berkshire, some of which predate the earliest reference in Dorset and some that run concurrently. Of special interest is the fact a JOHN PYTFOLDE is listed at Brightwalton, Berkshire and a John PYTTEFFOLD is listed at Allington, Dorset - both in the year 1525.

I have been unable to prove any connection between the Berkshire family and the Dorset family but I think it is highly likely that John of Allington may have moved from Berkshire to Dorset. Robert Pitfold (1516-1586) of Allington named his eldest son Richard which could be significant as it was a popular name in the Berkshire family.

Still earlier references exist, in the records of Waverley Abbey, in the county of Surrey, which list a Phillip Pytfold who was ordained a subdeacon in 1459 and a priest in 1462. These references may be significant as there was a Pitfold Manor near Haslemere, Surrey, a few miles from Waverley Abbey, which was in existence as early as the tenth century. No connection between the manor of Pitfold and the emergence of Pitfold as a surname has been proved, but it is a possibility as many surnames came from place-names. A property called High Pitfold, near Haslemere, exists today.

Earlier still is William Pitfold of London, who was a member of the Guild of Merchant Taylors and a Freeman of the City of London. In 1398 he is listed in the Pardon Rolls as William Pitfold alias William Self. He died in 1422 and left a will that has not survived.

The earliest recorded instance of the name Pitfold that has been found is a John Pitfold, who was listed as a Man-at-Arms, under Captain Sir William de Windsor in the Standing Force in Ireland in 1374. Sir William was Viceroy of Ireland and the husband of Alice Perrers, mistress of Edward III.

A book on the origin of surnames, published during the 19th century, suggested that the Pitfield name came from one Ralph de Pettiville who came to England from the town of Pettiville, near Rouen in France, in 1198. However there seems to be no evidence to substantiate this .

It seems impossible to say with any certainty where the Pitfold name originated and how the family came to settle in Dorset and Devon, but I think it is likely that the ancestors of John Pytfolde of Allington came from central southern England where the earliest Pitfold references have been found.

Lancashire Pitfields

In the county of Lancashire the name Pitfield evolved from Paitfield and/or Patefield. These changes were generally quite modern, with the earliest instance of Pitfield appearing in the late 18th century. The original forms of Paitfield and Patefield, which have very early origins, have survived, alongside Pitfield, down to the present day. The Lancashire Pitfields have no connection to the Dorset family. I have shown the parts of the Lancashire families that “became” Pitfields in the Lancashire Pitfields section of this booklet.

During much of the 16th century the names PITFOLD and PITFALL appear at and around Brightwalton, Berkshire, and the names seem to have been interchangeable. However, the last reference to the name PITFOLD is the marriage of William PITFOLD in 1572. All references in the parish records of Brightwalton, apart from the marriage of Alice PITFOLDE in 1559, are for the name PITFALL.

The earliest reference found for the name PITFOLD in Dorset is of John PYTTFOLDE in 1525. It is possible the name was in use in Dorset at an earlier date. Robert PITFOLD (1516-1586) left a detailed will and the bulk of the PITFOLDS and PITFIELDS who appear in this booklet are descended from him.

SUBSEQUENT CENTURIES

By the 17th century the name PITFOLD had disappeared to be replaced by PITFALL. The family appear to move out from Brightwalton, with entries appearing in the records of nearby parishes. A number of wills are left by members of the PITFALL family in and around Brightwalton - many of them being yeoman farmers. The name continues to appear in parish records and probate records until the early 18th century and then it seems to disappear. In the 1841 census, and in subsequent censuses, not a single PITFALL is listed.

At the beginning of the 17th century descendants of Robert PITFOLD of Allington (1516-1586) were established in south west Dorset and south east Devon. As the century progressed the name changed from PITFOLD to PITFIELD with some members of the family being referred to as PITFIELD alias PITFOLD in some documents. The name PITFOLD eventually disappeared and the name PITFIELD became established.

The Dorset Family - Preface

As outlined in the Introduction the majority of the charts and notes in this volume relate to the Dorset family. The charts show all of the known Pitfold/Pitfield descendants of Robert Pitfold (1516-1586) who lived in the parish of Allington, Dorset.

Robert Pitfold (1516-1586) of Allington, Dorset, had ten sons. Seven of these sons had children of their own. Most of the early family members remained in the south western corner of Dorset or in the south eastern corner of Devon. Later generations dispersed elsewhere in the country or settled in America, Canada, Australia and elsewhere. The tables follow a numbering system based on the ten children of Robert. Therefore, for example, any table that starts Dorset 8, shows part of the family descended from Robert's eighth son i.e. Henry Pitfold (-1637).

It is fortunate that parish records for Allington and surrounding parishes exist from the late 16th century and contain many Pitfold/Pitfield entries. However, some registers have gaps in them where records were not kept or pages have been destroyed by decay. Although the number of Pitfields were not numerous they tended to use a small number of christian names, so it was not uncommon for several cousins, bearing the same first name, to be living in the same or neighbouring parishes. It was also not unknown for two brothers to have the same Christian name. Records of marriages have been particularly difficult to find, meaning the first name of Pitfield wives are often known but their surname and date of marriage is unknown

There are a number of Pitfold/Pitfield wills that have survived - these, together with legal records, have helped me establish the relationships of various family groups. I have shown in the tables and notes where there is any uncertainty about the relationship of any one Pitfield to others, and in some places I have shown more than one possible parentage for an individual.

Unfortunately all wills, that were proved in various courts in the county of Devon, were destroyed by enemy action during World War II. A number of these were made by members of the Pitfold/Pitfield family.

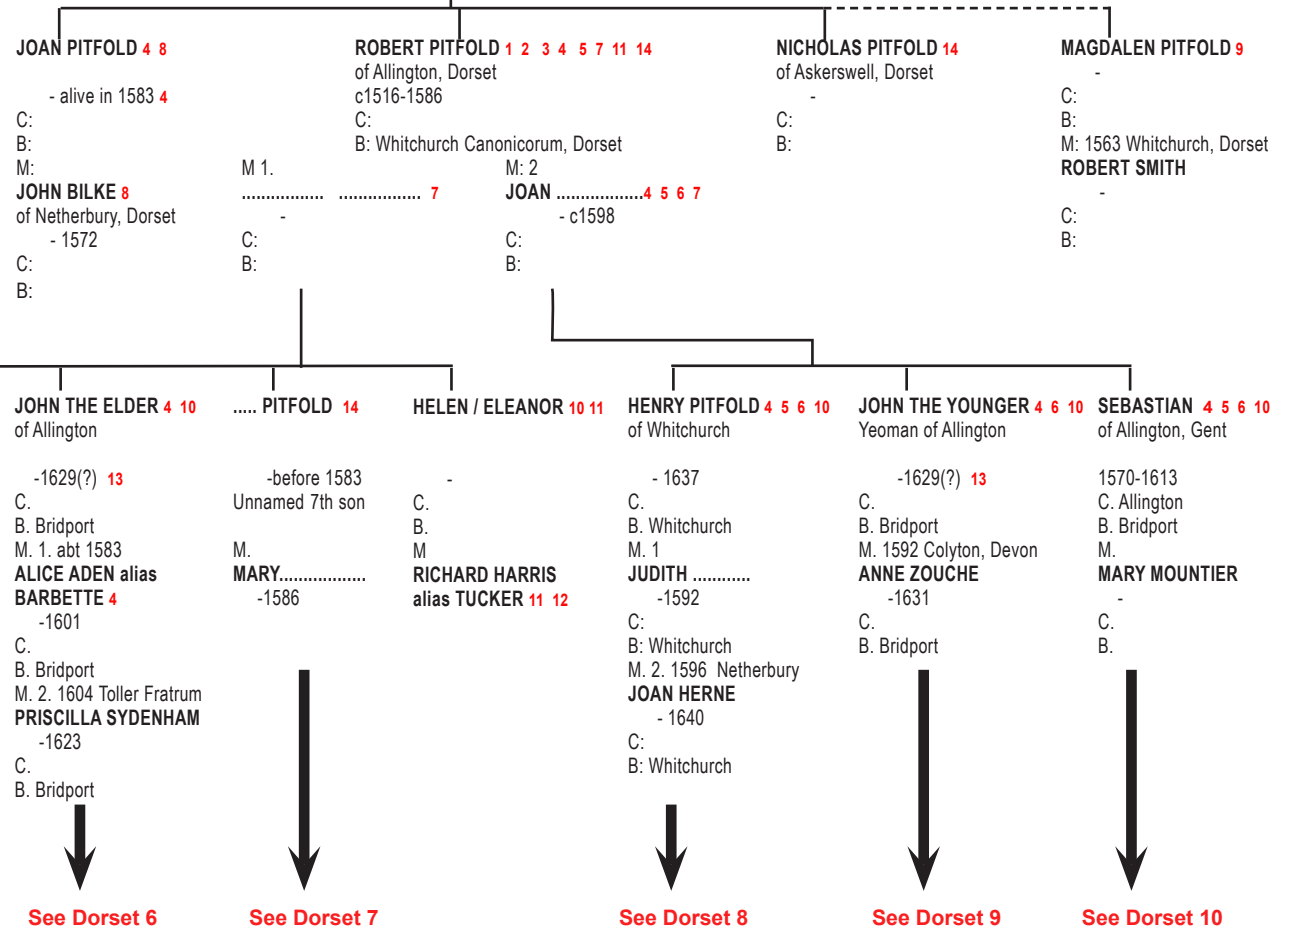

- 1 John Pytefolde is listed in the tax returns of the parish of Allington, Dorset for the years 1525 and 1545. He is shown in this pedigree as the father of Robert Pitfolde (c1516-1586) but there is no definite proof of this.
- 2 In 1545 Robert Pitfold appears in the tax returns for the parish of Stoke Abbott. In 1552 he had a grant from the Borough of Bridport for a piece of land in Allington, whilst in the same year he is listed as one of the church wardens at Allington. He appears in a tax return at Allington in 1559.
- 3 In a deposition made in 1580 Robert Pitfold stated he was aged 64 years (C 24/144 National Archives)
- 4 Robert left a will dated 1583 and proved 1586
 ...Richard eldest son... ...George second son... ...Robert third son... ...Andrew fourth son... ...Thomas fifth son...
 ...John the Elder sixth son... ...Henry eighth son... ...John the Younger ninth son...
 ...Bastian tenth son...
 ...deed 28th November 20 Elizabeth (1578) which was granted to John Pitfold the Older my sixth son and to Alice Adeyne alias Barbette and to the heirs male of their two bodies...
 ...Joane my wife... ...to grandchildren (no names given)... ...Joan Bilke my sister...
 Robert was an extensive land owner and his will names land in the parishes of Allington, Whitchurch Canonorum, Long Bredy, Marshwood, Symondsbury, Walditch, Shipton Gorge and Powerstock. He also gives details of those he bought the lands from, the names of tenants who occupied them, and how they were to be divided amongst his children. Robert died in 1586 and was buried at Whitchurch Canonorum. In 1589 an Inquisition Post Mortem was held to enquire where Robert's lands were held. This gave similar information as was contained in Robert's will.
- 5 Case from Court of Requests 1595 states that Henry and Sebastian were executors of the will of Joan Pitfold their like deceased mother, wife and executrix of Robert Pitfold, their like deceased father (will of Joan has not survived).
- 6 In a case of 1616 it was stated that Joan Pitfold, mother of John Pitfold, Henry Pitfold and Sebastian Pitfold, deceased had been dead about 18 years.
- 7 Due to the references at 5 and 6 above I think it is likely that Joan was only the mother of Robert's youngest children and therefore Robert had been married previously.

- 14 A Nicholas Pytfold is listed in a tax return of 1559 in the tything of Askerswell. Robert Pytfold was listed at Allington in the same tax return, so it seems highly likely that Nicholas was Robert's brother. It is also likely that Robert's 7th son was also called Nicholas (no proof of this) as at least two of Robert's children named one of their sons Nicholas.
 The 1559 tax return is the only reference I have to Nicholas so it is not known if he married and had children.

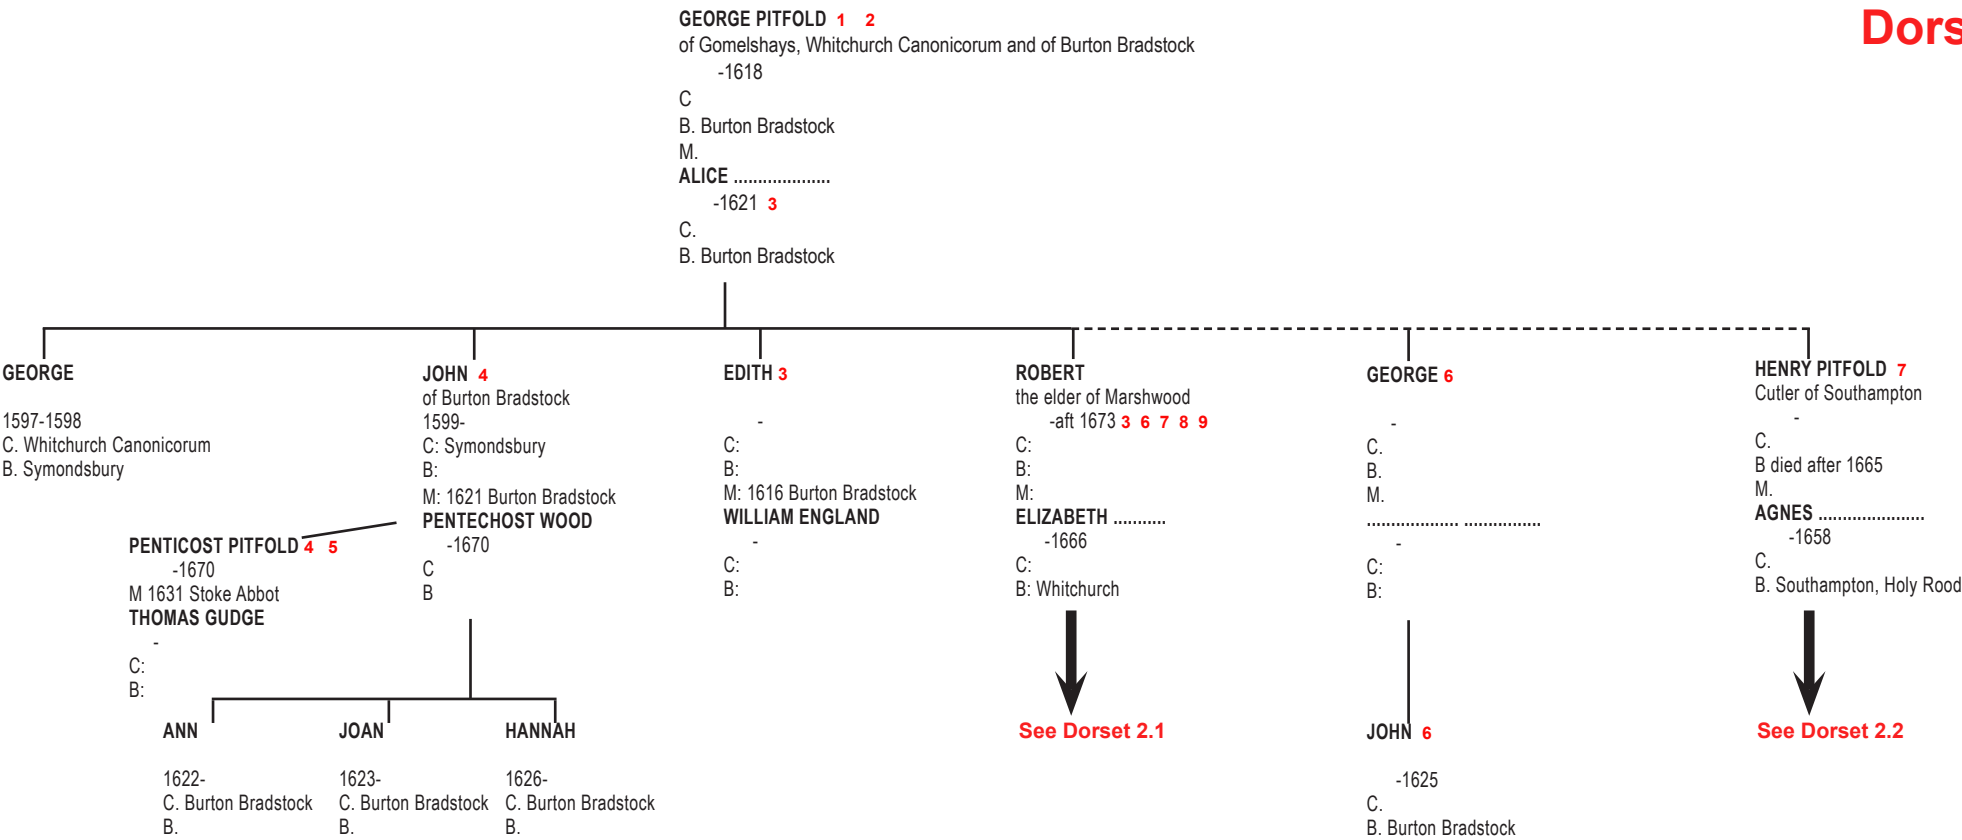

- 8 John Bilke of Netherbury, Dorset left a will dated 1572 in which he named his wife Joan Bilke.
- 9 Magdalen Pitfold married 1563 - nothing else known. I have shown her as a possible sister to Robert of Allington, though it is possible she was Robert's daughter or was related in some other way.
- 10 Andrew Pitfolde left a will in 1586 in which he named his eight brothers and his sister Eleanor Pitfolde (see Table Dorset 4 for more details).

- 11 Case from Court of Requests 1595 relates to a breach of a marriage contract between Richard Tucker, son of Walter Tucker and Eleanor Pitfold, daughter of Robert Pitfold.
- 12 Will, made 1603, of Walter Harris alias Tucker of Axminster - names son Richard Harris alias Tucker.
- 13 The burial 1629 at Bridport of "John Pitfold of Allington" could refer to John The Elder or John The Younger.

² George Pytfolde is listed in the Tudor Muster Roll of 1569 at Allington - implies a date of birth around 1550-1555.

⁵ Pentichost Gudge of Broadway left a will proved at Taunton in 1670 (this will has not survived).

GOMELSHAY, WHITCHURCH CANONICORUM

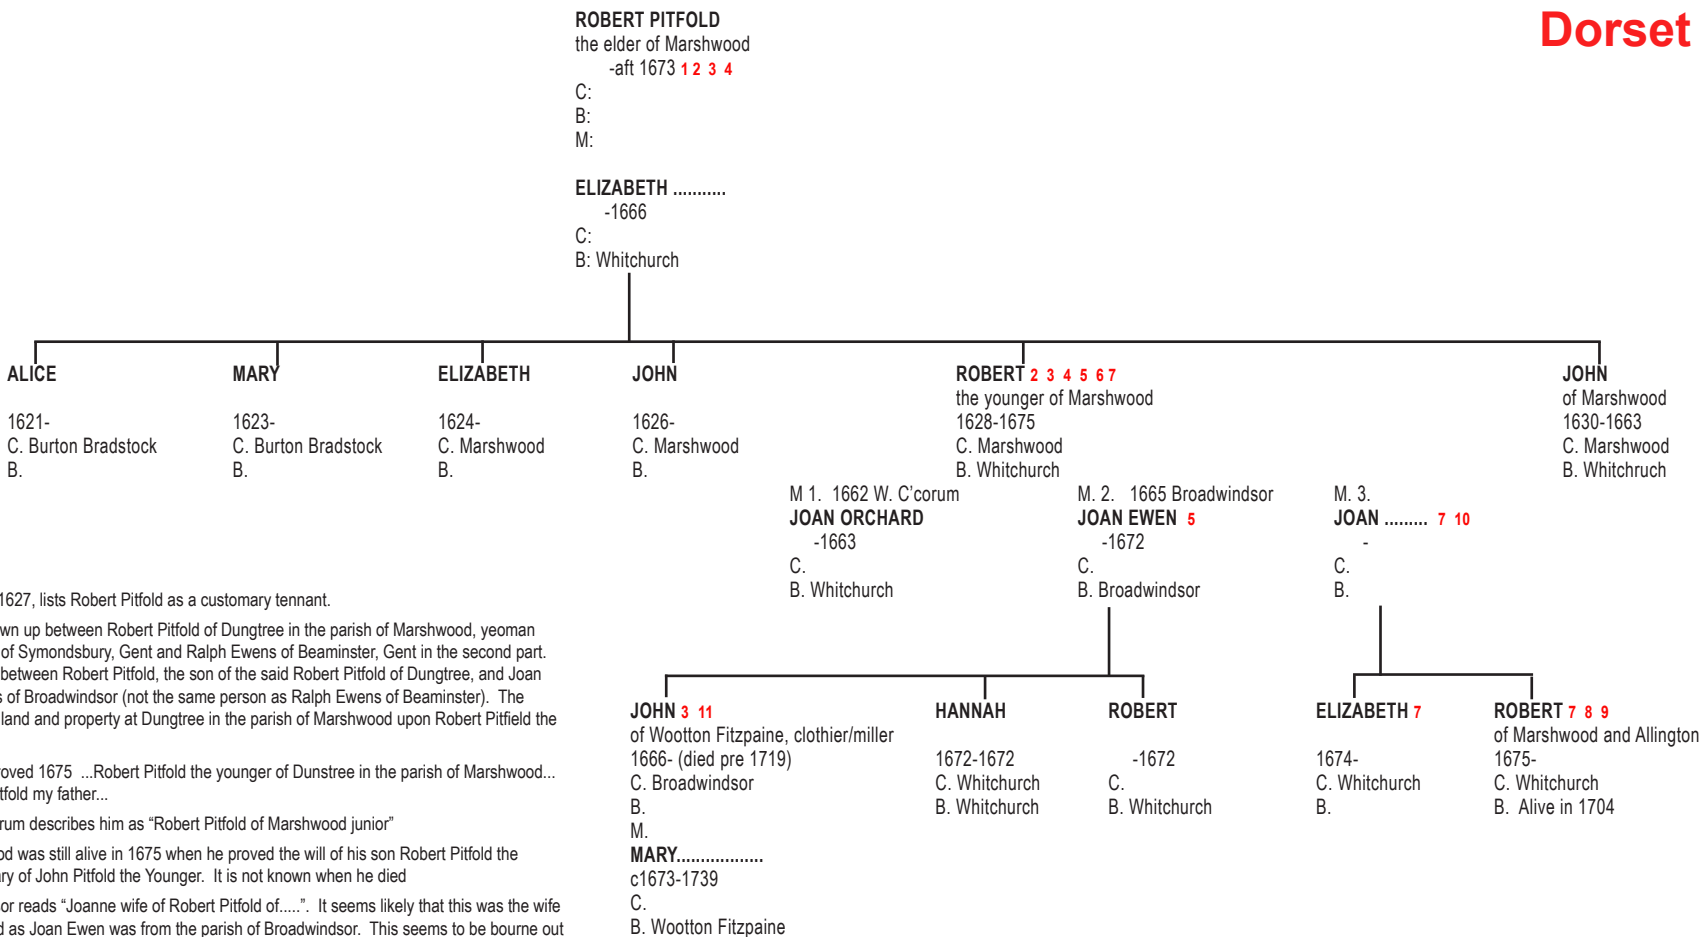

Gomelshay was occupied by Richard Pitfold (-1597), the eldest son of Robert Pitfold, when he made his will. He left his property to his widow (see Table Dorset 1).

Soon after Richard's death his brother George (-1618) was named in a document as ...George Pytfolde of Gomelshays in the said county of Dorset, yeoman... (C3/270/1 - National Archives), so it is likely that George purchased the property from Richard's widow, or it is possible he inherited it under the terms of the will of Robert Pitfold (made 1583) in which any bequests made to Richard were to pass to George if Richard should die without male heirs.

George died in 1618 without leaving a will.

The next mention of Gomelshay is in a document of 1654- C 7/215/56 – National Archives (see note 2 on Table Dorset 8.1) which implies Gomelshay was owned by Henry Pitfold from at least circa 1639. This would be the 2nd Henry Pitfold of Whitchurch, shown on Table Dorset 8. Joan Pitfold, widow of the 2nd Henry Pitfold, describes herself as of Gomelshays in her will made 1652. It seems likely that the 1st Henry Pitfold of Whitchurch Canonorum purchased Gomelshays from the heirs of George Pitfold. (For further details of the Henry Pitfolds/Pitfields of Whitchurch Canonorum see Table Dorset 8).

There is still a GUMMERSHAY FARM in Whitchurch Canonorum today.

- 1 Survey of the manor of Marshwood,1627, lists Robert Pitfold as a customary tennant.
- 2 In 1665 a marriage contract was drawn up between Robert Pitfold of Dungtree in the parish of Marshwood, yeoman in the first part and Joseph Channing of Symondsbury, Gent and Ralph Ewens of Beaminster, Gent in the second part. This was for the marriage to be had between Robert Pitfold, the son of the said Robert Pitfold of Dungtree, and Joan Ewens the daughter of Ralph Ewens of Broadwindsor (not the same person as Ralph Ewens of Beaminster). The marriage contract conferred various land and property at Dungtree in the parish of Marshwood upon Robert Pitfield the son.
- 3 Robert Pitfold made a will in 1673 proved 1675 ...Robert Pitfold the younger of Dunstree in the parish of Marshwood... ...my son John Pitfold... ...Robert Pitfold my father...
Burial entry at Whitchurch Canoniconum describes him as "Robert Pitfold of Marshwood junior"
- 4 Robert Pitfold the Elder of Marshwood was still alive in 1675 when he proved the will of his son Robert Pitfold the Younger and was the main beneficiary of John Pitfold the Younger. It is not known when he died
- 5 The 1672 burial entry at Broadwindsor reads "Joanne wife of Robert Pitfold of.....". It seems likely that this was the wife of Robert the Younger of Marshwood as Joan Ewen was from the parish of Broadwindsor. This seems to be bourne out by the fact that Robert did not name a wife in his will made 1673.
- 6 John Turner of Whitchurch Canoniconum, made a will in 1673 in which he made "my trusty and well beloved friend Robert Pitfould Jn of Marshwood in the said county of Dorset, yeoman" one of the overseers of his will.
- 7 The records show the christening in 1674 of "Elizabeth daughter of Robert and Joan Pitfold" and in 1675 of "Robert son of Robert Pitfold junior of Marshwood". Both these christenings come after Robert made his will in 1673 but before his death in 1675, so it would seem that Robert married for a third time, after making his will, to another Joan.
- 8 In 1704 an indenture was drawn up "between Robert Pitfold alias Pitfeild late of Dungtree alias Dungston in the parish of Marshwood now of Allington alias Athlington in the county of Dorset and Thomas Burt of Bridport in the County of Dorset maltser on the one part and Daniel Taylor of Bridport...Maltster of the other part..." The indenture describes all of the lands that were conveyed to Robert Pitfold the younger in 1665. It would appear that the lands had passed to Robert Pitfold the Younger's son - Robert Pitfield - and that in 1704 Thomas Burt also had an interest in the lands. Robert Pitfield and Thomas Burt conveyed the lands to Daniel Taylor.
- 9 The indenture of 1704 also shows that Robert Pitfield of Marshwood moved from the parish of Marshwood and settled in the parish of Allington. What became of him after this date is unknown.
- 10 The burial of a Joan Pitfield of Allington at Bridport in 1715 could have been the mother of Robert Pitfield (1675-)
- 11 John Pitfield, the eldest son of Robert Pitfold the Younger of Marshwood, settled in the parish of Wootton Fitzpaine, where he was a miller.

See Dorset 2.1.1

John Pitfold/Pitfield was born in 1666 and christened at Broadwindsor. He married Mary and three children of the couple were christened at Burstock. The family then settled in the parish of Wootton Fitzpaine. In 1697 John purchased a 99 year lease, from Henry Henley, the owner of Champernhayes Manor which was within the parish of Wootton Fitzpaine. The lease was for two mills, a mill house plus various pieces of land totalling 14 acres. At the time of taking out the lease John's occupation was given as clothier. The lease was for three lives - namely John himself, his wife Mary and his son John. After settling at Wootton Fitzpaine the couple had a further three children christened in the parish.

Details of John Pitfield's lease appear at various times in the records of Champernhayes Manor and an entry in 1708 implies that John intends that his son Roger (1702-1775) will take over the lease, rather than his son John.

There are no records of Champernhayes Manor between 1709 and 1719, but in 1719 the lease was held by John Bampfield, implying that John was deceased by then and his widow had sold the remainder of the lease to Bampfield. No burial entry has been found for John Pitfold.

Mary Pitfield was christened at Wootton Fitzpaine in 1708 "ye daughter of John and Joan Pitfield" I think it is likely that this is an incorrect entry as I have no evidence that John married twice.

Robert Pitfield, the second son of John and Mary, married Grace Eyres at Sturminster Newton in 1744. He would have been aged about 48 at the time so it is possible that he was married previously, although I have found no evidence for this. It is not known where he lived before his marriage.

Grace Eyres had been born Grace Bird and was christened at Sturminster Newton in 1708. She was part of a long established family within the parish. She married John Eyres in 1736 at Blandford St. Mary. John Eyres died in 1743 and Grace remarried to Robert Pitfield in the following year.

She did not name any children
Amongst those named was Martha Pitfield - no relationship was given but it seems likely the Martha named was the one born 1776, daughter of Robert Pitfield (c1743-1820) of Wootton Fitzpaine - see Table Dorset 2.1.1.3

The land tax records for Sturminster Newton lists from 1780 (earliest record that survives) until 1786 Grace Pitfield as a tenant of "The Malt House", owned by Thomas Bird Junior.

ELIZABETH PITFIELD
An Elizabeth Pitfield is listed in the Land Tax Records of Sturminster Newton in 1793 as being the occupier, along with a John Sweet, of the Mill at Sturminster Newton. The owner of the mill is given as Mrs Hannah Bird. Hannah Bird would have been the widow of the Rev. John Bird, a nephew of Grace Bird/Eyers/Pitfield
A Mrs Elizabeth Pitfield is also listed as the proprietor of some land in Child Okeford in 1780 - see Table 2.1.1.1 for details of John Pitfield of Child Okeford
I do not know who this Elizabeth Pitfield is and I have not found a burial record for her at Sturminster Newton or elsewhere. It is possible she was the daughter or daughter-in-law of John Pitfield of Child Okeford (see Table 2.1.1.1).
- 11

A Daniel Pitfield was buried in the Somerset parish of Hardington Mandeville in 1786. Nothing further is known concerning Daniel despite extensive research in records of parishes close to Hardington Mandeville. I think it is likely that he is another child of John and Mary of Wootton Fitzpaine, as Henry of Whitchurch Canonicorum (1697-1779) named a son Daniel and John of Wootton Fitzpaine and Colyton (1695-1746) had a grandson christened Daniel.
- 12

A Daniel Pitfield married at the Fleet, London in 1737 to Jane Owen and the couple had three children christened at Westminster. One child christened John and another Mary indicate that he could have been the son of John and Mary of Wootton Fitzpaine. A Jane Pitfield, buried at Hackney, St. John in 1783 could have been Jane Owen and it is possible that Daniel settled in Hardington Mandeville after he became a widower - this is speculation
- 13

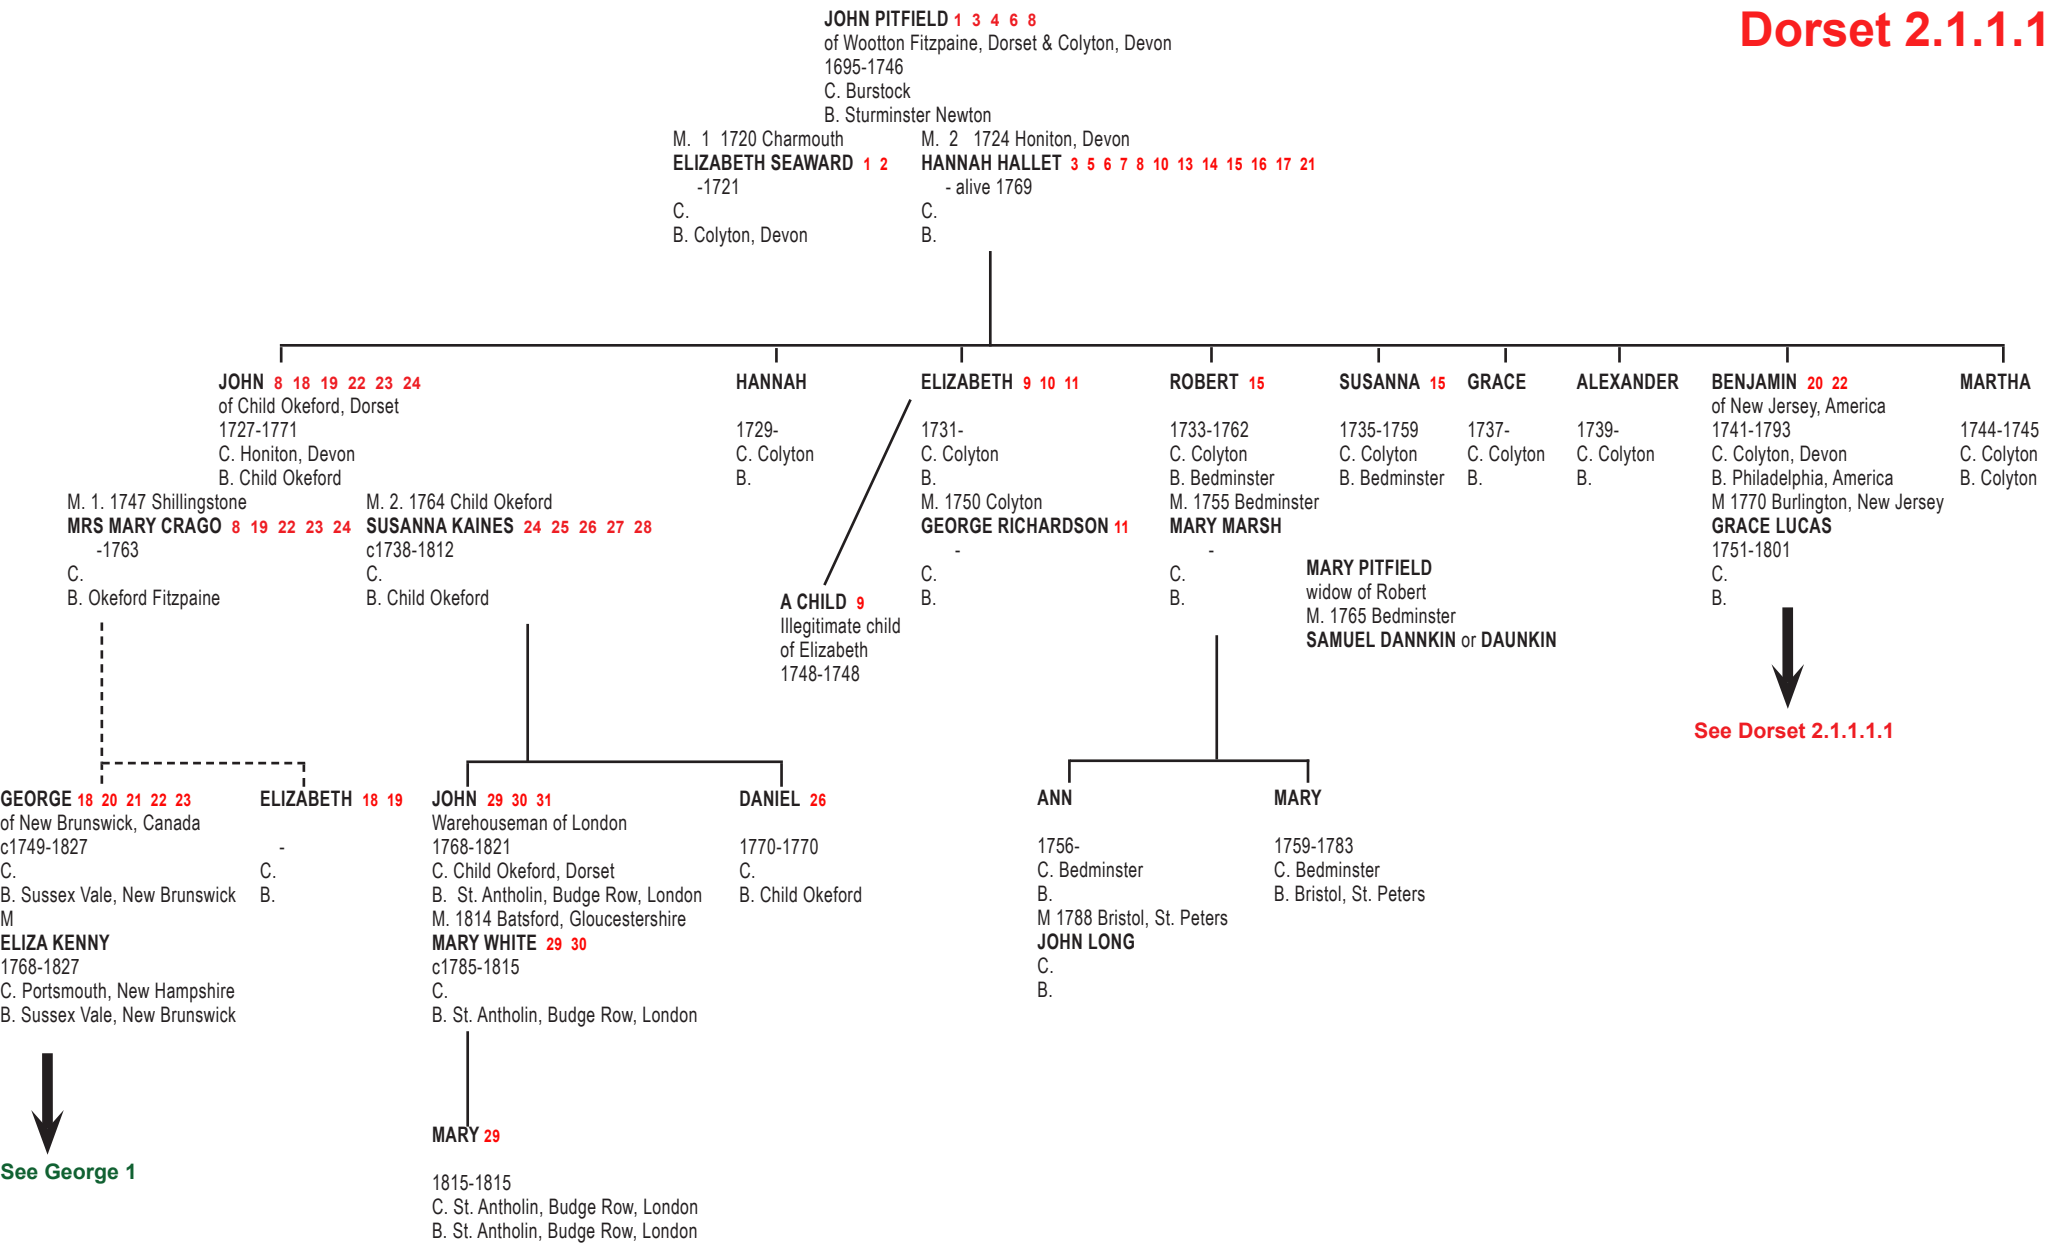

Daniel was a name used in the Southampton group of Pitfields shown on Table 2.2 who might be closely connected to the group on this table (see notes on Table 2.2)
- 14

A John Pitfield (-1780), who settled in the parish of Sancreed in Cornwall, is shown on Unconnected 3. It is possible that John Pitfield of Sancreed was the John Pitfield, son of Daniel and Jane Pitfield shown here - I have no firm evidence for this except a birth date of 1739 fits well with the marriage date of 1762 of John Pitfield of Sancreed and John of Sancreed had a daughter named Jane.

- 15

Owen Pitfield is listed in two musters of HMS Royal Sovereign in 1759 and 1760 taken at Spithead (Portsmouth, Hampshire). He is listed as dying in the Royal Navy Hospital - Haslar - in Gosport, Hampshire on 5th June 1761, when he is listed as being a member of the crew of HMS Royal Sovereign.

Dorset 2.1.1.1

Notes for Table 2.1.1.1

- 1 John Pitfield (1695-1746) was the eldest son of John Pitfield (1666-) and Mary (c1673-1739) of Wootton Fitzpaine. In 1720 he married at Charmouth, Dorset. The marriage entry describes him as "of Wootton Fitzpaine" and his bride as "Elizabeth Seaward of Axmouth". Axmouth is in the county of Devon. The couple settled in the Devon parish of Colyton, where the Seaward family were established - several wills were made in the mid 18th century by members of the Seaward family "of Colyton" - unfortunately none have survived. It seems likely that John gained some property and land as a result of the marriage.
- 2 Elizabeth Pitfield died a year after the marriage and was buried at Colyton.
- 3 John remarried in 1724 at Honiton to Hannah Hallett and the couple had nine children christened.
- 4 References to John Pitfield at Colyton, apart from the parish record entries, are scarce. Some parish record entries refer to him as "Mr" indicating he was a property owner and of some standing in the parish.
- 5 The family had fallen on hard times by 1746 when the Pitfield household failed to pay the church rates. In 1747 "Mrs Hannah Pitfield" received several payments from the parish's overseers of the poor. The use of the title "Mrs" indicates she was a person of some standing, despite receiving poor relief.
- 6 Hannah was a widow by 1746, but no burial of John Pitfield is recorded at Colyton. However a John Pitfield was buried in the Dorset parish of Sturminster Newton in 1746 - presumably he had died whilst visiting his brother Robert Pitfield of Sturminster Newton (1696-1763) - see Table 2.1.1.
- 7 In November 1747 Hannah had her payments drastically cut when she refused to have her children bound out as apprentices (It was common for poor children to be apprenticed to reduce the financial burden on the parish).
- 8 In 1747 John and Hannah's eldest son John had settled in Dorset and married Mrs Mary Crago at Shillingstone, Dorset. The marriage entry refers to him as "Mr". This, together the use of "Mrs" for his bride indicate he was well off, which seems be in contrast to his mother accepting parish relief. The name Crago was rare in Dorset, although the marriage entry states Mrs Mary Crago was "of Sturminster Newton". The name was more common in Devon (including Colyton) and Cornwall. I have been unable to trace the origins of Mrs Mary Crago.
- 9 In 1748 payments were made for the illegitimate child of Elizabeth Pitfield and for the child's funeral - no christening or burial for the child is recorded in the parish records.
- 10 In March 1750 Hannah Pitfield was paid poor relief for 3 months in arrears "being gone to Bristol with part of her family". It could be that Hannah was visiting Bristol to arrange a marriage for her daughter Elizabeth.
- 11 In September 1750 Elizabeth Pitfield married George Richardson. Although the marriage took place at Colyton it seems likely that George Richardson was from Bristol, where there were several established families of the name. Richardson as a surname was not prevalent in east Devon at this time. No trace of Elizabeth and George Richardson have been found in the records of Devon. Several references appear in the Bristol records that could possibly refer to George and Elizabeth Richardson.
- 13 In January 1753 a newspaper report refers to "Mrs Hannah Pitfield, who travels with lace" being attacked between Wells and Bath and having her lace and money stolen. She is described as a "Widow with nine Children". Hannah did have nine children christened but by 1753 one was married, another deceased and several were young adults.
- 14 It would seem that Hannah Pitfield was something of a problem to the parish because in April 1753 a payment was made to the Overseer's of the Poor for expenses to travel to the home of Sir John Prideaux for a meeting "abt ye widow Pitfield". Sir John Prideaux was the sixth Baronet of Netherton, Devon. (1695-1766)
- 15 Also in April 1753 Hannah was made a payment "in extremity" to buy a pair of shoes to travel to Bristol. It could be that she travelled with some of her children - her son Robert married at Bedminster, Bristol in 1755 and Hannah's daughter Susanna was buried at Bedminster in 1759.
- 16 Hannah continued to receive payments from the parish up until at least 1769. Poor relief records for Colyton do not survive after 1769.
- 17 Despite Hannah relying on parish relief it is known that her sons were literate and well educated. It is likely that they received financial support from other members of the Pitfield family. It seems that Hannah Pitfield could have been an 18th century "benefit fraudster".
- 18 Little is known about John Pitfield (1727-1771) of Child Okeford except for the entries in the parish records. As seen in note 8 he appears to have been a "Gentleman" at the time of his first marriage. No children from this marriage have been traced, although it is possible the Mrs Elizabeth Pitfield at Note 19 could have been a daughter or daughter-in-law of the couple. I also believe that George Pitfield (1749-1827) was the son of John Pitfield of Child Okeford. See Notes 21-23 below.

- 19 An Elizabeth Pitfield is listed in the Land Tax Records of Sturminster Newton in 1793 as being the occupier, along with a John Sweet, of the Mill at Sturminster Newton. The owner of the mill is given as Mrs Hannah Bird. Hannah Bird would have been the widow of the Rev. John Bird, a nephew of Grace Bird/Eyers/Pitfield - see Table 2.1.1. A Mrs Elizabeth Pitfield is also listed as the proprietor of some land in Child Okeford in 1780. I do not know who this Elizabeth Pitfield is and have not found a burial record for her at Sturminster Newton or elsewhere. It is possible she was a daughter or daughter-in-law of John of Child Okeford (1727-1771).

George Pitfield of New York, America and New Brunswick (c1749-1827)

- 20 Family tradition in North America has it that George Pitfield (c1749-1827) was the brother of Benjamin Pitfield (1741-1793) of New Jersey.
- 21 George Pitfield's age at the time of his death in 1827 was given as 78, giving a date of birth of circa 1749. Hannah Pitfield had been a widow since 1746 so it seems unlikely that she was the mother of George, although she could have been if George's date at death was incorrect and he was born a few years earlier.
- 22 In 1885 George William Brown, of Philadelphia, America, wrote a book entitled "Historical Genealogy relating to a Branch of the Brown Family". In the volume Brown states that his wife's grandfather, Benjamin Pitfield (1741-1793) came to America from England but nothing was known of Benjamin's origins in England. My research has now established Benjamin's origins. Brown says in his book that Benjamin came to America at the invitation of an uncle who was in possession of a tract of land lying upon Timber Creek, in the state of New Jersey. I think this part of Brown's narrative has been distorted and that in fact it was George Pitfield who was invited to America by his uncle Benjamin Pitfield - who was indeed settled at Timber Creek, New Jersey. If George Pitfield (c1749-1827) was the nephew of Benjamin then he must have been the son of John Pitfield of Child Okeford (1727-1771). A birth of George Pitfield around 1749 would fit with the marriage of John Pitfield to Mary Crago in 1747. There would have been only eight years difference in the ages of the uncle and nephew.
- 23 Unfortunately, as stated in Note 18 above, very few references to John Pitfield (1727-1771) and Mary Crago exist and no christening of any children have been found. But note 19 above points to an Elizabeth Pitfield possibly being a daughter or daughter-in-law to the couple. It is possible that the couple had their children christened in a nonconformist church or chapel and that the records have not survived.
- 24 Following the death of his first wife in 1763 John Pitfield (1727-1771) remarried in 1764 to Susannah Kaines.
- 25 Susannah Kaines was the daughter of William Kaines of Child Okeford, who left a will in 1764. William left large sums of money to his three daughters Elizabeth, Susannah and Jane with the remainder of his estate going to his son Henry Kaines.
- 26 John Pitfield (1727-1771) and Susannah Kaines had two children, before John died and was buried at Child Okeford.
- 27 The tax returns list Mrs Pitfield or Susannah Pitfield as the proprietor of property in Child Okeford from 1780. From 1813 until 1831 the proprietor is names as "Late Susannah Pitfield". Also in the parish is property owned by a Mr Kaines.
- 28 Elizabeth Kaines left a will made in 1776
...Elizabeth otherwisw Betty Kaines of Child Okeford, Dorset, spinster....
...two niecns Elizabeth and Lucy Kaines and to my nephew William Yeatman...
...to my sister Susannah Pitfield...
Elizabeth left the bulk of her estate to Susannah Pitfield and made her executor.
- 29 John Pitfield (1768-1821) was the only surviving son of John Pitfield (1727-1771) and Susannah Kaines and settled in London where he was a warehouseman. He had a short lived marriage - his wife and daughter dying at the time of the daughter's birth.
- 30 Henry Kaines, farmer of Child Okeford, and brother of Susannah Kaines/Pitfield, kept a journal throughout his life. In the journal he describes travelling to London on business and staying with his "cousin" John Pitfield at Watling Street. He also says John Pitfield and his wife Mary visited him in Dorset in 1814 and notes the death of Mary Pitfield in 1815.
- 31 John Pitfield (1768-1821) wrote a letter from Bridport in 1789 and another from London in 1790 to his "Uncle Benjamin Pitfield" in New Jersey. These letters are thought to still be in the possession of the Pitfield family in North America. They constitute the best evidence we have that the Benjamin Pitfield who appeared in America was the same Benjamin Pitfield, christened at Colyton in 1741. As well as being the nephew of Benjamin Pitfield of America, John would have been the half-brother of George Pifield of Canada.

Other researchers have put forward another theory concerning George Pitfield of New York and New Brunswick. They think that he was originally name Pettfield and was the son of George Pettfield and Isabel Jefferson of Hessele in Yorkshire.

Because this theory has some merits and casts doubt on George Pitfield's connection to the Dorset Pitfield family I have chosen to show George Pitfield (c1749-1827), and his descendants, on a sperate set of tables, later in this volume - starting with George 1.

The two theories concerning the origins of George are discussed in more detail on table George 1.

Notes for Dorset 2.1.1.1.1 - the family of Benjamin Pitfield of America (1741-1793)

The earliest reference I have to Benjamin Pitfield, in North America, is his marriage in 1770 to Grace Lucas in Burlington, New Jersey. The Lucas family were Quakers and the marriage took place in the Quaker Meeting House. Benjamin Pitfield was described as "not of the faith" showing that he was not a Quaker.

	‘A pretty story is told of Benjamin Pitfield and Grace Lucas. Benjamin was an officer in His Majesty George the Third’s army during the Revolutionary War, and while stationed in the suburbs of Philadelphia, he used to see Grace ride in from the country on a pillion behind her father. The gay young officer lost his heart to the demure little Quaker maiden, but his suit was frowned upon by the stern old father, who did not wish so worldly a son-in-law. Whereupon an elopement was planned and carried out, with the aid of a rope ladder from Grace’s window and a fleet steed, the runaway couple securing the aid of a dominie before they were caught by father Lucas, who then had nothing to do but to give them his blessing, which he did, adding the household silver, which is still in the family. It is said that, of the sons, all followed in their mother’s footsteps, and became strict Friends, while the daughters preferred the Church of England, to which their father belonged.’
	In "Historical Genealogy Relating to a branch of the Brown family" by George Williams Brown (1885) Brown says "[Benjamin] married Grace Lucas after an opposed and somewhat romantic courtship", but gives no further details.
	I have been unable to find any information to prove or disprove the elopement story, although it is certainly true that Benjamin Pitfield was not of the Quaker faith and according to Brown "never became a member of the Society of Friends". The assertion that their sons followed the Quaker faith and the daughters didn't is not true - the couple only had one son and one daughter, who both followed the Quaker faith. It is possible that Benjamin was a British soldier, although I have not found any evidence to support this. If he was a soldier it would not have been at the time of the Revolutionary War, as this did not begin until 1776.
	George William Brown was married to Ann Eliza Pitfield, grand-daughter of Benjamin Pitfield. In his book Brown says that Benjamin Pitfield emigrated from England after being invited by an uncle who was living at Timber Creek, in the state of New Jersey (this reference is discussed further in the notes relating to George Pitfield 1749-1827 on table Dorset 2.1.1.1.2). Brown says that the present family (at time of writing in 1885) have no knowledge of Benjamin's origins before arriving in America. However Brown refers to two letters, then in the possession of the family, written by a John Pitfield to his "Uncle Benjamin". The first letter was written in 1789 from Bridport and the second letter was written in 1790 from London. These letters were in the possession of Dr Robert Pitfield of Germanstown, Pennsylvania in 1935. It is thought they are still with a descendant of Dr Robert Pitfield, although I have been unable to trace them.
	These letters provide us with the link back to the Pitfield family in England as they were almost certainly written by John Pitfield of London (1768-1821) shown on Dorset 2.1.1.1, who was the nephew of the Benjamin Pitfield, christened at Colyton, Devon in 1741.
	Benjamin Pitfield was a store-keeper and grocer and moved between Gloucester County and Trenton, both in New Jersey and Philadelphia City in Pennsylvania. The town of Trenton is on the opposite bank of the Delaware river from Philadelphia. Benjamin was living and working in an area that saw a lot of military action during the War of Independence, although I have not been able to find out how it affected Benjamin.

Henry Pitfield, who was christened at Wootton Fitzpaine, settled in Whitchurch Canonicum around 1730 and was the founding father of a second group of Pitfields in the parish, soon after the first group died out naturally with the death of another Henry Pitfield in 1716 (see Table 8.1)

A stone set into the wall of the church at Whitchurch Canonicum reads "these arches were rebuilt by Henry Pitfield, mason, 1738."

Dorset Quarter Sessions Plea Books names John Pitfield of Whitchurch Canonicum, Victualler and Henry Pitfield of Whitchurch Canonicum, Mason - no date given but Plea Book covers the years 1727 until 1752.
- Another entry from the same volume, dated 1750, describes John Pitfield of Whitchurch Canonicum as a Victualler.
- 1751 Quarter Sessions, Dorchester states that John Pitfield of Whitchurch Canonicum

"..keeps a notoriously disorderly alehouse within ye said parish and the Justices of the Peace desire that you would not at the next General Lycencing of Alehouses for that Division grant any Lycense for selling Ale, Beer or other Liquors to this person...."

It would appear that the JP's advice was not followed as John Pitfield is listed in the Alehouse Licencing Records in 1754 (the earliest record that survives) being granted a Licence for one year for the Five Bells in Whitchurch Canonicum with Henry Pitfield of Whitchurch standing £10 surety for the licensee to ensure good order. He does not appear in the Alehouse Licencing Records in subsequent years - others were listed as the licensees of the Five Bells.

No christening of John Pitfield has been found and the reference at 8 does not make it clear if John was aged 59 at committal in 1785 or on release in 1792. Newspaper articles relating the Royal Visit in 1792 refer to "an old man named Pitfield".
- 10

Bath Chronicle and Weekly Gazette 4th October 1792
There was something peculiarly hard in the case of Pitfield, who was released from Dorchester goal by his Majesty's bounty, in paying a debt of 220l. for law charges. It is thus related in the Oracle:-
Several years ago, Lord Milton, as Lord of the manor of Whitchurch Canonicum in Dorsetshire, laid claim to part of a hill not far from Axminster, called Haddon Hill, of which Lord Arundell, of Wardour, was then in possession, as Lord of the manor of Chideock. And, in order to try the question of right, Lord Milton erected a cottage on the Chideock side of the hill, and placed Pitfield and his family in it. This cottage was immediately afterwards pulled down by order of Lord Arundell; and Pitfield, therefore, at the instance of Lord Milton, and solely on his Lordship's account, commenced an action against the aggressors, who justified as the agents of Lord Arundell.
In his action, Mr. Lambert of Dorchester, Lord Milton's solicitor was employed; and the cause was tried at Dorchester assizes before the late Mr. Justice Nares, and a special jury, in 1780, and a verdict given in favour of the defendants. The defendants' taxed costs amounted to 220l. and on application to Lord Milton for payment, he absolutely refuted it; but the defendants' thinking his Lordship would not suffer the poor man to lay in goal for the costs, and arrested him for the amount; and, to the surprise of every one, he was allowed to languish in prison from that time, (upwards of ten years) till he was lately discharged!!

Bath Chronicle and Weekly Gazette 27th December 1792
Pitfield, the object of our amiable Monarch's benevolence, (though almost overcome with joy at so unexpected a deliverance) is actually voluntarily returned to the place of his confinement, (Dorchester Goal) declaring, he was so habituated to captivity, that he should be unhappy in any other situation ; and Mr. Andrews , the keeper, has appointed him to some little office in the prison.

There are entries in the burial register at Whitchurch Canonicum for a John Pitfield in 1809 and 1811.

To U.S. on wedding day 50 years ago

BUT THEY JUST HAD TO RETURN TO DORSET

On Tuesday Mr. And Mrs. Bob Pitfield of Osselhay Farm, Whitchurch Canonorum, remembered a momentous Spring day in 1910 for it was on March 29 of that year they became man and wife in the parish church at Whitchurch. And it was on that same day that they set out for a new life together in Canada.

Bob Pitfield, then 25, of Hinkhams Farm, and his 21-year old finance, Rose Knight, drove in a trap into the village from the Knight's family home at Crabbs, Bluntsea, at eight o'clock in the morning. Back home again from the wedding breakfast and then off again in Mr. Arthur Pitman's trap to Bridport station to set out on the journey to Canada.

As the "Bridport News" of the day said in its report of the wedding, "About two hours afterwards the happy couple left by train at Bridport for America, via Liverpool, with the very best wishes of numerous friends."

That day marked the beginning of 11 years spent in Canada but perhaps even more important the beginning of 50 years of happy marriage.

BUILT HOUSE, DUG WELL

Mr. and Mrs. Pitfield spent much of their 11 years in Canada in a lonely farm in Saskatchewan. Like the other "homesteaders" around them their land cost them 10 dollars from the Canadian government. But they built their own house and dug their own well.

Living on a 160 acre farm with only six cows provides frugal income so for part of the year Mr. Pitfield left his wife and family to travel the 200 miles into the town of Indian Head to look for work as a mason.

While he was away Mrs. Pitfield looked after the farm and drove the horses the 12 miles into the nearest town once a month to pick up the mail and the newspapers.

In spite of the hardships Mr. and Mrs. Pitfield won their "10 dollar bet with the Canadian government" and legally took over their farm after five years. But in 1922 they felt the call of the homeland, sold their farm, returned with their five children to England and settled down in Dorset.

Mr. Pitfield worked as a mason but 30 years ago they had the chance to buy Osselhay Farm and they took it. Mr Pitfield carried on his work as a mason until he was 60. Since then he has devoted all his time to his 28 acres.

LONE FARMER

Today at 75 Mr. Pitfield is still running his farm largely on his own. He milks seven cows, tends a large garden and has his chickens and his orchards.

Osselhay is tucked away in a slumbering corner of the Marshwood Vale. It is approached by a long track across the field from the lane. The television aerial, and the tractor in the shed offer the only hints that the life of the 20th century has dared to intrude.

The farm is straight from the glossy calendars with its low oak beams, open hearths and honeysuckle around the door.

And Mr. and Mrs. Pitfield still welcome their visitors with a pot of cool, home-made cider drawn straight from the barrel in the cellar. It was not so long ago that Mrs. Pitfield was making her own butter and cheese.

And how did Mr. and Mrs. Pitfield celebrate their anniversary? "No celebrations at all," said Mr. Pitfield. "It was just a normal day."

But there were more visitors than usual driving up the lane to Oselhay on Tuesday. Most of Mr. and Mrs. Pitfield's nine children and ten grandchildren looked in to bring their presents and offer their congratulations.

8 Leslie Pitfield is listed in the 1901 census as the son of Reginald Pitfield, aged 10. This would give a date of birth before Reginald's marriage. No birth registration of a Leslie Pitfield has been found - it's possible Leslie was the son of Eliza Fox born before her marriage - no Leslie Fox has been found in Civil Registration.

1 Roger Pitfield (1702-1775) was the youngest son of John Pitfield and like his father he was a miller. As seen on Dorset 2.1 his father held a 99 lease on some mills and land in the parish of Wootton Fitzpaine, but the remains of the lease appear to have been sold following the death of John (between 1709 & 1719). There is evidence in the records of the manor of Champernhayes, in the parish of Wootton Fitzpaine, that Roger paid rent for these mills direct to the freeholder (Lord of the Manor) over a number of years. At other times, during Roger's lifetime, the mills were held by leaseholders and it seems likely that Roger continued to occupy them and paid rent to the holders of the lease.

In 1743 "Roger Pitfield, a miller" took a 99 year lease on a cottage and three acres of land - part of the Manor of Champernhayes. The lease was on his life and on the lives of his son John and daughter Martha.

No christening of any children of Roger Pitfield and Joan Clutworthy have been traced - it is possible that Roger and Joan were nonconformists - but the dates of birth of Martha and John can be estimated from details in the lease of 1743 (although it is possible that they were born a few years earlier than shown here). They also had another son Robert - born after the lease was taken out - circa 1743 (estimated from his age at the time of his burial)

The rent on the lease of the cottage and land continued to be paid after the death of Roger in 1775 but "fell into hand" in the late 1790's. It would seem that the rent was paid by John Pitfield (1742-1798) as the third "life" on the lease until a few years before his death in 1798.

2 John Pitfield 1742-1798 was, like his father, a miller. He settled in Plymouth, Devon. He married twice. He is listed in the Plymouth Rate Books as renting a property called "The Old Town Gate House" from 1791 until 1799.

3 Robert and Mary Pitfield were noted as paupers in the parish records and as such were exempt from birth register tax, when their children were christened.

4 It is likely that Martha Pitfield (1776-1817) is the one referred to in the will of Grace Pitfield in 1785. (see table 2.1.1)

Although this family group is not within the county of Dorset, the Christian names used are familiar from the Dorset family and the surname used varies from Pitfold to Pitfield in a similar manner to the Dorset family. The date of Henry being granted his freedom at the end of his apprenticeship implies a date of birth of c1600-1605. Assuming he is descended from one of the ten sons of Robert Pitfold (1516-1586) the most likely candidate for his father would be George Pitfold (-1618) shown on table Dorset 2.

- 11628 Henry Pitfold, late servant and apprentice of Toby Chidley, was Admitted Free Commoner in the town of Southampton - trade cutler.

- 16Benjamin's eldest son was christened as Henry at Southampton in 1672. However he was known as Benjamin - in 1678 Ester Pitfield paid 1 shilling for her poll tax plus 1 shilling for "1 child Benjamin for his poll"
- 17In 1691 Benjamin Pitfield, described as "of Harwich" married in the Essex parish of Great Oakley to Elizabeth Hurrett. Harwich at this time was an important naval port, so it seems likely Benjamin was connected to the navy in some way - like his father and two younger brothers.
- 18No children of the marriage of Benjamin Pitfield and Elizabeth Hurrett have been traced but I think it is likely they were the parents of the Benjamin Pitfield, named as the grandson of Benjamin Pitfield of Southampton (-1704) - see 23 below.
- 19It would seem that Benjamin Pitfield junior died just a few years after his marriage as his widow, Elizabeth, remarried in 1694 to William Allison of Woodbridge in Suffolk.
- 20No burial records exist at Harwich in the early 1690s so no burial record for Benjamin have been found.

1 ROBERT PITFOLD (-1605) was the third son of Robert and was left land in his father's will ...I give and bequeath unto Robert Pitfolde my third son all my lands, tenements and hereditaments* situate and lying in West Baglake in the parish of Long Bready in the said county of Dorset which I of late purchased and bought to me, mine heirs and assignees of John Cattle....

*hereditament - any item of property, either a corporeal hereditament (land or a building) or an incorporeal hereditament (such as a rent), that can be inherited.

2 A court case in 1622 - C 2/JasI/P2/37 – National Archives states that Robert Pitfold made a will in 1605 (will has not survived). The deposition in the case states that Robert Pitfold left some land in the will to Henry Pitfield referred to "as his second son". It further states that Henry the son transferred the land to his Uncle Henry Pitfold in 1618 - see Table Dorset 0 and Table Dorset 8.

3 A court case of 1620 - C 3/321/41 – National Archives, - plaintiffs Anne Pitfold, widow of Allington and her son Henry Pitfold on behalf Nicholas Pitfold, another son of Anne against (amongst others) "Henry Pitfold a kinsman." - The reply by Henry Pitfold, the kinsman, shows him to be Henry Pitfold the Elder of Whitchurch Canoniconum (uncle to Henry and Nicholas) - see Table Dorset 0 and Table Dorset 8.

4 Another court case in 1622 - C 2/JasI/P7/62 - National Archives establishes Nicholas, Henry and Maximilian as the sons of Robert Pitfold, deceased and establishes Henry Pitfold of Whitchurch Canoniconum as the brother of Robert, deceased and the uncle and godfather of Henry Pitfold of Allington. (Table Dorset 8)

5 Maximilian Pitfold left a will made and proved in 1668.
"I Maximilian Pitfold of Allington, tanner" "my brother Henry Pitfold" "Mary Bayly my daughter" "Mary Gardener my granddaughter" "Thomas Gardener my son-in-law, deceased" "Richard Bayly my grandson" "Hugh Gardner my grandson" "Maximilian Gardner and Robert Gardner my grandsons" "Thomas Gardner my grandson" "Anne Pitfold my now wife" "Nicholas Pitfold my brother" "Richard Bayley my son in law"

Nicholas Pitfold makes his mark as a witness

6 Nicholas, is shown here as the son of Robert Pitfold. He is shown with three wives and a number of children. However Nicholas, son of Robert, had a contemporary (cousin) also called Nicholas Pitfold who was the son son of Henry Pitfold of Whitchurch (Table Dorset 8). This second Nicholas was known to be born c1589 and was alive in 1625 when he was described as "tanner of Allington". It could be that that one or more wives and/ or children shown here belonged to the second Nicholas. I do however think the burial of Nicholas in 1674 belongs to the group shown here as Maximilian pre-deceased his two brothers in 1668.

Various Robert Pitfold/Pitfield families in the parish of Allington.

The name Robert was very popular with the Pitfold/Pitfield family - especially in the parish of Allington. At the time of the Hearth Tax of 1662/64 there were four Robert Pitfields who were assessed to pay tax - one of these was noted as deceased. In the parish records of Allington there are a number of children christened between 1641 and 1720, all sons and daughters of a Robert Pitfold/Pitfield. In the majority of cases the mother's name is not given in the record so it is very difficult to see which family each child belongs to. In addition there is a gap in the Allington register from 1704 until 1716 where I would expect to see further Pitfold/Pitfield christenings.

I have identified three Robert Pitfold/Pitfield, who were contemporaries and were connected with Allington.

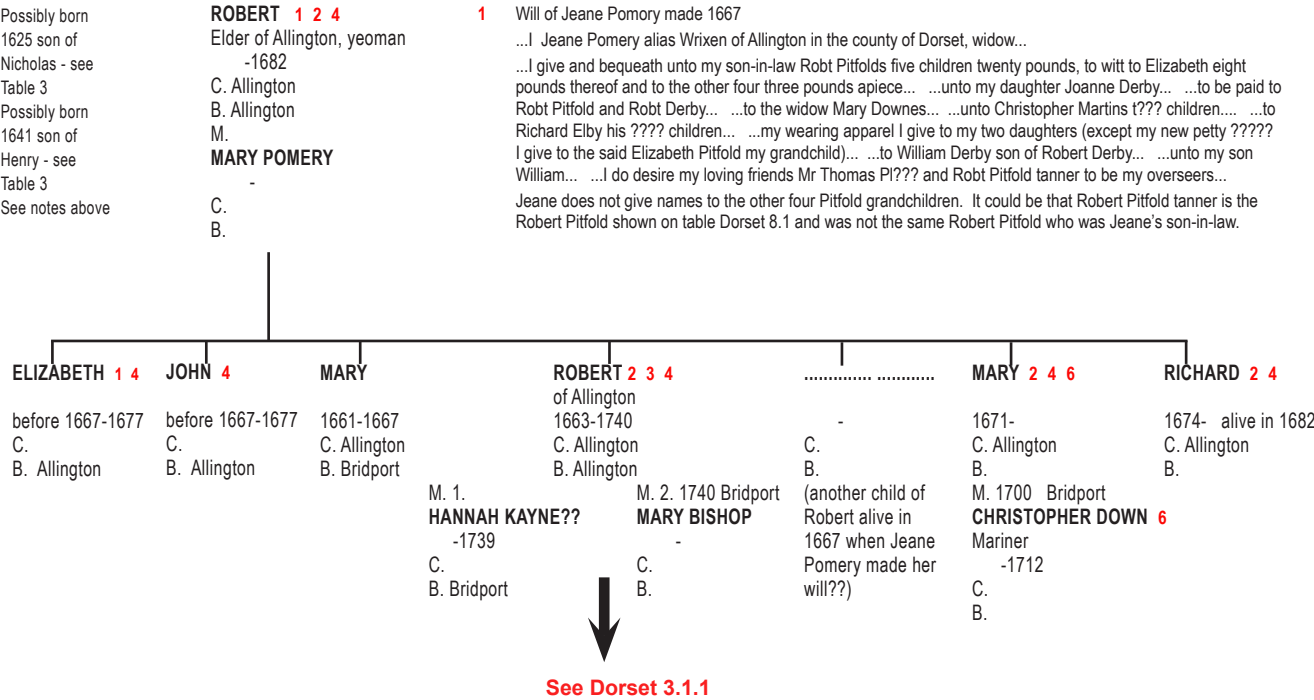

Robert Pitfield, died in 1686, who married Hannah Osborne in 1639 - shown on Table 8.1 - this couple settled in Shipton Gorge but they lived their first years of married life in Allington. Because this Robert left a will and there are other sources of information concerning him I am sure of his ancestry and descendants.

Robert Pitfield, died in 1682, who married Mary Pomory - shown below. The notes attached show why I have attributed him with the children shown, although there is some doubt about some of them.

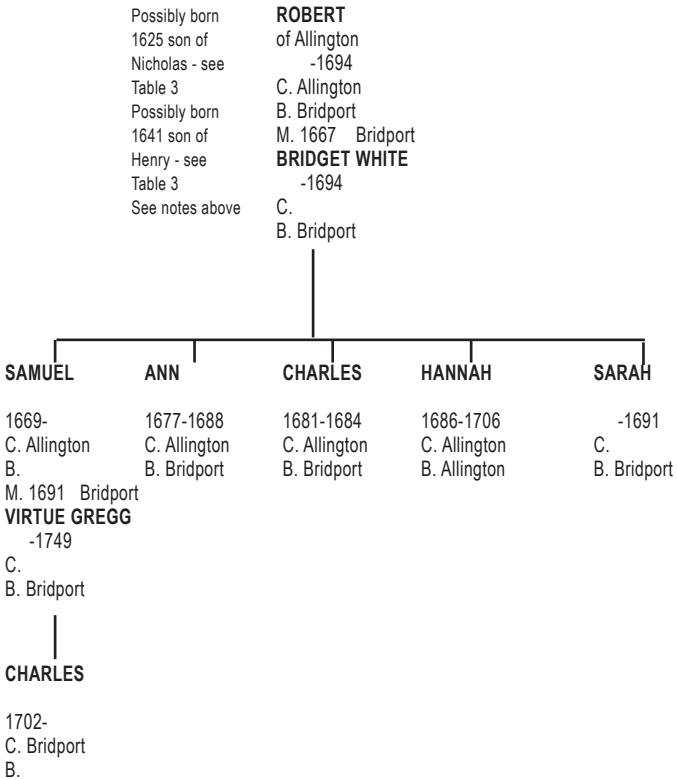

Robert Pitfield, died in 1694, who married Bridget White in 1667 - shown below. I have virtually no information about his couple. I have given them the children shown but there is some doubt about them because of the difficulties with the Allington register.

I cannot be certain of the parentage of the two Roberts shown below - each could be the son of Nicholas (1589-1674) or the son of Henry (-1678). Alternatively they may have other parentage.

I have also come have another Robert Pitfield at a later generation who married Ann Knap in 1725 - I have been unable to establish his parentage.

- 2 Will of Robert Pitfold made 1682
...I Robert Pitfold the Elder of Allington in the county of Dorset, yeoman...
...unto my daughter Mary my dwelling house, barkside and garden next adjoining her Ourkell (Uncle?) William Pomreys in Allington aforesaid... unto my son Richard Pitfold... unto my son Robert Pitfold... unto my now wife Mary who I make sole executrix....
- 3 In 1699 an inventory was made of the goods of William Pomory the Elder late of Allington. This was signed by Robert Pitfeild as appraiser.
- 4 The will of Jeanne Pomory indicates that Robert Pitfold had five children alive in July 1667 and one was called Elizabeth. No christening of Elizabeth has been found. At the time Robert made his will in 1682 he named only three children - Mary, Robert and Richard. In September 1677 at Allington Elizabeth and John Pitfold, son and daughter of Robert Pitfold were buried on the same day. Burials of this type are often of very young infants who didn't live (especially as in this case when there are no corresponding christenings). However I think this John and Elizabeth could have been older children of Robert Pitfold that may have died together as the result of illness, 10 years after Elizabeth was named in Jeanne Pomery's will.
- 5 Will made and proved in 1712 of Christopher Down junior of Bridport, mariner. Names his wife as Mary Down.

The parentage of Robert Pitfield of Allington (-1740) is unknown - possibly the son of Samuel (1669-) but no evidence to support this. See notes above

Administration dated 31st October 1741 names Ann Pitfield of Allington, widow as administratrix of her late husband Robert Pitfield of Allington

Administration dated 1765 states that Elizabeth Edwards is the first cousin and only next of kin to Ann Pitfield of Allington.

1 As noted on the previous table it has been difficult to attribute children to the various Robert Pitfolds/Pitfield who lived in the parish of Allington. Christenings of some, but not all, of the children of Robert Pitfield (1663-1740) have been traced and the relationships of the siblings have been established by various wills and other sources. No marriage for Robert has been found and his wife's name is not shown for the christening of his children, but I think the Hannah Pitfield buried 1739 was his wife. A kinswoman Elizabeth Kayne is named by both Thomas and Samuel in their wills - it seems likely this Elizabeth was connected to their mother so Hannah's name may also have be Kayne.

- 16 William Pitfield left a will made 1792, proved 1793
... William Pitfield of Allington, Dorset, yeoman
William Pitfield left property he owned in Abram, East Abram, Netherbury, Hogbury and Symondsburys to his son-in-law John Braddick and upon John Braddick's death to William's daughter Hannah Braddick, wife of the said John Braddick, and upon the deaths of both John and Hannah to his grandchildren, William Pitfield Braddick, John Braddick the Younger, Samuel Braddick, Hannah Braddick the Younger and Jane Braddick. He also left land and buildings in Allington directly to Hannah Braddick the Younger and Jane Braddick.
William left all his lands and property in the parish of Allington to his son John Pitfield and his heirs (still to be begotten) and upon the death of John, if he should have no heirs, the lands were to default to William's son Robert Pitfield.

- 17 The tax records for Allington list Widow Pitfield paying tax for her house for the years 1783 until 1786
- 18 The tax records for Allington list William Pitfield paying tax for the years 1780 to 1790 for property called Pitwell, Tuckers and another unnamed property. (No tax records survive for 1791 and 1792).
- 19 William Pitfield also had some small land-holdings in the parish of Symondsburys (see THE PITFIELD FAMILY OF MANGERTON, SYMONDSBURY AND EYPE. in section 3)
- 20 From 1783 Robert Pitfield owned and occupied property called Watkins Barn, Late Harnford, Late Greenings, Late Alford as well as his house and gunplot. He also occupied property called Late Pitfields that was owned by David Robert Mitchell esq. All this property was in the parish of Allington.
- 21 John Pitfield is listed in the land tax returns in 1793 and 1795 when he owned Pitwell and Symes's Close.
- 22 It is likely that Robert (1742-1801) came into the property that had been left to John (1751-1797) under the terms of William's will when John died without heirs.

From at least 1783 (earliest land tax records) Robert Pitfield owned and occupied property called Watkins Barn, Late Harnford, Late Greenings, Late Alfords as well as his house and gunplot. He also occupied property called Late Pitfields that was owned by David Robert Mitchell esq. All this property was in the parish of Allington.

The property that Robert's father William Pitfield (-1792) owned in Allington was left to John Pitfield (1751-1797). Under the terms of William's will the land passed to Robert Pitfield when John Pitfield died childless - See Table 3.1.1 for details of the will of William Pitfield (-1792).

Between 1784 and 1799 Robert Pitfield occupied some land in the parish of Symondsburys. (see THE PITFIELD FAMILY OF MANGERTON, SYMONDSBURY AND EYPE. in section 8)

In 1800 Robert Pitfield owned and occupied several properties and owned property that was occupied by others and he occupied property that he rented from other owners, all within the parish of Allington.
- 5

Land tax records for Allington after 1800 are scarce but from 1812 until 1828 the "executors of Robert Pitfield" are listed as the proprietors of several properties and pieces of land, occupied by various tenants.

ANDREW PITFOLD (-1586) was the fourth son of Robert and was named in his will

...I give and bequeath unto Andrew Pitfolde my fourth son all my lands tenements and hereditaments situate being lying and being in the parish of Athlington aforesaid in the county aforesaid in the said county called or known by the name of Curtops which I of late bought and purchased to me heirs and assigns of one Thomas Gudge to have and to hold the same lands tenements and hereditaments unto the said Andrew Pitfolde and the heirs male of his body begotten or to be begotten...

...Item I give unto Andrew Pitfolde my right title interest and term of years that I have yet to come in ??? ???? of the moitye (?) or half????ale of all those lands and tenements, cottages and hereditaments now or of late in the tenure several tenures of

In keeping with Robert's other bequests the property was to pass to Andrew's male heirs and if Andrew was to die without male heirs the property was to pass to Thomas Pitfolde, Robert's fifth son, and his male heirs and failing that to subsequent brothers and their male heirs.

...I give and bequeath unto Andrew my said son five pounds of lawful money of England that his late master Mr(?) William Ffrench of Saltashe in the County of Cornwall oweth me.....

This might give a clue to where the Pitfold family originated from before they settled in Allington - see section The Origins of the Pitfields.

It is doubtful that Andrew inherited because he died in the same year as his father.

Andrew left a will in 1586 in which he described himself as a yeoman of the parish of Allington. His will stated that he was owed five hundred marks by his brother-in-law Mr George Wadham of Catherston Leweston. This sum was bequeathed by his late father-in-law Mr John Wadham of Catherston to his daughter Mary Wadham, who was the late wife of Andrew Pitfold. Andrew left eighty pounds from the debt to his brothers, whom he named as Richard Pitfolde, George Pitfolde, Robert Pitfolde, Thomas Pitfolde, John Pitfolde the elder, Henry Pitfolde, John Pitfolde the younger and Bastian Pitfolde with each to receive ten pounds.

also from the will

...my loving sister Helen Pitfolde, twenty pounds in money and all my late wife's apparel...

...I give and bequeath unto my sister in law Alice Pitfolde for her daughter... (see Dorset 6)

...I give and bequeath to Anne Pitfolde my sister in law...

...unto my brothers in law Mr John Wadham and Mr Nicholas Wadham...

...the residue...unto my natural and loving father Robert Pitfolde whom I do make my sole executor....

The will was proved by Thomas Pitfolde brother, Robert Pitfolde father not proving.

See Table 0 for details of brothers and sister named by Andrew. His "sister in law Alice" was probably the wife of John Pitfolde the younger, whilst his "sister in law" Anne could have been the wife of either Robert or Thomas.

Mr John Wadham of Catherston, gentleman left a will made in January 1584

He left two hundred pounds to his daughter Mary Wadham and three hundred pounds to his daughter Margaret Wadham. The money was to be kept by his son George Wadham until the marriage of the said daughters.

He also named his sons John Wadham and Nicholas Wadham, his niece Anne Wadham, his brother Laurence Wadham and his sister Margaret Case. He also named several cousins.

Catherston Leweston was a manor within the parish of Whitchurch Canonorum, owned by the Wadham family. John Wadham was buried in the church of Whitchurch Canonorum which has a brass plaque engraved to his memory.

Here lieth John Wadham of Catherston, esquire, who deceased the XIVth day of March 1584 who was during his life time captain of the Queen's majesty's castle of Sandsfoot besides Weymouth in this county of Dorset and also recorder of Lyme Regis, whose soul God rest to his good will and pleasure Amen.

...Item I give unto the said Thomas Pitfolde my son all my timber and wood lying upon the ??? at Hawkmore(?) and upon Robert Although references to Thomas Pitfold (-1602) during his lifetime are scarce, information has been gained concerning him from the Inquisitions Post Mortem held after his death and that of his brother Sebastian. At the time of his death Thomas held quite a lot of land in Allington amongst which was a piece of land called Curtops. Curtops had been left by Robert Pitfold the father to his son Andrew but as Andrew did not inherit, the land passed to Thomas. Thomas left his lands to his brother Sebastian, although Sebastian bestowed a lifetimes interest on Curtops to Anne Pitfold, the widow of Thomas Pitfold. Thomas and Anne had no children and Anne was living in Colyton, Devon in 1615 (at the time of Sebastian Pitfold's Inquisition Post Mortem).

- John Pitfold the Elder of Allington was named as the 6th son of Robert Pitfold of Allington in his will.
- In Robert's will made in 1583 he says he has already made provision, through a deed indenture of 1582, for "John Pitfolde the Elder, my sixth son and to Alice Adyne alias Barbette and their heirs male to be begotten..." John and Alice were given lands in Walditch, Shipton and Allington. The will also states that Robert Adyne had been John Pitfolde the Elder's late master (apprenticeship?) There was a prominent family of Adyn alias Barbette living in Dorchester around this time.
- Andrew Pitfolde (-1586) in his will of 1586 makes a bequest ...I give and bequeath unto my sister in law Alice Pitfolde for her daughter... (See Table Dorset 4). It is possible that the sister in law that Andrew was referring to was the wife of his brother George Pitfold - I have shown this as a possibility on Table Dorset 2.
- Following the death of his first wife John married Priscilla Sydenham at Toller Fratrum. Priscilla was most likely the daughter of Thomas Sydenham Esq, baptised 1565 at Toller Fratrum. Thomas Sydenham had taken up residence at the Manor House at Wynford Eagle, a chapelry to the parish of Toller Fratrum, in 1550. At a later date the Sydenham family of Wynford Eagle were prominent soldiers, fighting for the parliamentary cause in the English Civil War.
- Only one child of John and Priscilla has been found - John christened in 1605. It is possible, but not certain, that this John was the same John who married Agnes Payne in 1629 in Exeter and settled in Colaton Raleigh in Devon - for more information on this John and the Pitfield family in Devon see Table Devon 1.
- The burial 1629 at Bridport of "John Pitfold of Allington" could refer to John The Elder or John The Younger. (See Table Dorset 0 and Table Dorset 9).
- John and Alice's son Sebastain married at South Perrot in 1620 and the couple settled in the parish of Mudford, Somerset, where their first three children were christened. They returned to Allington around 1630 following the death of Sebastian's father. A further two children were christened at Allington. No christening of another child - Joseph Pitfield of Winfrith Newburgh - has been traced.
- Edward Pitfold of Allington is listed in 1642 as a soldier enlisted for the Parliamentary cause in the Civil War. Nothing further is known concerning Edward.
- In the will of Richard Symes of Allington, dated 1657, Richard names his son in law John Pitfold, as the husband of his daughter Joan, and refers to "the three children of the said John Pitfold". There are few references to John but the Allington baptism register, which is in poor condition, has: "..... son of John Pitfold was baptised the ? Feb 1656" (word John is clear - word Pitfold less clear). Also there is a burial entry at Bridport 1666 for Rebecca Pitfold daughter of John Petfold (sic) of Allington and a christening at Allington in 1669 of "Ann Pitfold daughter of John Pitfold and Joan his wife".
- In 1820 the Attorney General looked into the restoration of the Huntingdon Peerage and published "A Genealogical And Biographical History Of The Illustrious House Of Hastings" This showed that William Hastings, one of the grandsons of Henry Hastings of Woodlands, Dorset and a great-grandson of George Hastings, the Earl of Huntingdon, had married Rebecca Pitfield and the couple had one son Gabriel Hastings. The report also states that after the death of William Hastings, Rebecca married a Willard.

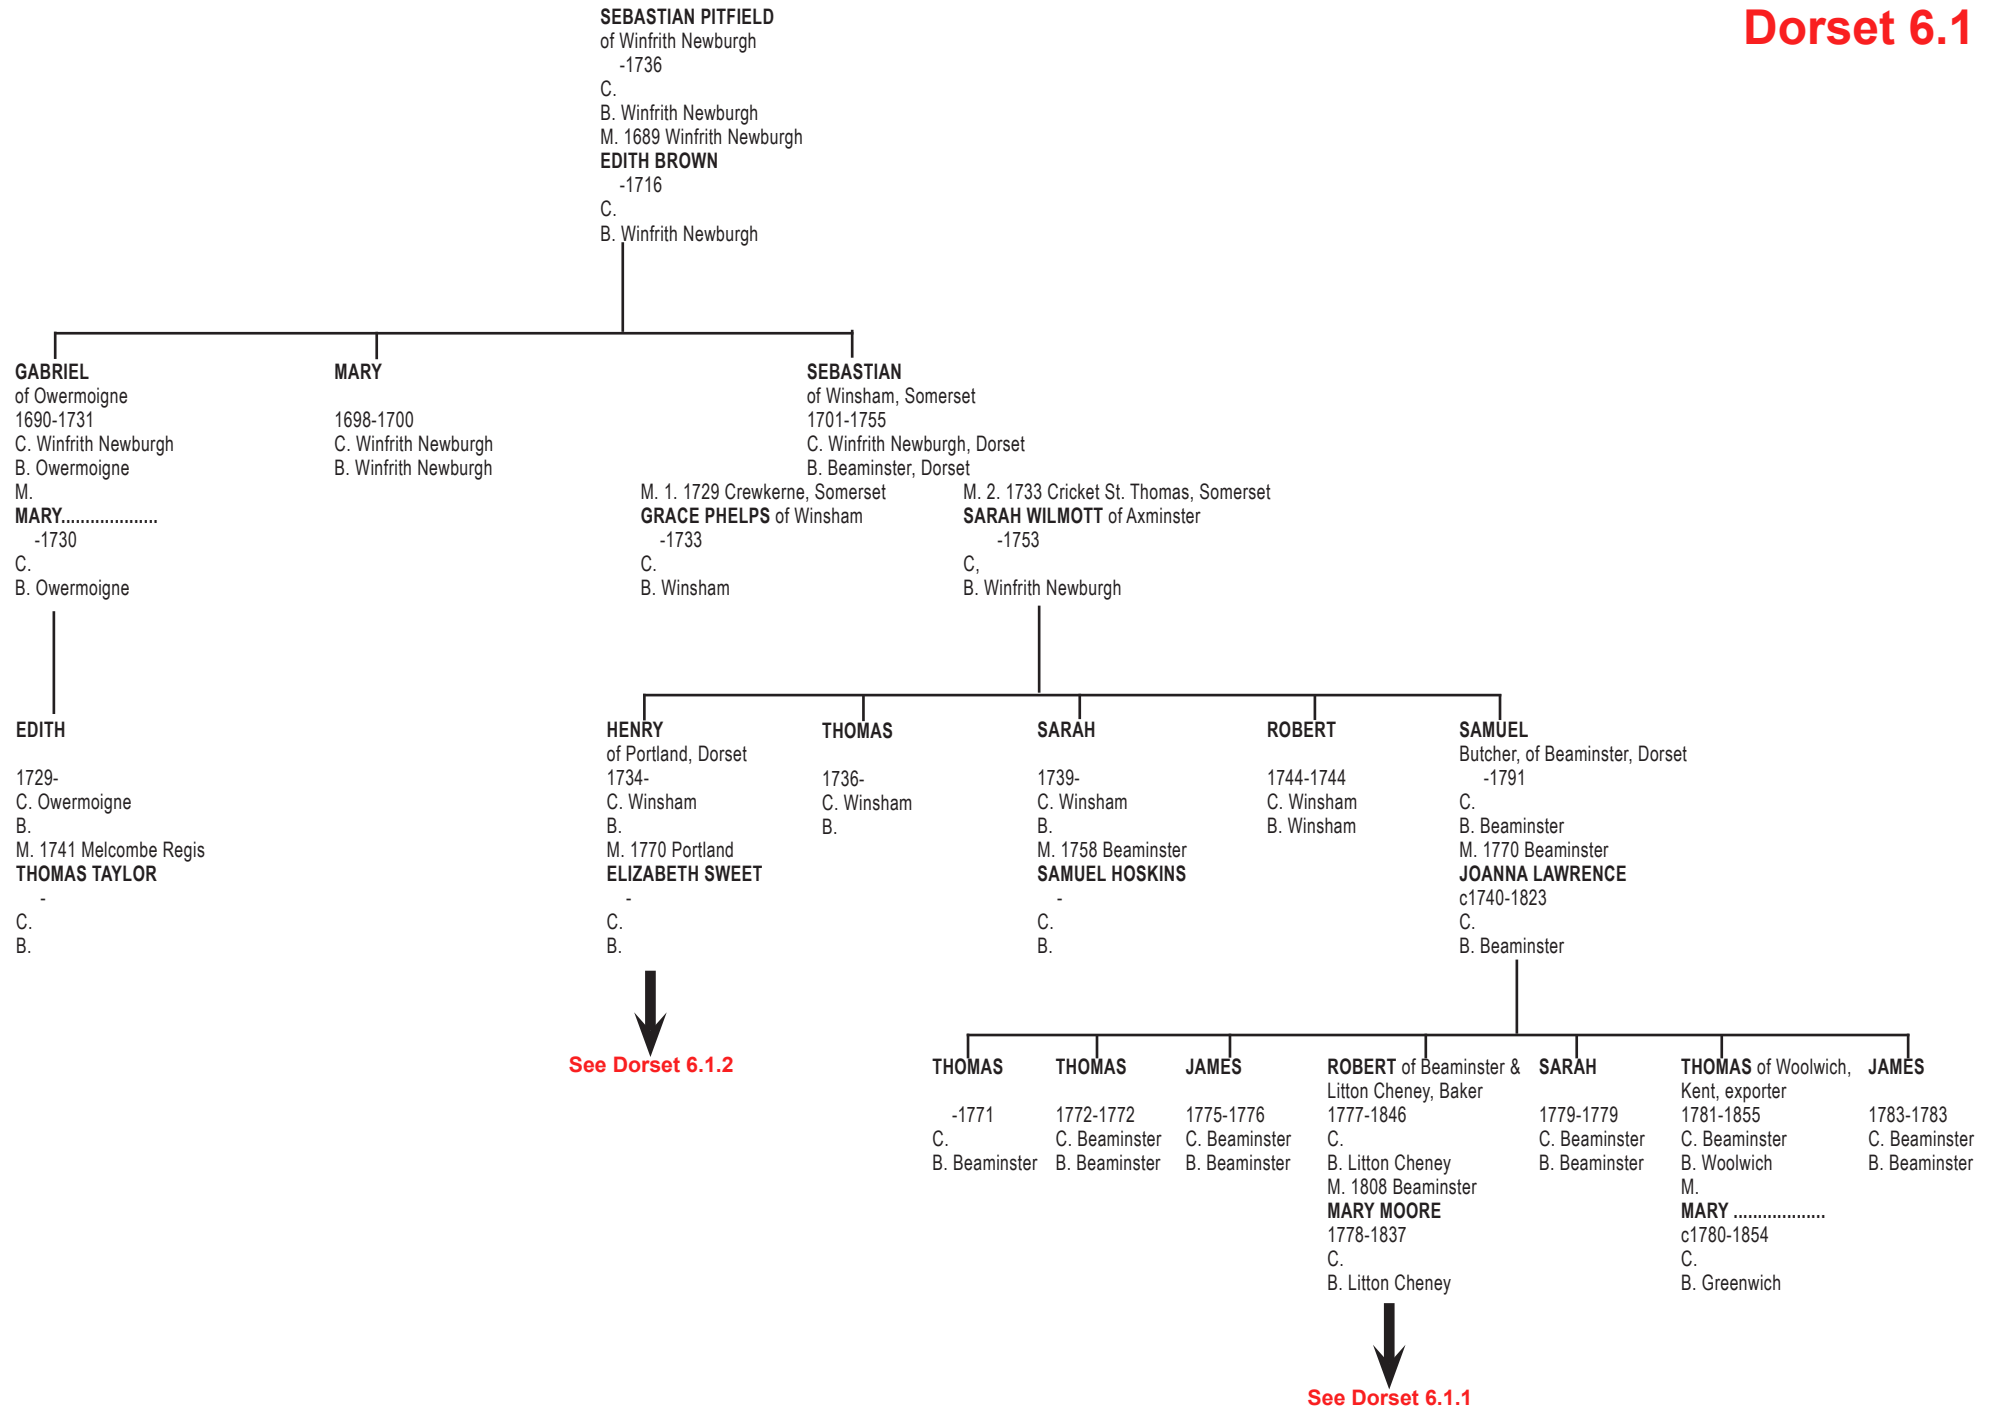

- William Hastings made a will in 1666
...I William Hastings, Gent of Knighton, Winfrith, Dorset...

SEBASTIAN PITFIELD (SOLDIER, GRADUATE, CLERGYMAN AND GHOST)

Because of the lack of records in the Civil War and Commonwealth periods, it is often a difficult era in which to gain details of one's ancestors. It is gratifying, therefore, when one can discover a lot about an interesting forebear, who lived through this time. Sebastian Pitfield was christened at Mudford in Somerset, the son of Rebecca (nee Beaton) and Sebastian Pitfield, alias Pitfold, a yeoman of Allington in Dorset. At the outbreak of the Civil War, Sebastian declared for Parliament. The minute book of the Dorset Standing Committee tells us that he served as a Quartermaster to a troop of horse under the command of Colonel Butler, the Governor of Wareham, from September 1644 until February 1645. From February 1645 until October 1645 he rode in the Sheriff's troop. The minute book gives interesting details of the rates of pay that Sebastian and his servant received, Sebastian only getting a corporal's pay while serving with the Sheriff. The next mention of Sebastian is in the records of Magdalen College, Oxford, from where he matriculated in March 1648/9. On 26th May 1649 Sebastian Pitfield was created a B.A. from Wadham College, Oxford – "by special favour of Sir Thomas Fairfax and Oliver Cromwell". This was obviously an honorary degree, bestowed upon him and seems to imply a reward for services to the Parliamentary cause. It was only a week before this that Cromwell and Fairfax had been in Oxford, where they were installed as Doctors of Civil Law, from All Saint's College. Mention of Sebastian is again made in the minute book of the Dorset Standing Committee in January 1649, when they receive a certificate from the Eighth Classical Presbytery of London, that Sebastian Pitfield is found qualified for the ministry and therefore ordained. Sebastian is appointed by the Committee to officiate in the Dorset parish of Bishops Caudle. The Commonwealth period was a time of upheaval in the Church, with many changes in clergy to reflect the Puritanical attitudes of Parliament. It would seem that Sebastian, after serving in the army and being favoured by Cromwell, saw the opportunity for a career in the Church. During this period the records of many parishes were neglected and none survive at Bishops Caundle during the time that Sebastian officiated there. In April 1654, according to a Certificate of Approbation, preserved in Lambeth Palace Library, Sebastian Pitfield was presented to the Dorset parish of Winfrith Newburgh, with the Chapelry of West Lulworth, under the patronage of "His Highness Oliver Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England". Interestingly his brother Joseph was residing in the parish at this time. Once again parish records for this period were not kept but the State Papers Domestic show that he was minister there in 1657 and 1659. Sebastian managed to keep his position after the restoration of the monarchy in 1660 and is listed in the nearby tithing of West Chaldon for the Hearth Tax records of 1662/4. In 1671 Sebastian was appointed as the Rector of Warblington, near Chichester in Sussex. On 2nd September he married Mrs. Mary Foulks, a widow, at Southampton. This marriage came late in Sebastian's life, he by now being aged about fifty. He and Mary had one daughter named Grace and Sebastian remained as rector until his death in 1686. Some ten years after Sebastian's death there were reports of a ghost haunting the parsonage of Warblington. The ghost was seen by the curate, Rev. Thomas Wilkins. Reports of this reached a Mr. Caswell, a learned mathematician. He decided to investigate and interviewed witnesses and took detailed depositions. These were shown to two residents of Havant who both said the description of the ghost agreed very well with "Mr. P., a former rector of the place who has been dead above twenty years". It was soon taken that the ghost was Sebastian Pitfield and other stories circulated that he had fathered children by his maid, and then murdered them. All research into Sebastian's time at Warblington, however, seems to show that he was a respectable character, who discharged his duties as rector faithfully. It could well be that the ghost story was put about by smugglers, who used the rectory at various times. Pook Lane, Warblington was dubbed Spook Lane during smuggling days to discourage the inquisitive, as it was part of a vital smuggling route. Why stories of Sebastian's ill repute as a father to, and murderer of illegitimate children should gain currency is a mystery, although his colourful life during the Commonwealth period may explain it. Indeed it is also a mystery why Sebastian should have been thought to be the ghost, when the apparition seen in 1695 was said to resemble "Mr P., a former rector" who had been dead "above twenty years" when Sebastian Pitfield had died only nine years before in 1686.

3 Ellen Pitfield, Suffragette
Ellen Sarah Olivia Pitfield qualified as a midwife in April 1906, whilst living in Shepherd's Bush, London. On 18 November 1910 approximately 300 suffragettes campaigned outside the House of Commons when the Liberal government of Herbert Asquith failed to pass a Conciliation Bill which would allow some women the vote in General Elections for the first time. Although the Bill got to its second reading, Herbert Asquith indicated that there would be no more Parliamentary time for the Bill. In response, the Women's Social and Political Union (WSPU) sent a delegation of around 300 women who were assaulted when they attempted to run past the police. Many suffragettes reported being assaulted and manhandled by the police and well over 100 were arrested.

Ellen Pitfield was amongst those injured on this day - referred to as Black Friday. Reports at the time state that the injuries led to her developing cancer, resulting in two operations and her case being declared incurable. At the time of the 1911 census an Ellen Pitfield was a patient at a hospital in the Euston Road, St. Pancras - the only information given was her age of 49 - across the other columns the enumerator had written "Suffragette Refuses Information". On March 3rd 1912 Ellen entered the General Post Office in London and set fire to a basket of shavings saturated with paraffin - then gave herself up to the police. She appeared at the Central Criminal Court (some reports say she was carried from the prison hospital) and sentenced to six months imprisonment. This was the first incident of arson by a suffergette.

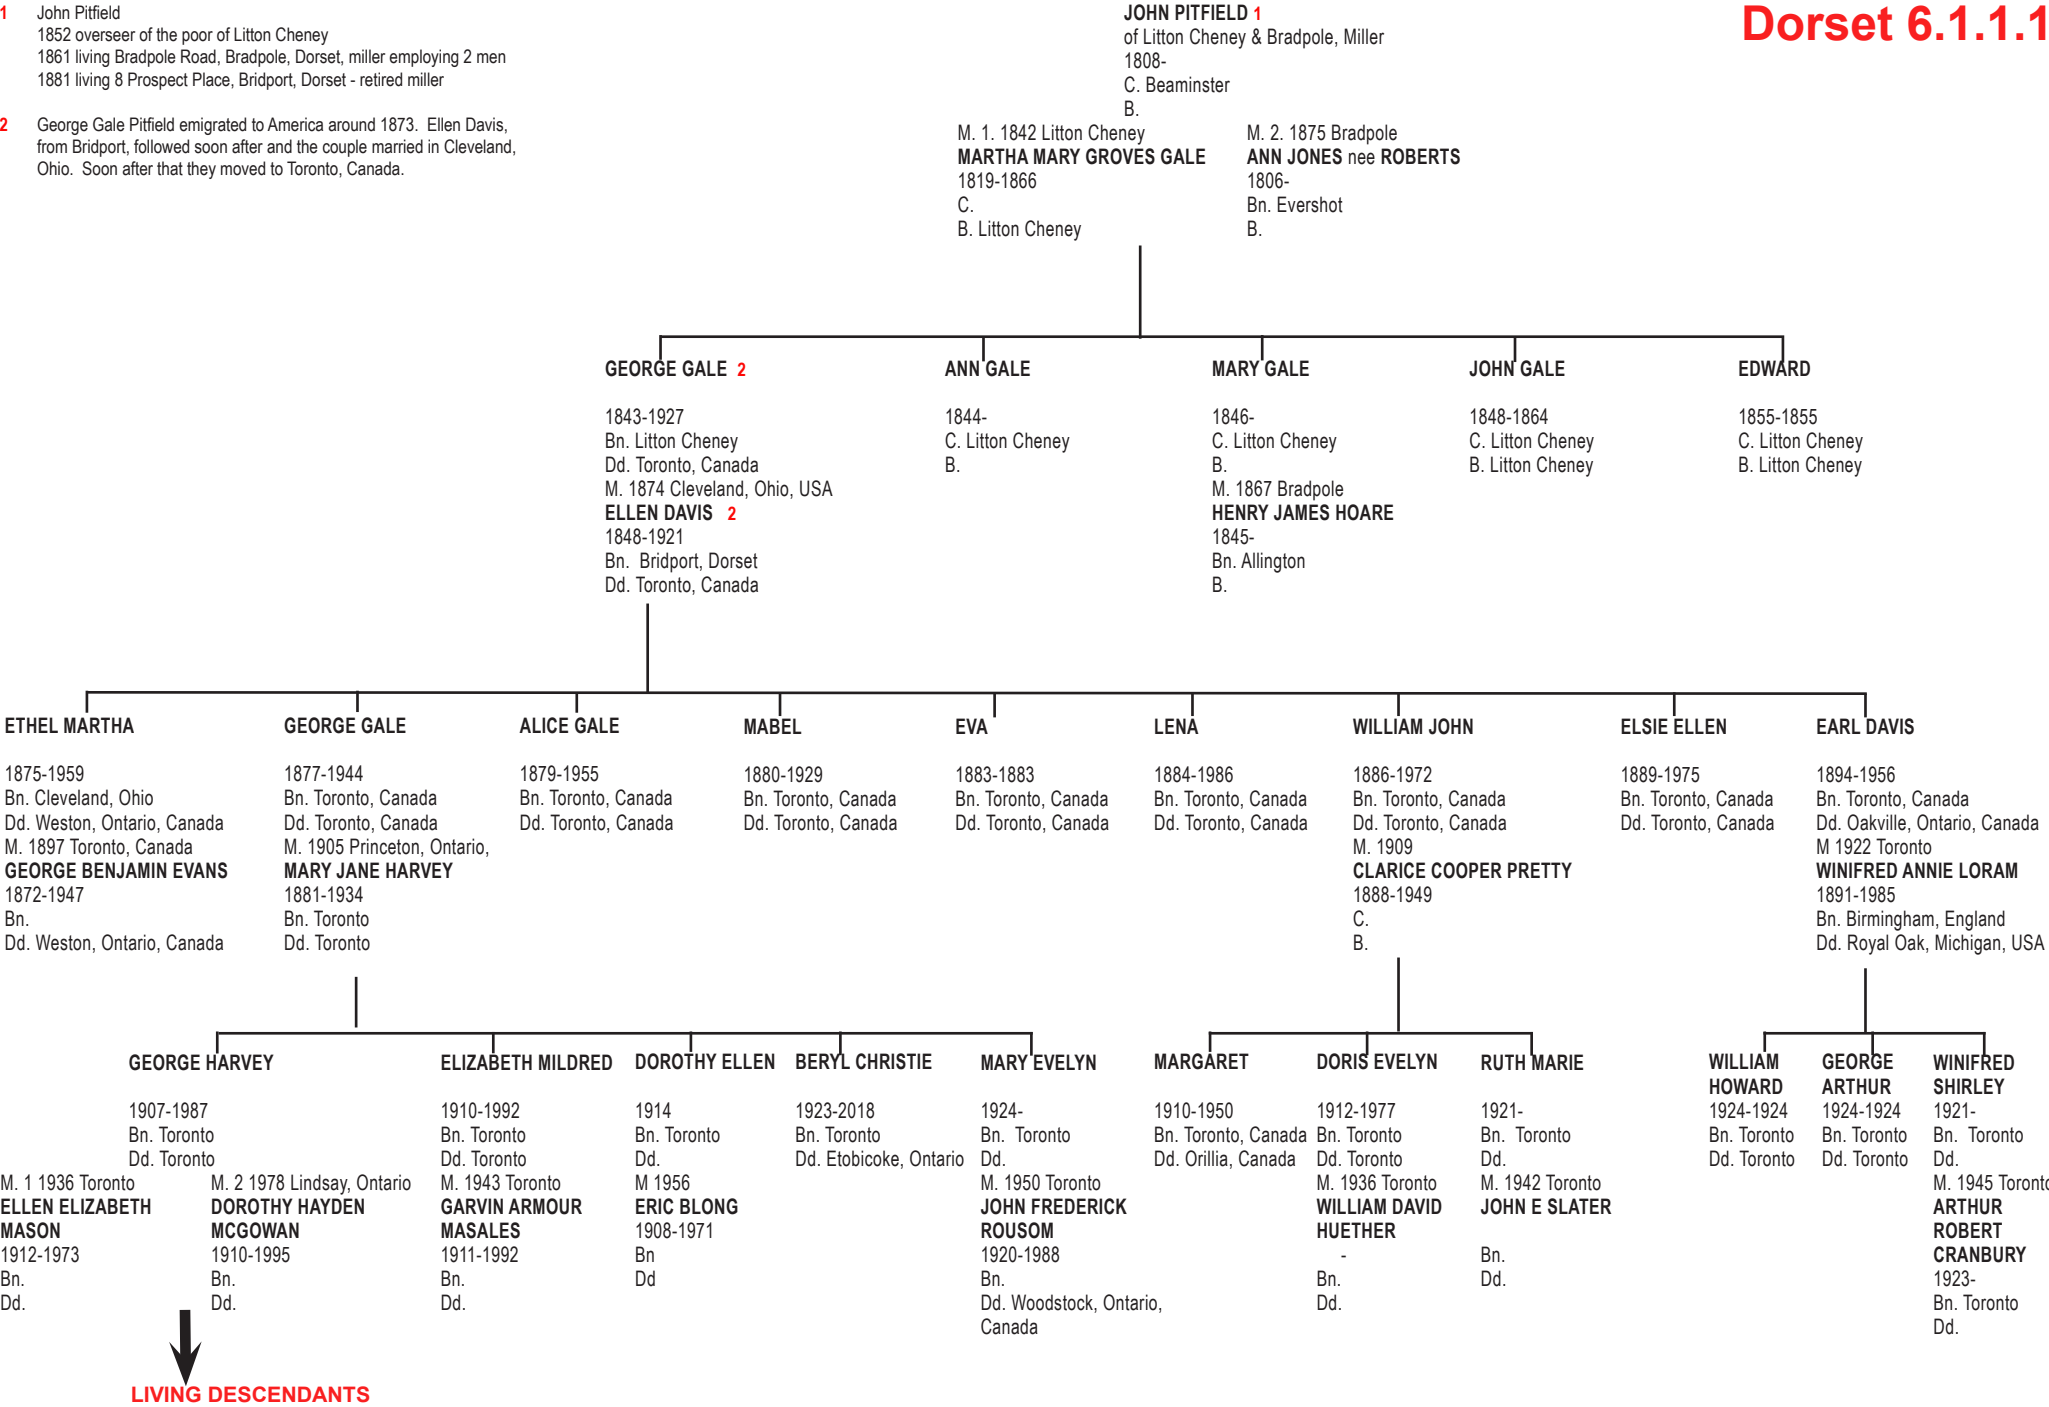

Ellen Pitfield was referred to in various reports as Nurse Pitfield. In April 1912 the British Journal of Nursing, whilst pointing out she was not a nurse but a qualified midwife and referring to her as Miss Pitfield, campaigned for her release from prison on the grounds that she only had a short time to live and the sentence was unduly harsh. The pressure led to her being released on April 16th after 45 days in the Infirmary at Holloway Prison. A letter from the Matron of the Nursing Home that Ellen was transferred to appeared in The British Journal of Nursing on April 27th, describing the conditions and medical care she had received in prison. Ellen died in August 1912 - her death was registered in the name of Helen S. O. Pitfield.

There are a number of testimonials from various people with London addresses, most who state that they had employed Thomas Pitfield as a shoemaker - one saying Thomas Pitfield had worked for him for 11 years.
- 71826 Sentence commuted to Transportation for Life.
- 8At the time of his conviction Thomas stated he had a wife and four children "presently in Buckle Street, Whitechapel"
- 9Christenings of three children of Thomas and Grace Pitfield have been traced. Also two children, christened on the same day - Jane Sparks Pitfield and Amy Spiers Pitfield daughters of Thomas and Jane Pitfield - these are in the same register as the children of Thomas and Grace and were possibly registered with the incorrect mother's name. It seems that Jane Sparks Pitfield and Mary Ann Pitfield were sisters as a George Sills married them both - see 15.

Another Mary-Ann Pitfield christened, a year after the marriage of Thomas and Grace, at Bath Abbey as the daughter of Thomas and Mary, could again be an incorrect entry.

The will of Robert Pitfold of Allington, made in 1583 named his sons and their seniority. However he named John Pitfold the Elder as his sixth son, and Henry Pitfold as his eighth son, implying a seventh son had already died by this date. It has been impossible to find the name of the seventh son. It is highly likely that the entry in the burial register at Whitchurch Canonicorum in 1586 of Mrs Mary Pitfolde, widow, refers to the widow of the seventh son of Robert Pitfold.

I think it is likely that the seventh son was named Nicholas - this is based on the fact that at least two of the sons of Robert Pitfold (1516-1586) named a son Nicholas and that Robert (1516-1586) also had a brother Nicholas (see Dorset Table 0). This is pure supposition and I have no proof.

GOMELSHAY, WHITCHURCH CANONICORUM

Gomelshay was occupied by Richard Pitfold (-1597), the eldest son of Robert Pitfold, when he made his will. He left his property to his widow (see Table Dorset 1).

Soon after Richard's death his brother George (-1618) was named in a document as ...George Pytfolde of Gomelshays in the said county of Dorset, yeoman... (C3/270/1 - National Archives), so it is likely that George purchased the property from Richard's widow, or it is possible he inherited it under the terms of the will of Robert Pitfold (made 1583) in which any bequests made to Richard were to pass to George if Richard should die without male heirs.

George died in 1618 without leaving a will (see Table Dorset 2).

The next mention of Gomelshay is in a document of 1654- C 7/215/56 – National Archives (see note 2 on Table Dorset 8.1) which implies Gomelshay was owned by Henry Pitfold in circa 1639. This would be the 2nd Henry Pitfold of Whitchurch shown here. Joan Pitfold, widow of Henry Pitfold, describes herself as of Gomelshays in her will made 1652.

It seems likely that the 1st Henry Pitfold of Whitchurch purchased Gomelshays from the heirs of George Pitfold. He is known to have bought various property from several of his nephews.

In all there are five generations of Henry Pitfold who lived in the parish of Whitchurch Canonorum (shown here as 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th & 5th) but it is not known if they owned Gomelshays throughout the generations as references to the property are hard to find.

This line of the family died out with the fifth Henry (-1716) who died childless.

There is still a GUMMERSHAY FARM in Whitchurch Canonorum today.

- 1 Henry Pitfold was the 8th son of Robert Pitfold of Allington. From the will of Robert Pitfolde of Allington (1516-1586)
...to Henry Pitfolde my eighth sonne...
...I give and bequeath unto Henry Pitfolde my son ten pounds of lawful money of England that his late master hath with him during his apprenticeship...
...I give and bequeath unto Henry Pitfolde my son all my timber lying and growing upon my bargaine at Combe and all my timber lying upon Grouties (?) ground...
Henry's daughter, Mary, was buried in 1584 but no children of Henry have been found amongst christening records.
- 2 A court case of 1625 - C 21 P48/8 National Archives - names Henry Pitfold the Elder and his wife Joan as well as their children Nicholas and Henry. It also establishes Nicholas as the elder of the two brothers with a date of birth c1589, and refers to a contract, sometime before 1619 for the marriage of the daughter of William Polden to Henry Pitfold junior (no christian name of the Polden daughter was given).
- 3 Henry was in dispute, at various times, with his two nephews (sons of Robert Pitfold), his brother's widow (Anne Pitfold) and his own children (Nicholas and Henry)
- 4 The Nicholas shown here had a contemporary, also named Nicholas, who was the son of Robert Pitfold (see Table Dorset 3). I have shown on Table Dorset 3, Nicholas, son of Robert, having three spouses and a number of children. However it is possible that one or more of these spouses could belong to the Nicholas, son of Henry, shown here.

2 A court case of 1654 - C 7/215/56 – National Archives - shows that Henry Pitfield of Gomelshay Farm, married Mary Long, daughter of Thomas Long of Kingston, Somerset - possibly around 1639.

4 Sir Charles Pitfield of Hoxton made a will in 1680 in which he refers to his kinsman Henry Pitfield of Whitchurch and Henry's brother Robert (see Table Dorset 9)

The answer to the Bill of Complaint was drawn up on behalf of Henry and his wife Mary in the parish of Culliton (sic), in the county of Devon, by a William Pitfield and a John Pitfield senior. These would be William Pitfield (-1712) and his father John Pitfield (-1661), both of the parish of Colaton Raleigh, shown on Table Dorset 9.2
The case did not proceed beyond the initial complaint and answer as the complainant, Charles Pitfield, died in the following year of 1660.

7 In 1687 a case was bought by Richard Pitfield (complainant) against Henry Pitfield (defendant) - in dispute the will of Charles Pitfield made 1659. Depositions from the case (C22 153/3 and C 22/153/3 - National Archives) show that Richard Pitfield was the son of Robert Pitfield whilst Henry Pitfield was the son of Henry Pitfield. The depositions further show that Henry the Elder and Robert were brothers of the late Charles and that the three brothers were the sons of Henry Pitfield and Joan Pitfield. Also named was John Tucker, brother-in-law of the complainant. Depositions also show that Mary the sister of Henry Pitfield, the defendant was married to John Smith. The depositions also show that Robert Pitfield, the father of the plaintiff, was at the time of his death married to Hannah Hallett (aged 30 or upwards in 1686) and that Hannah had remarried to Mathew Wade of Symondsburys, yeoman.

*13th year of the reign of Charles II = 1673
The Jenkins family farmed Innsacre until the 1750s.

The Manor of Shipton had been owned by the Strangeways family, who later became the Earls of Illchester, since the time of the Civil War and remained the property of the family until it was broken up and sold in 1910. Shipton Gorge was a chapelry within the parish of Burton Bradstock. Innsacre Farm House, which still exists, is close to the church at Shipton.

3 Christening at Powerstock in 1712 of Richard, son of Joseph and Joan Pitfield is possibly an incorrect entry and the father's name should be John. Alternatively Richard could have been the son of Joseph Pitfield and a wife, Joan, before Joseph's marriage to Lucretia Hunt in 1718 - see table Dorset 8.1.1.1

4 A document dated 1769 refers to Greenway Cottage, Shipton Gorge said to have been built by Henry Pitfield, deceased, the father of Rebecca Greening, widow, deceased of Shipton Gorge, who left it to her son John Greening of Marylebone, London.

5 Simon Jenkins of Innsacre left a will made 1721 in which he named his wife Elizabeth and 3 children. The will was witnessed by John Pitfield and Joseph Pitfield who both signed.

6 John Pitfield left a will made 1733 with a codical 1738
...I John Pitfield of Mangerton, Netherbury, yeoman...
...my cousin Edmund Jenkins (one of the sons of my sister Elizabeth Jenkins, widow)...
...my cousin John Jenkins her other son and Elizabeth Roach her daughter...
...my cousin Elizabeth Chambers (daughter of my brother in law William Greening)...
...my cousins Susannah and Mary (daughters of my late brother in law William Nicholls deceased)...
...my cousin John Pitfield, son of my brother Joseph Pitfield...
...my cousin Mary Pitfield, daughter of my said brother Joseph Pitfield...
...Robert Tucker and Thomas Tucker (two of the sons of my brother in law Richard Tucker)...
...Richard Tucker, his other son...
...Mary, Ann and Elizabeth (three of the daughters of my brother in law Mr Thomas Brown)...
...my cousin John Greening who now liveth in the house with me...
...Jacob Pitfield and Joseph Pitfield (son of my said brother Joseph Pitfield) - both not yet 21 years of age...
...my daughter Anne's pewter dish...

Within the will John refers to his "nephews" and "nieces" that he had earlier referred to as "cousins."

7 In his will, made 1733, John mentions four brothers-in-law - William Nicholls (deceased), William Greening, Thomas Brown and Richard Tucker, but he does not give the names of their spouses (presumably his sisters). It is known that John's sister Hannah was married to William Nicholls. Research has led me to believe that: William Greening was of the chapelry of Shipton Gorge in Burton Bradstock and was married to Rebecca. Richard Tucker was of the parish of Loders and was married to Edith. Thomas Brown was of the parish of Bradpole and was married to Mary. I have not been able to trace the baptisms for a Rebecca Pitfield, Edith Pitfield or Mary Pitfield, as daughters of Henry and Elizabeth Pitfield, but if they were baptised at Burton Bradstock then the registers are in poor condition, with many gaps. I have also been unable to trace the marriages of William Greening, Thomas Brown or Richard Tucker. It is possible either Greening, Brown or Tucker was the maiden name of Joan, wife of John (1673-1739) so one of the brothers-in-laws named could have been Joan's brother.

also Joan wife of John Pitfield 1736.

John Pitfield died 28th Nov. 1739 aged 67 years.

9 I have no definite proof that Richard Pitfield of Powerstock (-1732) was another son of Henry and Elizabeth, but think it is most likely. The only references I have to him are shown here.

2 Richard Pitfield was christened as the son of Joseph & Joan Pitfield at Powerstock. There is no proof that the Joseph referred to is the same one as married Lucretia Hunt in 1718, but if it is then it implies that Joseph was married previously to Joan. I have no other evidence of an earlier marriage.

Alternatively the 1712 entry could have been a mistake and Richard was the son of John and Joan - see note 3 on table Dorset 8.1.1.

3 John Pitfield, 1721-1787, was admitted into the Freedom of the City of London, in February 1743/44, by redemption, in the Company of Wax Chandler's by paying a fee of forty six shillings and eight pence.

The next mention of John (1721-1787) is in 1748 in a document relating to a cottage in Burton Bradstock which is said to have belonged jointly to Lucretia Pitfield of Frampton a widow, and her son John, then living in London, and employed as a coal meter.

A coal meter was a position that only occurred in London - its holder was responsible for checking the weights and quantity of coal released from coal merchants. John appears to have held the position until his death.

John Pitfield made a will in 1787
...I John Pitfield of Mile End Old Town in the County of Middx. Coal Meter....
...my Brother Jacob Pitfield of Silbury in Dorsetshire ffarmer...
...be buried at Lambeth Church...
No wife or children are mentioned and the bulk of John's estate was left to his brother Jacob.
No burial entry for John has been traced at Lambeth or elsewhere.

4 Joseph Pitfield (1727-1783) left a will made 1780
....Joseph Pitfield of Banbury, in the county of Oxford, Gentleman.....
...my wife Anne....

...John Bridge of Wynford Eagle in the county of Dorset, gentleman....
...Jacob Pitfield of Symondsbur and Joseph Pitfield of Frampton, both in the said county of Dorset, gentlemen.... (no relationship to these given)

....my said brother Jacob Pitfield.....(implication that this is the same Jacob Pitfield, above)
....my brother John Pitfield.....

...Robert Rogers of Sydling Saint Nicholas or his children.....
...Catherine Hollett (sic) of Sydling Saint Nicholas or her children.....
...Mary Jones of Dorchester, within the county of Dorset or her children.....

No relationships mentioned concerning the above but they are also listed in the will of Anne Pitfield - see note 5.

Joseph does not name any children, despite his daughter Anne being born two years previously, but refers to ...any child or children that I might leave at my decease or any child or children born after my decease with which my said wife may beat the time of my decease.....

THE PITFIELD FAMILY OF MANGERTON, SYMONDSBURY AND EYPE.

This narrative gives some further information concerning the Pitfield family who owned land at Mangerton in Netherbury and who went on to become major landowners in the parish of Symondsbury and Symondsbury's chapelry Eype. It helps explain how the various properties were passed down through members of the family and it needs to be read in conjunction with most of the tables that start with 8.

Some of these notes are repeated within the charts, whilst other notes on the charts add to this narrative with further information such as précis of wills etc. Persons named in this narrative have the symbol  against their names in the charts.

John Pitfield of Mangerton (1673-1739)

In his will John Pitfield, (1673-1739), described himself as a yeoman of Mangerton, a hamlet within the parish of Netherbury. I have been unable to establish when John Pitfield purchased land at Mangerton but it was probably sometime after 1713, as John and his wife Joan had been living at Powerstock before that date. Various members of the Pitfield family continued to own land at Mangerton until 1838.

John Pitfield (1673-1739) also owned lands within the parish of Burton Bradstock and its chapelry Shipton Gorge, some of which he probably inherited from his father Henry Pitfield of Innsacre, Shipton Gorge (c1643-1720).

John Pitfield (1673-1739) died childless. In his will he left his lands in Burton Bradstock and Shipton Gorge to his nephew John Greening, the son of his sister Rebecca Greening nee Pitfield. He left Mangerton in trust to his two nephews Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795) and Joseph Pitfield (1727-1783), sons of his brother Joseph Pitfield of Stratton (-1743), until they each reached the age of 21.

Jacob Pitfield of Symondsbury (1723-1795) and Joseph Pitfield of Banbury (1727-1783)

Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795) became the new owner of Mangerton Farm, whilst his brother Joseph (1727-1783) settled at Banbury, Oxfordshire where he was a shag merchant (dealer in tobacco). At the time of making his will Joseph Pitfield (1727-1783) described himself as a Gentleman, and he owned land and property in Isleworth, Middlesex and in the Dorset parishes of Burton Bradstock, Whitchurch Canonorum and Sydling Saint Nicholas. He instructed his executors to sell his property to pay off his debts and to provide an income for his wife Ann and any child or children that succeeded him. Joseph and Ann had one daughter Ann Pitfield (1778-1822). Following the death of her mother in 1786 Ann Pitfield (1778-1822) became an orphan, aged 8, and it is likely she was bought up by her uncle Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795).

The churchwarden's accounts of Netherbury for the years 1756 and 1762 refer to "Mangerton Farm divided." Jacob Pitfield owned one parcel of land of 7½ acres and another of 6 acres. 5½ acres were owned by George Waldron, 14 acres by George Stevens, 7 acres by George Symes esq, 4 acres by John Hine and ¾ of an acre by James Munden.

The land tax records for the year 1795 list Jacob Pitfield as the proprietor of land in the parish of Netherbury. The name and the extent of the land is not given, but it seems to have been considerably more than the 13½ acres he owned in 1762, as he paid £4 10s 11d in land tax. The tenant of the land in 1795 was Benjamin Stoodley.

Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795) was married twice and had 16 children, 11 who survived infancy, as shown on tables 3.1.1.1.1a and 3.1.1.1.1b. As well as being the owner of land at Mangerton, Jacob occupied extensive lands within the parish of Symondsbury. Tithe records for Symondsbury show that from 1750 Jacob Pitfield was present at Symondsbury Farm, an extensive property. The land tax records, which start in 1782, show that Jacob was the tenant of Symondsbury Farm, with the property being owned by Francis J Brown esq. In addition Jacob occupied six other pieces of land in Symondsbury, although he was not the owner of any of them. By 1790 Jacob's son John Pitfield (1770-1838) had taken over the tenancy of some land from his father, as well as renting further land in the parish. Jacob had become the owner and occupier of a piece of land in Lower Eype (a chapelry of Symondsbury). In 1795, the year in which Jacob died, he is listed as the owner and occupier of North End and Cussen's North End as well as the piece of land in Eype. In the same year his sons Jacob Pitfield junior (1769-1799) and John Pitfield (1770-1838) are both listed as occupying land in the parish.

Jacob Pitfield of Symondsbury (1723-1795) left a will in which he left "Mangerton Farm" to his wife Joan and upon her death to his son Thomas Pitfield (1778-1858). All his lands and tenements that he still owned in Symondsbury he left to his son John Pitfield (1770-1838). He also referred to using £1,300, left in trust to his niece Ann Pitfield (1778-1822) by his late brother Joseph Pitfield (1727-1783), which he used to buy a farm within Symondsbury called North End (listed in the land records of 1795 above) which was to be transferred to Ann upon his death.

Thomas Pitfield (1778-1822) and Ann Pitfield (1778-1822)

Thomas Pitfield (1778-1858), one of the sons of Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795), married his first cousin Ann Pitfield (1788-1822), the daughter of Joseph Pitfield of Banbury (1727-1783), in 1799 at Netherbury.

Ann sold her lands at North End to Thomas's brother John Pitfield

(1770-1838) and Thomas and Ann lived at Mangerton Farm, which Thomas had inherited from his father Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795). Thomas and Ann had one son John Pitfield (1800-1854) and seven daughters. Ann died in 1822 and in 1829 "Thomas Pitfield of Mangerton Farm" advertised in the Dorset County Chronicle an auction for the sale of all his animals, farm implements, machines and wagons etc as he was "about to decline business". Thomas sold the Mangerton Farm to his brother John Pitfield (1770-1838). The 1831 Dorset Poll Book lists John Pitfield as the freeholder of Mangerton Farm and John Nicholls as the occupier. For details of what happened to Mangerton Farm see the section below about John Pitfield (1770-1838) .

At the time of the 1841 census Thomas Pitfield (1778-1858) was living along with his daughter Susan Pitfield (1816-1855) in the household of Thomas's daughter Elizabeth Nicholls nee Pitfield and her husband John Nicholls, who were farming at Hincknowle in the parish of Netherbury.

At the time of the 1851 Susan Pitfield was a governess in the parish of Compton Valence. I have been unable to find Thomas in the 1851 census but at the time of his burial in 1858 he was described as of the parish of Stratton, Dorset. It is possible that Thomas Pitfield was living at Stratton Farm House, the farm of William Chick - brother to Thomas Chick who had married Sarah Pitfield. In 1851 Sarah Chick, widow, was living in William Chick's household with two children and Mary Pitfield (1806-1860) was a visitor there.

Jacob Pitfield, junior (1769-1799)

Jacob Pitfield junior died in 1799, only four years after his father, and his wife Elizabeth died the same year leaving three young children. It is unclear who cared for the children but they all survived into adulthood, with the daughters Elizabeth Horner Pitfield (1792-) and Lucretia Pitfield (1794-) making good marriages and the son Jacob Pitfield (1796-1860) making a successful career in the Royal Navy (see below and the separate narrative).

John Pitfield of Symondsbury (1770-1838)

As already seen John Pitfield (1770-1838) took over the tenancy of some of the Symondsbury properties occupied by his father Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795) whilst in his early 20s, and was left the land that his father owned in Eype. Additionally, as already seen, John purchased Mangerton Farm from his cousin Ann Pitfield (1778-1822) soon after she became its owner in 1795. John also took over the tenancy of the lands that his brother Jacob had been renting at the time of his death in 1799.

In 1802 John Pitfield owned and occupied pieces of land called North End, Cussen's North End, Dommets, Part of Davies and Honeylands, all in the parish of Symondsbury. He also occupied and rented Symondsbury Farm from Francis J Brown and ten other pieces of land, from various owners.

In 1805 John is listed as owning and occupying Symondsbury Farm (55 years after his father first became its tenant) as well as two other pieces of land, previously rented from Francis J Brown. He also owned and occupied a further piece of land that he had not occupied in 1803, as well as occupying the other lands as listed in 1803.

In 1814 John Pitfield was the owner and occupier of the majority of the property that he either occupied or owned in 1805. In addition he rented six further properties from the Honourable S. D. Strangeways (Earl of Ilchester).

In the years that follow John's land holdings in Symondsbury remained largely unchanged. In 1832 a new acquisition is listed in the land tax records - land called Rayerhill – that is owned by "John Pitfield senior" (1770-1838) but occupied by his nephew, listed as "John Pitfield junior" (1800-1854), the son of Thomas Pitfield (1788-1858) and Ann Pitfield (1778-1822).

The Land Tax records finish in 1832 but the tithe records show that from 1831-1834 John Pitfield paid tithes on the properties that are listed in the land tax records.

In 1834 John Pitfield transferred much of his land to John Pope by an indenture for 21 years. John Pope was married to the niece of John Pitfield - Jane Warr the daughter of John's sister Jenny Pitfield/Warr and John Warr. The Church Rate and Vestry minute book for 1835 shows that the lands that had been owned and occupied by John Pitfield were divided between John Pope and John Pitfield Junior, whilst John Pitfield senior didn't pay any church rate.

In 1835 John Pope paid church rates for Symondsbury Farm, North Ends, Henwood, Leazeacre, Dommets, Bilkshay, Newport, Raines Hill and Leggs all in Symondsbury North Tithing. He also paid church rates for Mile's Cross, Honeylands, Symes's, Hare's, Gale's in Symondsbury South Tithing.

In 1835 John Pitfield paid tithes for: Watton Farm at Eype, Flood and Lotts part Lower Eype, Lord Role's part Lower Eype, Late John Davis's, Shoots, Land in Great Meadow, Late Demziloes (?), Farthing

Field and Youngs, all in Symondsbury South Tithing.

John Pitfield, senior made a will in 1835 in which he made some specific legacies to various members of his family – see précis of his will on Table 3.1.1.1.1b – with the majority of his estate being put in trust for his great nephew John Pitfield, son of his nephew John Pitfield (1800-1854) (son of Thomas Pitfield and Ann Pitfield) until he reached the aged of 21. The will made provision that if John Pitfield, the great nephew did not reach 21 then the trust would revert to any other son of John Pitfield the nephew, who lived to 21. At the time John made his will in 1835 his great nephew John was aged one year and he died the following year. In the same year, 1836, another son also named John, was born to John Pitfield the nephew, who in time became the main beneficiary of his great uncle's estate. The will also refers to the Indenture of 1834 transferring some of his lands to John Pope for a period of 21 years.

John Pitfield (1770-1838) never married and was buried at Symondsbury, where there is an elaborate marble plaque within the church testifying to his virtues, erected by his executors Jacob Pitfield, John Pitfield and John Pope.

Jacob Pitfield (1796-1860), named as an executor, was one of John Pitfield's nephews, being the son of John's brother Jacob Pitfield (1769-1799). For details of the life and Royal Navy career of Jacob Pitfield see the separate narrative.

Soon after the death of John Pitfield (1770-1838) John Pitfield and John Pope auctioned Mangerton Farm in Netherbury which was described thus:

The Fee-Simple and Inheritance of all that compact and desirable FARM, called Mangerton, consisting of an excellent Dwelling-House, beautifully situated, within a Curtilage, productive Garden, Barn, Stables, and other convenient Outbuildings, and seventy-two acres of rich, Arable, Meadow, and Pasture Land and Orchard, thereto belonging, now in the occupation of Mr. John S Nichols, as tenant from year to year, situate in the parish of Netherbury, and county of Dorset, about two miles and a half from Bridport and four from Beaminster, close to an excellent turnpike road, and in the neighbourhood of good markets.

(Dorset County Chronicle 26 April 1838)

Pitfold Farm, in the parish of Burton Bradstock, was also offered for sale at the same auction in 1838 – for details of Pitfold Farm see separate narrative.

John Pope and John Pitfield also sold off other pieces of land in Symondsbury.

As already seen the land and property holdings of John Pitfield were split, three years before his death. The story of what happened to the two parts of his estate follow different but sometimes overlapping narratives.

Eype

John Pitfield junior, (1800-1854) known as John Pitfield of Eype continued to farm at Eype from when he first occupied land there in 1835. He had married in 1832 to Jane Roper. In the 1851 census John was living at Higher Eype and was described as a farmer of 400 acres employing 25 labourers. Listed with him were his wife and six sons. John died in 1854 and the records show that his widow Jane took over the farm and continued to pay church rates in the years that followed. In 1861 Jane Pitfield is listed as the head of the household at Higher Eype and is described as a farmer of 592 acres employing 23 men, 9 boys and 7 women. In the house with her were her sons John aged 24, Alfred aged 21, George aged 15 and Joseph aged 13.

Her son John Pitfield (1836-1913) married in 1861 - more details of John are shown in the next section.

From 1864 to 1870 Jane Pitfield and Alfred Pitfield both paid church rates with Jane paying the most, indicating she was still running the farm at Eype. However at the time of the 1871 census Alfred J Pitfield, unmarried, is listed as the head of the household at Higher Eype, farming 596 acres employing 27 men, 7 boys and 8 women. His mother Jane and his brother Joseph are also living at the farm. Alfred Pitfield pays the church rate until 1878. Alfred had married in 1875 and he appears to have moved away around 1878, soon after his mother Jane died in 1877, and is listed as farming in Wimbledon, Surrey at the time of the 1881 census. Alfred's place at Higher Eype is taken over by his brother George Roper Pitfield who is listed at the time of the 1881 census as George Pitfield, unmarried, aged 35, farmer of 504 acres employing 15 men 5 boys and 3 women. George Roper Pitfield continued to farm at Higher Eype and married in 1890. In the 1891 census he is listed, with his wife Lillian, as a farmer (the 1891 census gives no detail of landholdings etc). and the couple are still there for the 1901 census.

In September 1901 George Roper Pitfield puts all his livestock, farming machinery and agricultural implements up for sale at Eype as he is quitting farming – Western Gazette 20th September 1901.

George and Lillian retired to Wroath Grange in the parish of Netherbury, thus ending the Pitfield connection with the parish of Symondsbury).

Symondsbury Farm

As outlined previously much of the estate of John Pitfield senior (1770-1838) was left to his great nephew John Pitfield (1836-1913) in trust until he reached the aged of 21, whilst at the same time making provision for John Pope to occupy it from 1834 for a period of 21 years.

John Pope farmed and paid church rates for Symondsbury Farm from 1835 until 1855. At the time of the 1851 census he is listed in Symondsbury Village with his wife, son and daughter and described as a farmer of 750 acres employing 30 labourers.

By 1856 John Pope had vacated Symonsbury Farm (presumably at the end of his 21 year tenure) and from 1856 to 1857 it is occupied by John Symonds and from 1858 to 1861 by George Symonds. John Symonds was the uncle of John Pitfield of Eype's wife (now widow) Jane Roper. George Symonds was the son of John Symonds and therefore the cousin of Jane Roper/Pitfield (see chart on next page). John Pope continued farming other land in Symondsbury.

John Pitfield (1834-1913) the great nephew had been living at Eype with his parents and later with his mother, as outlined in the previous section about Eype. In 1861 he married Mary-Ann Udal, the daughter of William Udal. William Udal was a cousin of Jane Roper/Pitfield of Eype (see chart on next table) and had his roots in Dorset, but had made a sizeable fortune in business in Birmingham.

Soon after his marriage John and Mary-Ann took over Symondsbury Farm and John paid church rates from 1861 to 1877. At the time of the 1871 census John and Marianne (sic) are listed at Symondsbury Village with 7 children. John is described as a landowner of 580 acres employing 20 men and 7 boys.

John Pitfield (1836-1913) appears to have given up the farm around 1877 as from 1877 to 1880 the church rate is paid by brother-in-law William Udal Junior.

In 1881 John Pitfield and his family are living in Taunton, Somerset where he is described as a retired farmer. He later moved to Elmset Hall, Wedmore, Axminster, Somerset and then to Wrafton House, Heanton Punchardon, Devon, where he died 1913.

Following the death of William Udal senior in 1880 his son, John Symonds Udal (brother to John's wife Jane Udal) purchased Symondsbury Farm from John Pitfield in 1881. John Symonds Udal owned Symondsbury Farm and lived in the farmhouse, whilst his cousin Daniel John Symonds occupied the farmland (see table on next page). John Symonds Udal sold the "Symondsbury Estate" in 1900 to the Colfox family who still own it today.

PITFOLD FARM, BURTON BRADSTOCK

In 1783 the land tax records list Joseph Pitfield as the owner of land in the parish of Burton Bradstock, occupied by Robert Greening on which 1 pound, 11 shillings and 8 pence tax was paid. No name is given for the piece of land. In 1784 and 1785 Mrs Pitfield is named as the owner and in 1786 the owner is the "executors of Mr Joseph Pitfield" with the tenant being Stephen Ackerman. This Joseph Pitfield was Joseph of Banbury (1727-1783) shown on Table 3.1.1.1. In his will Joseph stated that he owned land in Burton Bradstock (and elsewhere) and that his lands should be sold to provide an income for his wife and any child or children that might succeed him. The land at Burton Bradstock appears to have transferred to Joseph's brother Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795) as the land tax records list either Mr Pitfield or Mr Jacob Pitfield as the owner from 1787-1795. After the death of Jacob the Burton Bradstock land is owned by his son Thomas Pitfield (1778-1858) with the occupier still Stephen Ackerman, until 1813. From 1815 until 1818 Thomas Pitfield is listed as the owner and occupier of the land. Although Thomas was living and farming at Mangerton in the parish of Netherbury it is quite possible that he could have farmed the land in Burton Bradstock as well, as it is not far from Mangerton. From 1820 to 1829 Thomas Pitfield is still listed as the proprietor, although the occupier is not listed. The piece of land is now listed as "Pitfields" and the tax paid is still 1 pound, 11 shillings and 8 pence. The records for 1830 until 1832 (the last year for land tax records) list the land as "Pitfolds" and give the proprietor and occupier as Thomas Pitfield.

It was quite common for land to be named after a one-time owner. The naming of the farm as "Pitfolds" seems to imply that the land had been owned by the Pitfield family from far earlier times, when the surname was still Pitfold. It is known that the "Pitfold" family lived in the parish of Burton Bradstock from early on, with George Pitfold (-1618) being buried in the parish. It is likely that Pitfold Farm (which still exists today in Burton Bradstock) took its name from an early member of the Pitfield/Pitfold family. There are deeds from the Pitt-Rivers family estate archive relating to Pitfold Tenement 1742 and Pitfold Farm 1789, which I have not yet seen. The Pitt-Rivers family became Lords of the Manor of Burton Bradstock when George Pitt acquired it in 1684.

After 1832 Thomas Pitfield appears to give up Pitfold Farm. It's possible that he sold it to his brother John Pitfield (1770-1838) at the same time as he gave up Mangerton Farm (circa 1832). The farm is then taken over by John Pitfield (1800-1854) the son of Thomas. This possibly occurred around 1835 when John Pitfield (1770-1838) passed on much of his Symondsbury land to John Pitfield (1800-1854) and to John Pope (1803-1873) – see THE PITFIELD FAMILY OF MANGERTON, SYMONDSBURY AND EYPE.

In April 1838, two months after the death of John Pitfield (1770-1854), "Mangerton & Pitfold's Farms and other lands" were advertised for sale by John Pitfield and John Pope (Dorset County Chronicle, 26th April 1838). Pitfold's Farm was described as:

LOT 2 – All that TENEMENT or FARM, called Pitfolds, with the House, Stables, Barn, Outbuildings, and other convenient Offices thereon, and the following closes of rich Arable, Meadow and Pasture land, hereinafter set forth, situate in the parish of Burton Bradstock, and county of Dorset, containing altogether about 104 Acres, in the occupation of Mr. T. Clark, as tenant, at a yearly Rent of £130, whose term will expire at Michaelmas, 1839.

(there then follow as breakdown of the various closes, meadows and pieces of arable land and their names and acreage).

The same lot also included other lands within Burton Bradstock amounting to 46 acres. The sale seemed to be for the remaining leaseholds on the lands, rather than for the freehold.

The tithe records for 1839 show the same pieces of land from the advertisement as being owned by John Pitfield and Lord Rivers and occupied by John Pitfield. The tithe records seem to imply that Pitt-Rivers owned the Freehold and John Pitfield owned the leasehold of Pitfold farm and the other property within Burton Bradstock. The tithe map shows Pitfold Farm as being in the far north of the Burton Bradstock bordering the parish of Bothenhampton.

Captain George Henry Lane Fox-Pitt-Rivers sold the whole of the Burton Bradstock estate, including all the houses and cottages in the village, in 1958. Most properties were sold to existing tenants. Pitfold Farm, consisting of 84 acres and including most of the field names that appeared in the 1838 advertisement, was one of the auction lots in the 1958 sale.

5 Joseph Pitfield was the only surviving son of Jacob Pitfield by his first marriage to Anne Chilcott.

From at least 1782 until 1785 Joseph Pitfield was the tenant at Frampton Farm, owner Francis John Browne esq

From 1786 until 1789 he rented Buckland Farm in the parish of Broadway, proprietor Lionel Damer Esq, plus further land from Mr Coker, the rector of Buckland.

In 1802 he is listed as proprietor and occupier of a modest farm in the parish of Toller Porcorum. From 1804 he is listed as the proprietor of land in Toller Porcorum occupied by Joseph Weller. It is likely he moved to Toller Porcorum in 1790 as his son John was christened there in 1791.

From 1813 he is listed as the proprietor of land called Hulls, in Toller Porcorum, which is occupied by Ezekiel Pope. In 1832 (the last year for land tax returns) he still owns Hulls, which is occupied by John Keech.

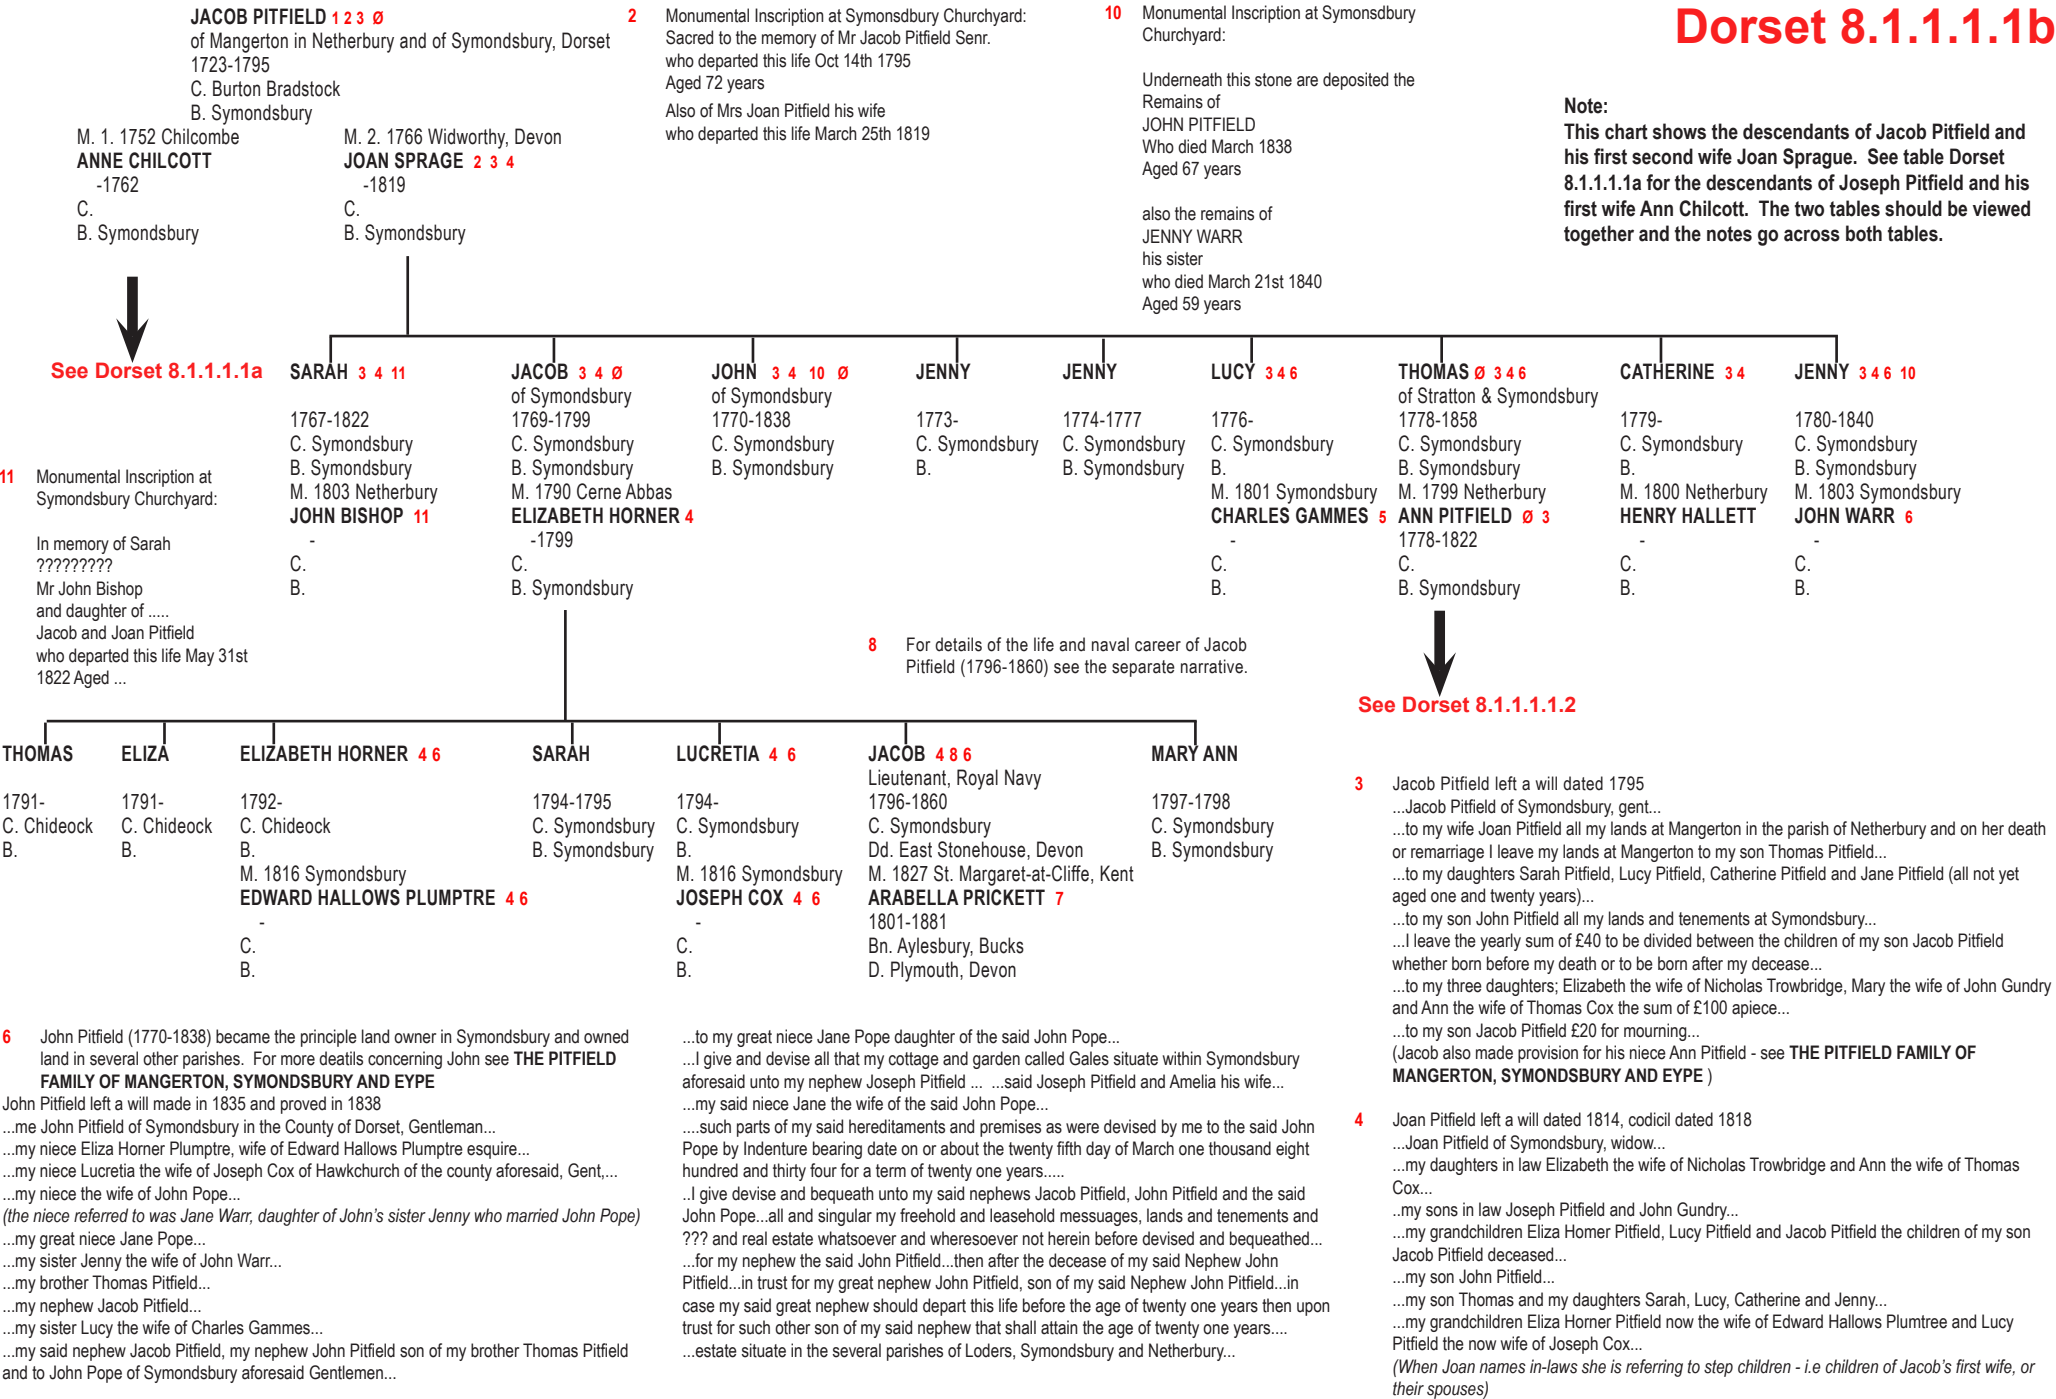

The 1844 Tithe records list Joseph Pitfield as the owner of land in excess of 65 acres in Toller Porcorum, occupied by John Saunders. This was three years after the death of Joseph Pitfield but was fairly common for the tithe records to list a deceased person as the owner of land, or the record could refer to Joseph Pitfield junior (1788-1858).

JACOB PITFIELD 1796-

Jacob Pitfield joined the Royal Navy as a Volunteer 2nd class aboard H.M.S. Centaur in September 1809. He served in the Mediterranean until August 1811 aboard the ships Centaur, Hibernia & Tigre. From September 1811-June 1815 Jacob served aboard H.H.S. Pheasant as a Volunteer 2nd class, Midshipman and Master's Mate in the Western Isles, Home Station and in Newfoundland. He was a Midshipman from June-August 1815 aboard H.M.S. Podargus on the Home Station and as Master's Mate on the same ship at St. Helena from August-December 1816. From December 1816-March 1817 he was a Midshipman aboard H.M.S. Orantes on passage home to prepare at Naval College, Chatham for his Lieutenant's examinations. He passed as a Lieutenant in June 1817 but was not commissioned immediately. Jacob served as Master's Mate from April 1818-January 1821 aboard H.M.S. Bulwark in the Mediterranean and from January 1821 to February 1824 on H.M.S. Seringapatam in the Mediterranean and West Indies where the ship was employed in the search for pirates around Cuba. As H.M.S. Seringapatam was being paid off in February 1824 Jacob was recommended for promotion by Sir Samuel Warren, under whom he had served for six years. He served as Midshipman and Mate aboard H.M.S. Maidstone from March-September 1827 off the coast of Africa, during which time the ship captured two brigs with slaves on board bound for Brazil. In September 1824 Jacob was finally granted a commission and served as Lieutenant aboard H.M.S. Bann, a 20 gun sloop, but was paid off at Chatham in June 1825. His next posting was in December 1826 when he joined H.M.S. Ramillies, 74 guns, under Captain Hugh Pigot, as supernumary Lieutenant, on the Downs Station. He served three years on Ramillies, employed on the coastal blockade of Kent. During this time he married Arabella Prickett, a St. Margaret-at-Cliffe (nr. Dover) in 1827. The marriage entry states that Jacob Pitfield was of the parish of Ringwould, close to Dover. Jacob was paid off from Ramillies in January 1830. In December 1830 he joined the Coast Guard as a Lieutenant and served for eight years, until July 1838, at Saltburn and on the east coast of Yorkshire. In 1841 Jacob and Arabella Pitfield were living in a cottage in Symondsbury - Jacob's occupation was given as Lieutenant Royal Navy, half pay.

JOSEPH EDWARD CHILCOTT PITFIELD 1788-1858

Joseph Edward Chilcott Pitfield was christened in 1788 at Buckland Ripers, Dorset, son of Joseph and Mary Pitfield of Frampton, Buckland Ripers and Symondsbury. Joseph joined the Royal Navy in 1807, two years after the Battle of Trafalgar but at a time when England was still at war against Napoleon. Joseph's first posting was as Master's Mate aboard HMS Prosperine, a 45 gun frigate under the command of Captain Charles Otter. At the beginning of 1809 Prosperine was stationed off the port of Toulon in the Mediterranean, to watch the movements of the French fleet. On the 27th February the two 40 gun frigates Penelope and Pauline sailed out to chase Prosperine away. In the early hours of 28th February 1809 there was a brief engagement in which the Prosperine had two men killed and ten wounded before she surrendered to the French frigates and her crew taken prisoner.

Joseph was held prisoner at the French fort at Verdun, where all naval offers were held, as well as English citizens from all parts of France who had been detained at the outbreak of war, known as détenus. The gentlemen prisoners were not kept closely confined, and were able to take lodgings in the town and come and go about the town and take walks in the country of up to three miles away, if they had obtained a permit to do so. Officers were held under parole and gave their word not to escape and were paid a "wage" by their captors.

There were a number of escapes from Verdun. Recaptured escapees could be sent to prisons elsewhere, where conditions were far harsher.

Joseph E. C. Pitfield remained a prisoner until he made his escape on the 21st December 1810, along with another Masters Mate by the name of David Littlejohn, of HMS Shannon. Unfortunately I have been unable to find out any details of Joseph's escape. Joseph must have made a fairly speeding return to England because on 9th March 1811 he joined HMS Boyne, under Captain Hanchett. His naval record shows he was discharged from HMS Proserpine the previous day – after serving for 3 years 4 months 1 week and 3 days. There is no mention of him being a prisoner of the French for about half of this period.

After returning to England Joseph served as Master's Mate aboard the ships Boyne, Ville de Paris and Impregnable in the English Channel until 1815. In November 1815 he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant and was appointed to HMS Superb. During 1816 a squadron of ships, including Superb, set out to put an end to the trade in European slaves that was being conducted from Algiers. On 27th August 1816 a battle was fought in which the enemy fleet and much of the town of Algiers was destroyed. The Superb had eight men killed and 84 wounded. Joseph continued serving aboard HMS Superb in the Mediterranean until paid off in October 1818. His last appointment was in December 1820 aboard HMS Grasshopper at Portsmouth and Newfoundland, where he served for about twelve months. Joseph did not receive any further naval commissions and returned to Symondsbury where he continued to receive a Lieutenant's half pay from the Admiralty. In 1827 he married Amelia Stone neé Perham of Bothenhampton. In 1838 they were left a cottage called "Gales" in Symondsbury by Joseph's uncle John Pitfield (1770-1838) in his will. Joseph and Amelia continued living in Symondsbury. Amelia died in 1849 and Joseph died in 1858.

1 As outlined in THE PITFIELD FAMILY OF MANGERTON, SYMONDSBURY AND EYPE which appears between Table 8.1.1.1 and 8.1.1.1.1 Thomas Pitfield (1778-1858) married his first cousin Ann Pitfield (1788-1822).

Ann sold her lands at North End to Thomas's brother John Pitfield (1770-1838) and the couple settled on the farm at Mangerton that Thomas had inherited from his father Jacob Pitfield (1723-1795).

In 1829 Thomas Pitfield of Mangerton Farm advertised in the Dorset County Chronicle an auction for the sale of all his animals, farm implements, machines and wagons etc as he was "about to decline business". Thomas sold the farm to his brother John Pitfield (1770-1838). The 1831 Dorset Poll Book lists John Pitfield as the freeholder of Mangerton Farm and John Nicholls as the occupier. John Nicholls (c1804-) was the husband of Thomas's daughter Elizabeth. Upon the death of John Pitfield in 1838 Mangerton Farm, along with much other property in Symondsbury and Burton Bradstock, was auctioned by John Pitfield of Eype (1800-1854) and John Pope, two of the beneficiaries under the will of John Pitfield (1770-1838). The farm was described as consisting of 72 acres and occupied by John S Nicholls. Mangerton farm was purchased by William Way esq.

At the time of the 1841 census Thomas Pitfield (1778-1858) and his daughter Susan Pitfield were living in the household of Elizabeth Nicholls neé Pitfield (another of Thomas's daughters) and her husband John Nicholls who were farming at Hincknowle in the parish of Netherbury.

At the time of the 1851 census Susan Pitfield was a governess in the parish of Compton Valence. I have been unable to find Thomas in the 1851 census but at the time of his burial in 1858 he was described as of the parish of Stratton, Dorset. It is possible that Thomas Pitfield was living at Stratton Farm House, the farm of William Chick brother to Thomas Chick who had married Sarah Pitfield. In 1851 Sarah Chick, widow, was living in William Chick's household with two children and Mary Pitfield (1806-1860) was a visitor there.

The descendants of John Pitfold the Younger and Anne Zouche - to be read in conjunction with Table Dorset 9 & 9.1

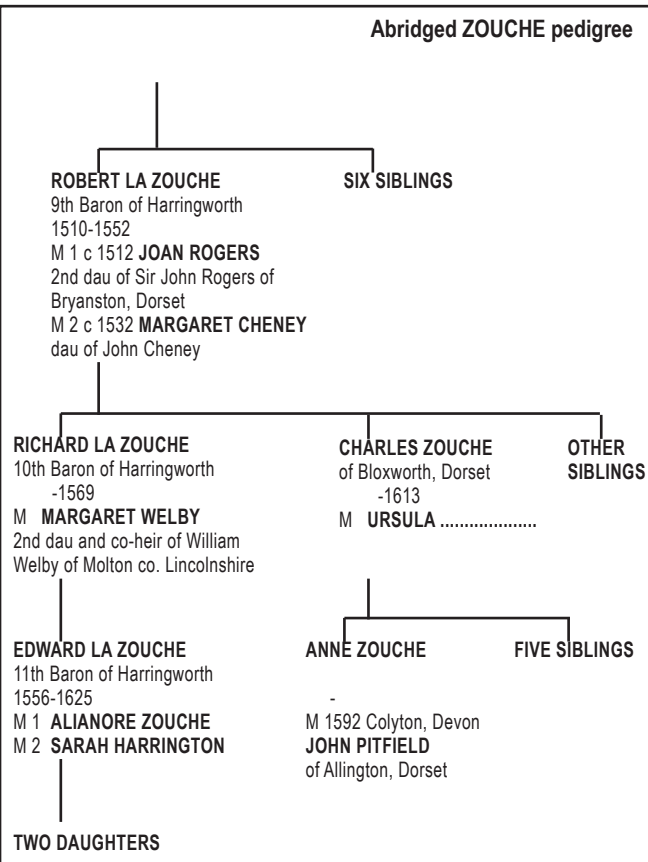

JOHN PITFOLD THE YOUNGER

was the ninth son of Robert Pitfold (-1586) of Allington. John married in 1592 to Anne Souche (sic) at Colyton, Devon. John was described as of Lyme Regis whilst Anne was described as Gentlewomen. Anne was the daughter of Charles and Ursula Zouche. Charles Zouche was the brother of George La Zouche the 10th Baron Harringworth (-1613) and the uncle of Edward La Zouche, 11th Baron (1556-1625) a member of the Privy Council and a Commissioner at the trial of Mary Queen of Scots, where he was the only one to speak out against the judgement and subsequent sentence of death. Charles Zouche was of the parish of Bloxworth, Dorset where two of his children were christened and it is likely he is the same Charles Souche (sic) who was buried at Bridport in 1613.

The Zouche family had extensive land holdings with Charles Zouche owning a portion of Marsh Park in Wincanton, Somerset. In deeds referring to Marsh Park Charles Zouche is referred to as gent of Shaftesbury, Dorset in 1584, of London in 1586 and as of Bradpole, Dorset in 1596. It seems likely that Charles gave some of his lands in Wincanton to his daughter and son-in-law as can be seen from the following reference.

2 Dec 1596

(Calendar of Patent Rolls, 39 Elizabeth C 66/1464 membrane 12 – National Archives)

I have found few references to John and Anne but those that exist refer to them being of the parish of Allington, Dorset. The Bridport burial register lists John Pitfold of Allington, 1629 (although there is a chance this burial refers to John The Elder) and Anne Pitfold of Allington, widow, 1631.

In 1619 John Pitfold, a sailor aged 50, is noted in a list of mariners in the Devon parishes of Withycombe Raleigh and Woodbury. The date of birth c1569 could fit with the likely date of birth of John The Younger, but there is some doubt that John the Sailor is John The Younger - for more information see Dorset 9.2

The christenings of most of the children of John Pitfold the Younger have not been traced but other sources have been used to attribute those shown on Table 9. Chief amongst these are the wills of Richard (1653), Robert (1657) and Charles (1680) details of which are included on the pedigree charts.

It is possible that John and Anne were the parents of John Pitfield of Colaton Raleigh (-1661), but there is a lot of doubt concerning this John's parentage - for more details see Dorset 9.2

It is interesting to note that the four children that are known to belong to John and Anne, and who survived childhood, all settled outside Dorset. They were also well to do and might have inherited wealth from their Zouche ancestry (this is just conjecture).

RICHARD PITFIELD OF ST. BOTLOPH, LONDON 1625(?) -1653

Richard settled in the parish of St. Botolph in London where he was a ship's chandler. There are references to him purchasing property in Essex with his brother Charles Pitfield in 1638.

In 1647 a Richard Pitfield of St. Botolph, merchant, made a deposition in which he gave his aged as 22 years. This would give a birth date of circa 1625, considerably later than his siblings. It is possible that this Richard, born c1625, could have been a son of the elder Richard, although no other proof has been found. Richard made a verbal will in which he left most of his estate to his brother Charles.

ROBERT PITFIELD OF WESTHAM, SUSSEX -1657

Robert settled at Westham in Sussex where he described himself as a Gent. He married and had nine children.

EDITH PITFIELD OF MOUNTFIELD, SUSSEX -

Edith also settled in Sussex near her brother Robert. She married twice.

CHARLES PITFIELD OF HOXTON, MIDDLESEX 1599-1680

Parentage Heralds Visitation of Middlesex in 1663 inquired into the ancestry of Charles Pitfield of Hoxton, Co. Middlesex. Using information supplied by Charles himself it states that Charles was:- the son of John Pitfield of Allington, co Dorset the 7th son of Robert Pitfold of Allington and Anne Zouche, daughter of Charles Zouche, brother to Edward, Lord Zouche.

Some of this information seems to be inaccurate as John Pitfield was the 9th son of Robert Pitfold whilst Charles Zouche appears to have been the brother of George La Zouche, the 10th Baron of Harringworth, (-1569) rather than Edward La Zouche the 11th Baron (1556-1625).

2/3/1599 Christening of Charles, son of John Pitfield is noted in the register at Symondsburry, Dorset.

The christening date of 2nd March matches the known birthday of Charles. Christening records for Charles' sibling have not been traced – other documents and references have been used to establish his siblings.

Little is known about the early life of Charles Pitfield but it would seem he had settled in London by the 1630's. He lived through the turbulent years of the English Civil War, the Commonwealth Period and the Restoration of the Monarchy. It is unclear if he gave any active support to either side in the Civil War but he appears to have prospered throughout both the Commonwealth and under the restored King Charles II.

ALEXANDER PITFIELD OF HOXTON 1658-1728

Alexander Pitfield was the only surviving son of Sir Charles Pitfield. He was educated at Merchant Taylors School, Charterhouse School, and Hoxton Private School. He was admitted a Fellow Commoner of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge 25 April 1676, age seventeen, and was admitted to Lincoln's Inn 15 February 1676.

Alexander Pitfield was elected as a fellow of the Royal Society in 1684 and served on its council and as its treasurer from 1700 until his death. From the outset the Royal Society appointed Treasurers who were not men of science, as was the case with Alexander Pitfield. Amongst the archives of the Royal Society is a letter from Alexander asking Sir Christopher Wren to pay his membership fee which was overdue. Alexander translated Memoir's [sic] for a riatural history of animals, containing the anatomical descriptions of several creatures dissected by the Royal Academy of Sciences at Paris by Claude Perrault, from the French. The book was published by the Royal Society in 1688.

As his father had been, Alexander was a conscientious magistrate, and appears to have been involved in the early stages of the movement for the 'reformation of manners', for he was a signatory in 1692 to proposals from the Middlesex commission of the peace for 'methods . . . for the encouragement of informers'

He was elected as the Member of Parliament for Bridport in 1698 and was returned several times, serving in the House of Commons until 1708, when he did not stand for re-election. In the 1701 Parliament he reported and carried to the Lords a private naturalization bill. His Whig sympathies were evident in 1710 when he signed the London lieutenantcy's address condemning the Sacheverell riots. In his latter years he was taken up with schemes for poor relief in his father's parish of Shoreditch, in particular the building of a workhouse in Hoxton.

Alexander married firstly in 1680, to Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Waller, merchant of St Martin's, Ironmonger Lane, London and the couple had five children who survived infancy.

Elizabeth died in 1700 and Alexander remarried in 1702 to Dorothy, daughter of Thomas Boone of Mount Boone, near Dartmouth in Devon, widow of Robert Boddington, haberdasher of St Magnus parish in London.

His only son Charles Pitfield (1691-1715) pre-deceased Alexander when he was killed by a fall from his horse. Charles Pitfield (1691-1715) had run up debts that were a drain on the Hoxton estate.

Alexander Pitfield died on 19 Oct. 1728 and, after his body had lain 'in state' in Upholders' Hall, was buried at Shoreditch. His will, drawn up in the preceding July when he was 'somewhat indisposed in body', included bequests to the Hoxton workhouse, to a charity school and to 'the poor charity children' of the parish of St. Benet Fink, amounting in all to £350; with over £12,000 in other legacies, to his grandchildren, his 'book-keeper', 'clerk' and so on. His estate comprised of property in London and Essex, and various stocks in the Bank (where already in 1710 he had held enough to qualify for a vote in directorial elections), and in the East India and South Sea Companies.

Alexander was succeeded by his grandson Charles Pitfield (1712-1740), the son of Charles (1691-1715).

CHARLES PITFIELD 1712-1740

Charles Pitfield (1712-1740) married his cousin Dorothy Ashley, the daughter of Solomon Ashley and Winifred Pitfield, and had two daughters, Mary and Winifred.

In 1736 an inventory was made of the estate at Hoxton which at that time comprised over ninety acres, a farmhouse and several houses.

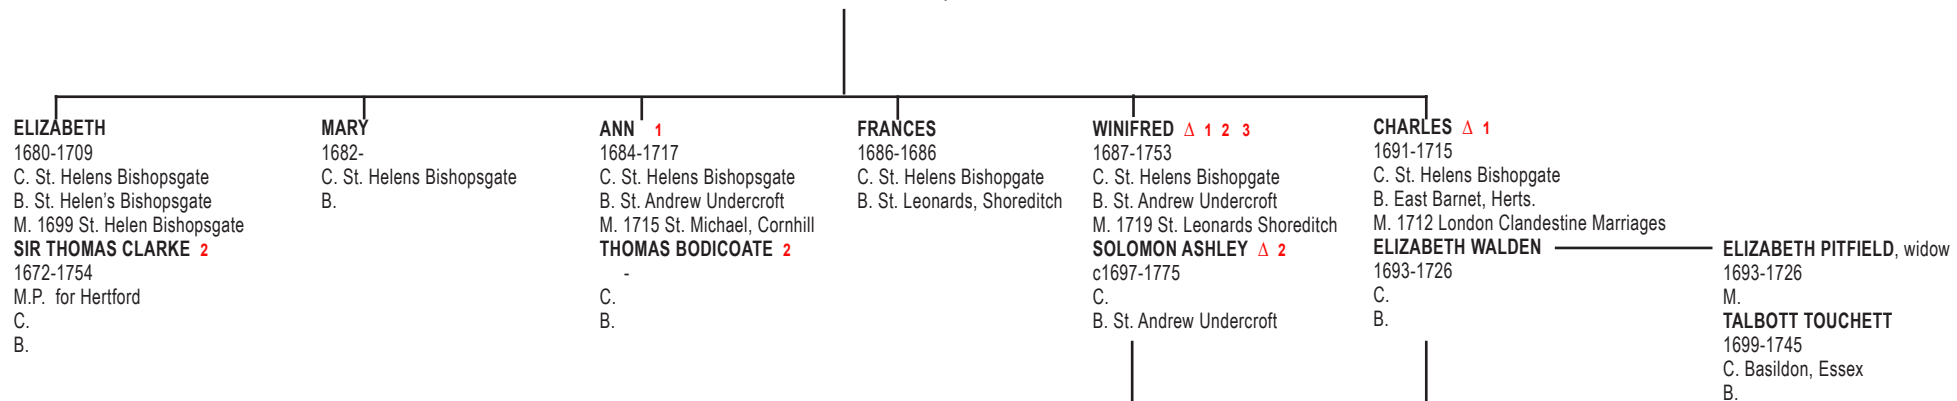

The estate was left to Mary and Winifred Pitfield when their father died aged 28. Upon the death of Winifred Pitfield, whilst still an infant, Mary Pitfield became the sole heiress.

Mary Pitfield (1740-1807) married in 1756 to Humphrey Sturt Esq, who was M.P. for Dorset from 1754-1784, by whom she had thirteen children.

The north part of the Hoxton estate was sold to pay the debts of Charles Pitfield the younger and was bought by his son-in-law Humphrey Sturt, while the remainder stayed in the ownership of Mary Sturt (nee Pitfield). Lord Allington, who was a descendant of Humphrey and Mary, was in possession of the estate when it was submitted for public action in 1917.

The "Grandmother Moore" would be Mary Moore the wife of Francis Moore - he was her second husband. Her first husband was Richard Waller. Richard and Mary Waller were the parents of Elizabeth Waller, mother of Charles Pitfield (1691-1715).

Henry Smith described as his father-in-law was the stepfather of Charles's wife Elizabeth Walden, who had married Elizabeth Walden senior, widow, in 1705.

Notes for Dorset 9.2 John Pitfold/Pitfield of Colaton Raleigh

- 1 There is some uncertainty concerning the parentage of John Pitfold/Pitfield (-1661) of the parish of Colaton Raleigh
- 2 I have shown him as the son of John Pitfold the Younger and Anne Zouche. As shown on DORSET 9 the christenings of most this couple's children have not been traced and it is possible that the couple had another son named John. Anne Zouche, a member of an aristocratic family, was from Devon and the couple married in Devon.
- 3 It is possible he was the son of John Pitfold the Elder and Priscilla Sydenham, born in 1605 - which fits well with a marriage in 1629.
- 4 There are references to a John Pitfold listed as a sailor, aged 50 in 1619, in the parishes of Woodbury and Withycombe Raleigh. These would give a date of birth of c1569, which could fit in with a likely birth date for John the Younger (his younger brother Sebastian was born 1570). However, it seems unlikely that John The Younger, a yeoman who had married into a wealthy family and whose children led successful lives, would be working as a sailor. This raises the possibility that John The Sailor was not directly descended from Robert Pitfold of Allington (c1516-1586), but was perhaps connected in another way (possibly the son of a sibling of Robert's??). John The Sailor is another possible candidate for the father of John of Colaton Raleigh,
- 5 References to John Pitfold/Pitfield of Colaton Raleigh are scarce. The parish records covering the period John was living in Colaton Raleigh are missing so I have no details of the births and deaths of his family, but there is evidence of at least five children - shown on this table.
- 6 John is known to have been living in the parish during the English Civil War, and in 1651 the Commonwealth investigated his activities during the war and found he had "...acted as a commissioner for the King and collector of Excise in the late war, and granted warrants in several parishes for payment of money on excise, on which several sums were paid him."
- 7 John Pitfield of Colaton Rawleigh left a will, made in 1652 and proved in 1661, which has not survived.
- 8 A John Pitfold is listed in the Protestation Returns of 1641 in the parish of Broadclyst - likely John Pitfield of Colaton Raleigh
- 9 In 1659 there was a legal dispute (National Archives C 7/445/62) between Charles Pitfield of Allington, Dorset (1644-1710) and his brother Henry Pitfield of Whitchurch Canonicorum, Dorset (1622-1660) and his wife Mary Pitfield (1686) - see Dorset 8.1. The answer to the Bill of Complaint was drawn up in the parish of Culliton (sic) in the county of Devon by a William Pitfield and a John Pitfield senior. I believe these to be the William Pitfield (-1712) and John Pitfold (-1661) shown here. Both John Pitfield and William Pitfield were summonsed to make depositions in the case. However depositions were not made as the complainant - Charles Pitfield (1622-1660) died soon after making the complaint. It does, however, show that some of the family in Dorset were in contact with this family in Devon - in 1659 at least.

10 Thomas Pitfield entered Merchant Taylor's School in 1638/9. The school register does not give his age but most pupils joined at around 9 years old.

In 1656, Thomas Pitfield, described as pleb, entered Hart Hall, Oxford and gained a BA there in 1659. It is likely that Thomas could not go directly to university when he left Merchant Taylors School around 1644, because of The English Civil War, and went to Oxford when the war was over.

11 Thomas Pitfield married Bridget Strong in 1664 and the couple had no children.

12 A lease, taken out in 1668, on a property in Broadclyst made to Thomas Pitfeild of St. Sidwells in Exeter, maultmaker, for ninety nine years, if he or Bridget his wife or Thomas, son of William Pitfield of East Budleigh, gentleman, (see Dorset 9.2.2) so long live

13 Thomas Pitfield was assessed for six hearths in tax records of 1671 in St. Sidwell and was the overseer of the poor, and paid Church Rates, there in 1666.

14 No burial for Thomas Pitfield has been found but he probably outlived Bridget as her burial record describes her as the wife of Thomas.

15 1660 Poll Tax in parish of Ide - George Pitfield and his wife listed. There are no Pitfield entries in the Ide parish records.

George Pitfield assessed for one hearth in tax records of 1671 in St. Sidwell and described as one of the poor of the parish. Only entries in the parish records are christenings of two children and burial of one of them. No marriage for George, or the burials of George and his wife, have been found.

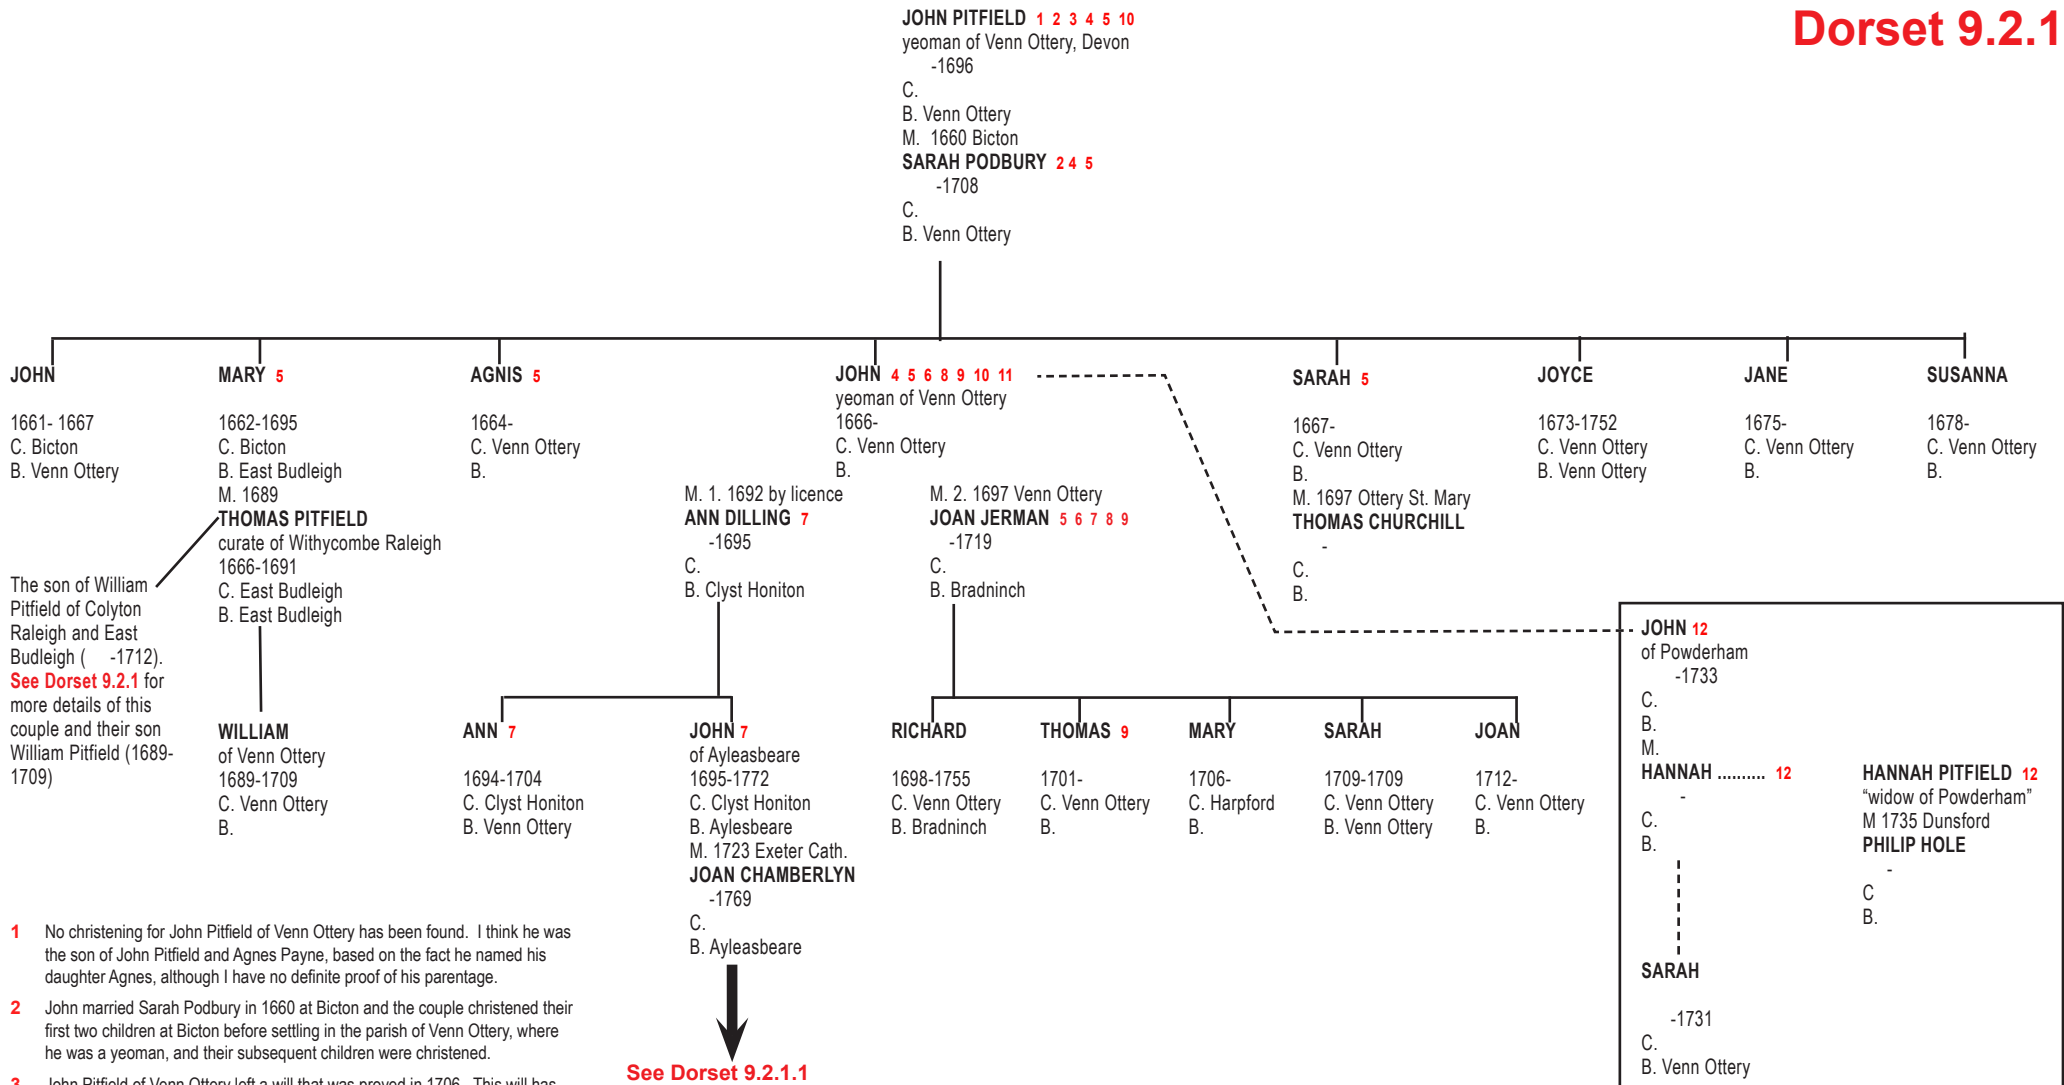

16 No christening for John Pitfield of Venn Ottery has been found. I think he was the son of John Pitfield and Agnes Payne, based on the fact he named his daughter Agnes, although I have no definite proof of his parentage.

17 Exeter marriage licence 1662. Richard Balster of Colyton Raleigh and Joanna Pittfield of the same.

18 1668 William Pitfield and Thomas Pitfield paid Church Rates at Colaton Raleigh

19 1708 William Pitfield, gent paid Church Rates at East Budleigh.

Dorset 9.2.1

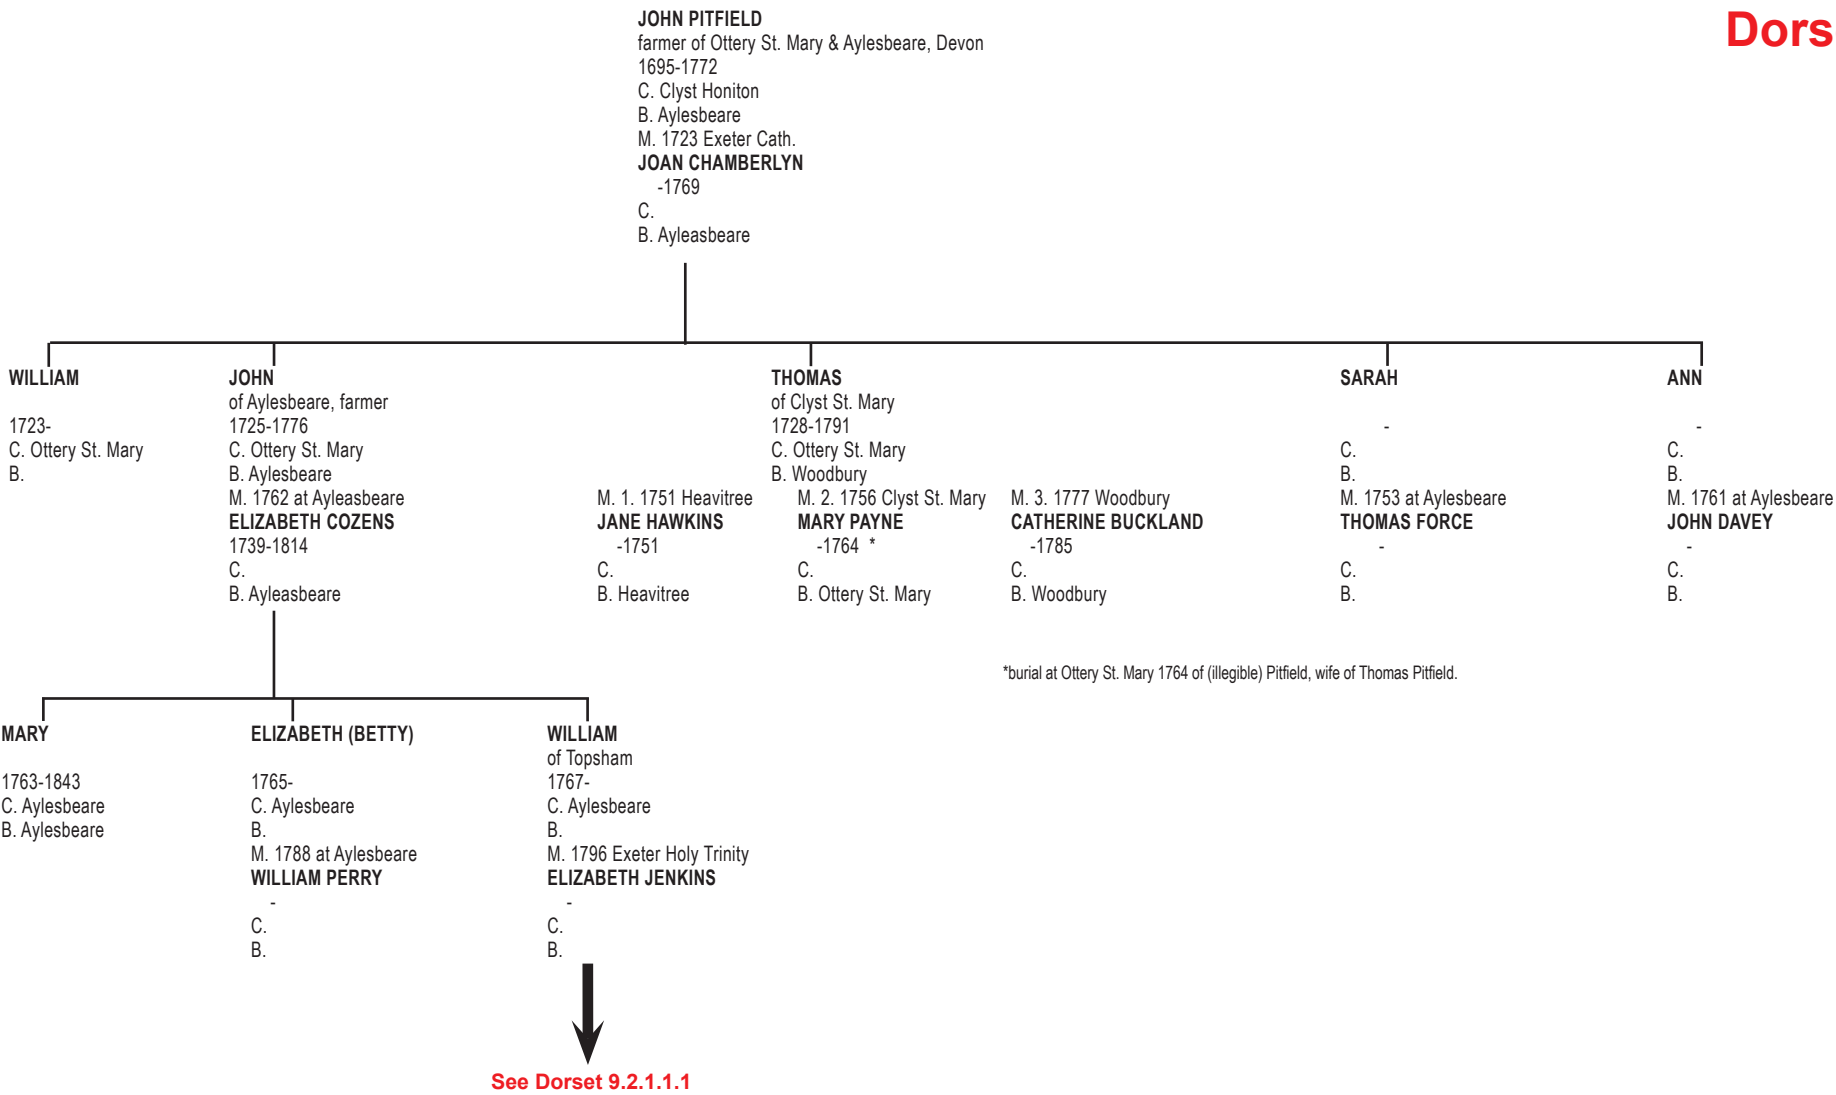

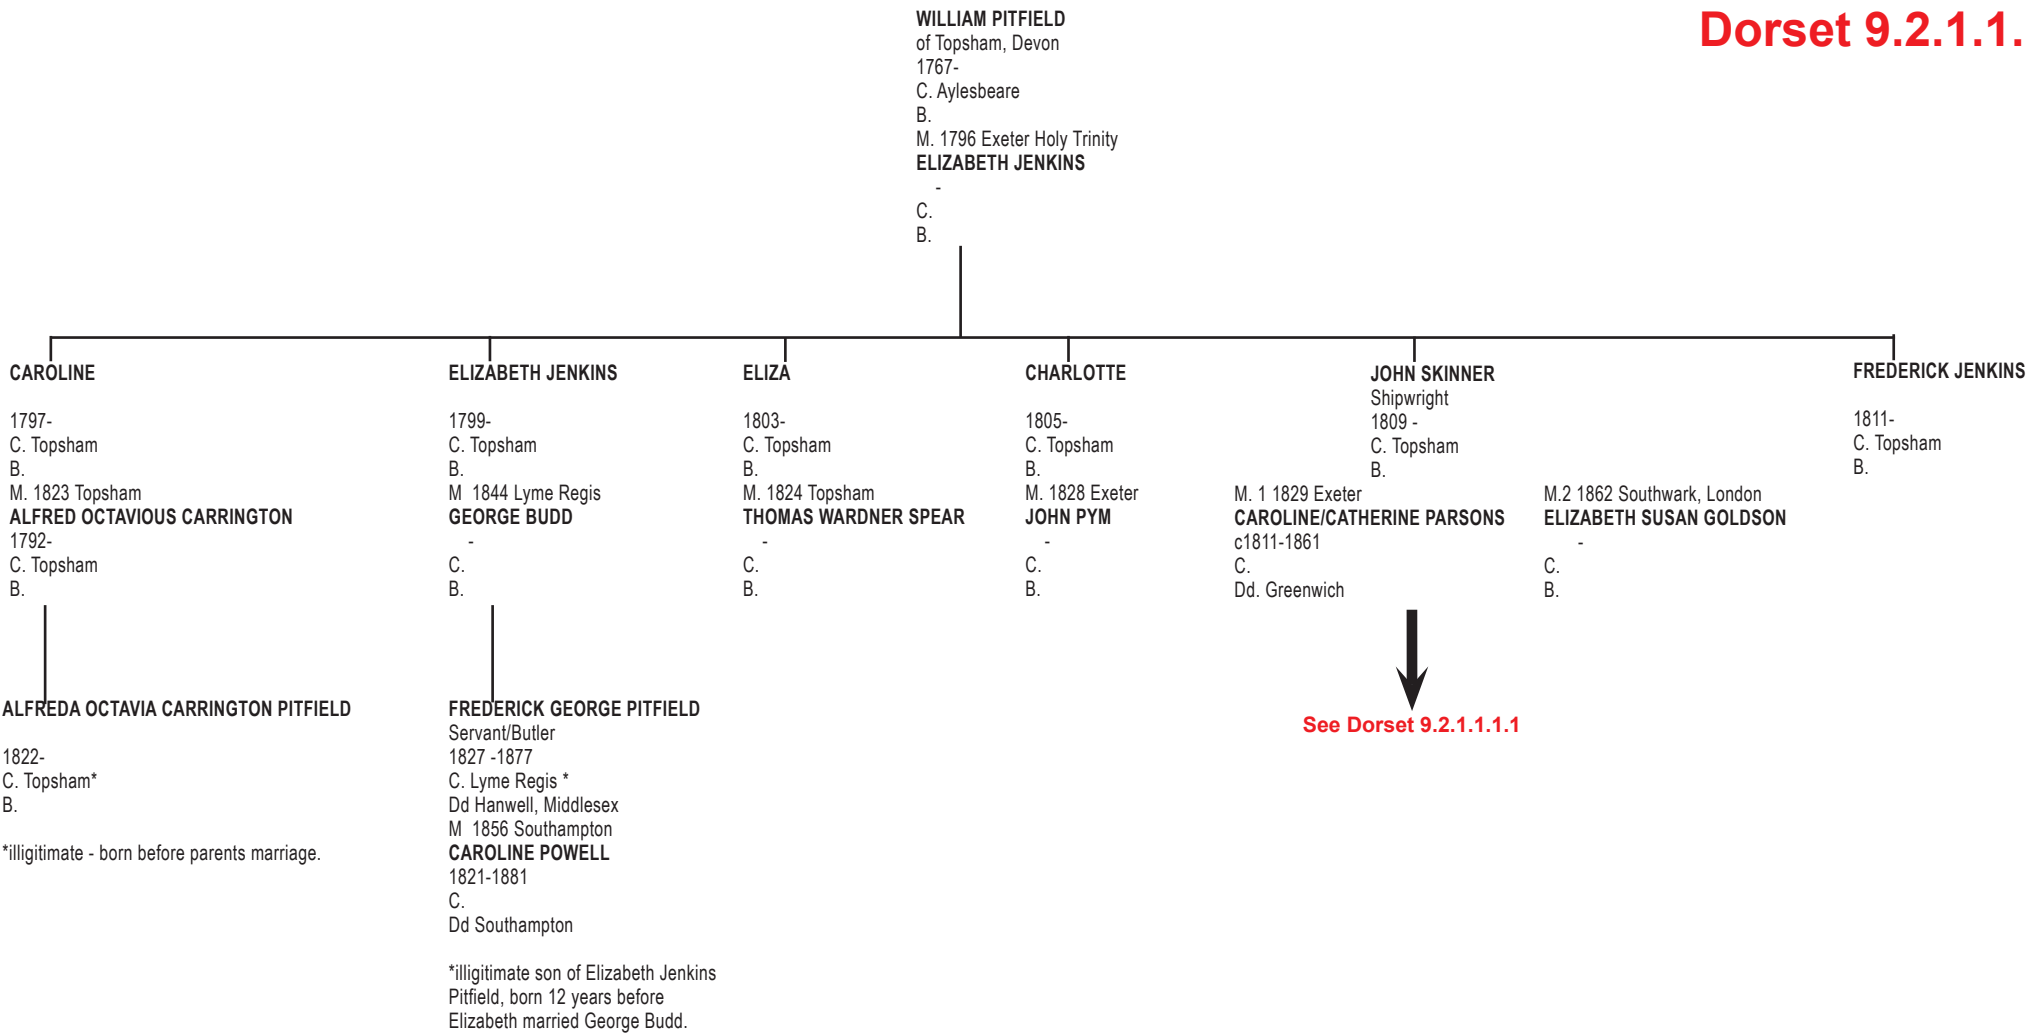

- 1 No christening for John Pitfield of Venn Ottery has been found. I think he was the son of John Pitfield and Agnes Payne, based on the fact he named his daughter Agnes, although I have no definite proof of his parentage.
 - 2 John married Sarah Podbury in 1660 at Bicton and the couple christened their first two children at Bicton before settling in the parish of Venn Ottery, where he was a yeoman, and their subsequent children were christened.
 - 3 John Pitfield of Venn Ottery left a will that was proved in 1706. This will has not survived. It was unusual, but not unknown, for a will to be proved ten years after a person's death.
 - 4 A court case of 1707 John Pitfield v Thomas Dowdell (National Archives C 6/550/338) Bill of Complaint by John Pitfield of Heavitree, yeoman refers to an indenture for a lease of 99 years on land and premises in Venn Ottery in 1662 for the lives of John Pitfield, the complainant's father, Sarah Pitfield the complainant's mother and one Agnes Potbury. John stated his father had died some nine years previously and his mother, Sarah, still lived.
- Another case in November 1708 John Pitfield v John Dowdell (National Archives C 6/550/341) John the complainant is referred to as "of Venn Ottery, yeoman" and refers to the same lease as the case of 1707 and states his father John Pitfield had died nine years since and his mother Sarah Pitfield had died a quarter of a year previously.

- See Dorset 9.2.1.1

- 5 A further case in 1707 - Richard Jerman v John Pitfield. Richard Jerman of Bradnich was the father of Joan Jerman, the wife of John Pitfield. The case refers to John Pitfield and his widow Sarah and their children John, Mary, Agnes and Sarah. In the answer given by John Pitfield (possibly given the following year 1708) he states that his mother has died since the Bill of Complaint was written.
- 6 In a case of 1709 (National Archives C8/629/4) Richard Jerman stated that his daughter "Johan intermarried the Complainant John Pitfield without the consent approbation and good liking of the said Defendant Richard Jerman"
- 7 John Pitfield junior was married firstly to Ann Dilling and the couple had two children christened in the parish of Clyst Honiton. After the death of his wife in 1695 and his father in 1696 John settled in Venn Ottery where he married Joan Jerman/German in 1697.

- 8 When Joan Pitfield neé Jerman died in 1719 she was buried in her home parish of Bradninch.
 - 9 Thomas, the son of John and Joan was apprenticed to Richard Pratt of Bradninch, cordwainer in 1719.
 - 10 London Gazette - Issue 5880, published on the 23 August 1720.
John Pitfield, late of Ven Ottery, Yeoman. – Insolvent Debtor
 - 11 A John Pitfield left a will proved in 1733, in which he is described as John Pitfield of Powderham The will has not survived. There are no Pitfield entries in the Powderham registers and no burial of a John Pitfield c.1733 has been found in any register. It would appear that John of Powderham was married to Hannah, as Hannah Pitfield “widow of Powderham” married in 1735.
- It is possible that John of Powderham is the same John who was married to Ann Dilling and Joan Jerman, having moved from Venn Ottery after becoming insolvent and that Hannah was his third wife. However there is no proof of this and no marriage of a John Pitfield to a Hannah has been traced.

William Pitfield (-1712) was referred to as William Pitfield of Colaton Raleigh in a number of documents. Amongst these is an entry in Alumui Oxonienses (see Note 6)

There are no early records for the parish of Colaton Raleigh but William's children were christened in the neighbouring parish of East Budleigh. Little else is known concerning William, but it would seem he must have been a person of some standing to send a son to Oxford.

In 1659 there was a legal dispute (National Archives C 7/445/62) between Charles Pitfield of Allington, Dorset (1644-1710) and his brother Henry Pitfield of Whitchurch Canaanicorum, Dorset (1622-1660) and his wife Mary Pitfield (1686) - see Dorset 8.1. The answer to the Bill of Complaint was drawn up in the parish of Culliton (sic) in the county of Devon by a William Pitfield and a John Pitfield senior. I believe the William Pitfield is the one shown on this table and that John Pitfield senior was his father, shown on Dorset 9.2.

- 1 In 1708 a Joan Ranson had an illegitimate child christened, at Harpford, as William Pitfield. This seems to imply that the father's name was Pitfield. I have not been able to establish who the father was, but it is likely he was someone shown on the Dorset 9.2 charts.
- 2 There are several documents that refer "William Pitfield otherwise Ransom, husbandman" of Honiton, Devon.
- 3 Willaim Pitfield/Ransome married to Sarah and the couple had two daughters who were christened with the name Pitfield.

- 1 Sebastian was the youngest son of Robert Pitfold of Allington and the only child whose baptism has been traced. He was left lands in Allington by his father and by his brother Thomas Pitfolde.
- 2 A letter, dated 1605, held at the British Library, refers to Captain Sebastian Pitfolde of the ship Recompence of Weymouth who was to be rewarded and compensated for his part in capturing a Spanish ship and conveying it to Plymouth.
- 3 Sebastian married Mary Mountier, one of two daughters of Lawrence Mountier, who owned land in Ludwell within the parishes of Donhead St. Mary, Wiltshire. The two daughters, Jane and Mary, were co-heirs of Lawrence who appears to have been deceased by 1606 when "Sebastian Pitfield and Mary his wife" and "Edward Elliott and Jane his wife" are named in deeds and indentures relating to Lawrence's lands.
- 4 A document of 1608 (KB 27/1411/1 - National Archives) refers to Sebastian Pitfold of Portland and Sebastain Pitfold of Bridport.
- 5 Sebastian died in 1613 and an inquisition post mortem held on 14th April 1615 referred to him as "Gent" and listed lands he held in the parish of Allington. It named his widow as Mary (then living at Portland) and stated that Robert Pitfold, aged 5 years 2 months and 28 days was his son and heir and the heir of the body of Mary, wife of Sebastian.
- 6 It is likely that Robert was bought up by his mother in her home parish of Donhead St. Mary, Wiltshire. He certainly settled there after his marriage to Mary Knapton, who was the daughter of Renaldo Knapton of Donhead St. Mary. The will of Renaldo Knapton made in 1639 names his "son-in law Pitfield". The baptism of only one child of Robert Pitfield and Mary Knapton (Sebastian) has been traced but other sources have been used to attribute four further children to the couple.
- 7 Thomas Pitfield of the parish of St. Mary-le-Savoy in the Strand, London - made a verbal will proved in 1665
"Thomas Pitfield late of the parish of St. Mary-le- Savoy in the Strand in the County of Middlesex, haberdasher" "I give to my father" "to Ferdinando Meggs his children" "my brothers Sebastian and Renaldo Pitfield" "my brothers in law Harry and William Fisher" "my kinsman Justice Pitfield of Hogsdon and his wife" (Charles Pitfield of Hoxton - see Dorset 9) "my kinsman Tristram Knapton" "my kinsman William Meggs" "Francis Pitfield his relict"
- 8 Renaldo Pitfield was referred to as "Gent" and owned land in the parish of Beccles in Suffolk. He was apprenticed to a grocer in London in 1652 (see 16 below). He appears to have been established in Suffolk by 1661 when he married at Barnsham. In 1679 payments were made from the Treasury to Renaldo Pitfield of Beccles, for the quartering of soldiers. This seems to suggest that Renaldo was an Inn Keeper.

- 10 No marriage of Penelope to Renaldo has been traced. She had been married previously (her late husband is referred to in the will of Renaldo) and remarried at least twice after the death of Renaldo Pitfield. She married in 1700 to Philip Hayward. A document dated 1709 refers to .. Penelope then the wife of Nicholas Edgar of Weston, gent, the late widow of Renaldo Pitfield of Beccles, gent...
- 11 Katherine was alive in 1713 when she was the plaintiff in a case bought against Nicholas Edgar, Penelope his wife and John Elmy regarding the personal estate of Renaldo Pitfield.
- 12 Sebastian Pitfield married Christian Meadon at Chaldon Herring and they had seven children christened in Chaldon Herring and Broadmayne before the family settled in Fordington in about 1685. Only two children survived Sebastian - Charles and Samuel. Sebastian's son Renaldo died and was buried at Beccles, Suffolk whilst visiting his uncle. THE PARISH OF FORDINGTON AND THE PITFIELDS by Hugh Pitfield of Hampshire and Michael Pitfield of Buckinghamshire, 2016

The founding father of the Fordington Pitfields was Sebastian Pitfield (1632-1702), the son of Robert of Donhead St. Mary, Wiltshire. Sebastian married Christian Meadon (1641-1715) and they lived in the two parishes of Chaldon Herring and Broadmayne, before moving to Fordington sometime between 1685 and 1695. Sebastian may well have decided to settle in the parish because his uncle, Renaldo Knapton, was already living and prospering there. Sebastian only had two children who outlived him and only his son Charles Pitfield (1666-1743) married and had children. The Knaptons continued to be prominent in Dorchester, Renaldo's son Thomas and his grandson, another Thomas Knapton, were Governors of the town gaol and had homes in Fordington.

Sebastian Pitfield's will shows him to have been a man of some wealth. His son Charles was Churchwarden of Fordington three times - 1726, 1730 and 1731. His accounts survive.

Early generations of the Pitfield family in Fordington prospered and were described as 'yeoman' They invariably had large families, as was common at the time, and thus the Pitfield family in Fordington grew very substantially over the 18th and 19th centuries.

Joseph Pitfield of West Knighton was wealthy, described as being a 'yeoman farmer' holding land in Bere Regis. In his will he left a large estate divided between his wife and the children of his brother Sebastian of Fordington.

By the mid/late 1700s, much of the family were less prosperous and many of the menfolk found work only as agricultural labourers and some continued as such well into the 19th century. Others had developed skills or professions such as masonry, tailoring and hairdressing.

In 1835 Fordington was incorporated into the enlarged Borough of Dorchester and it had the dubious distinction of being the poorest and most overcrowded of the four Dorchester parishes, containing nearly half the Borough population, with 2,986 souls listed in the 1851 census, 35 of whom were Pitfields (with another 6 Pitfields listed elsewhere in Dorchester). A Board of Health report of 1848 described conditions there:

"in High Fordington, for want of means of cleansing, typhus fever has not been absent for the last three years, and in Lower Fordington there is a crowded and pauper population dwelling in the midst of filth."

A more graphic account was given by the Reverend Henry Moule, vicar of Fordington, in a letter published by the Dorset County Chronicle, at the time of the cholera epidemic of 1854:

At the East end of Dorchester, then, and within a space that can scarcely exceed five acres, about 1,100 persons are congregated in a set of dwellings, many of which are of the most wretched description, and utterly destitute of the ordinary conveniences of life. This space consists of two great divisions, Mill Street, on the one side of a Mill Pond, and Holloway Row, together with Cuckold Row and Standfast, on the other side. - In Mill Street, the floors of the houses lie considerably below the highest elevation of the pond, and some of them even below its bed. The other division consists of two, and in one part of it, of three rows of cottages, rising one above the other, from the bank of the Mill Pond, on the other side of a chalk hill. In Holloway Row, about twenty of the cottages have a small patch of ground, about 18 feet square, and a pathway and lane in front of them. They have also a little space hollowed out of the hill behind them. But, with these exceptions, scarcely a cottage in this division (and the same may be said of many in Mill Street) has a single inch of ground beyond that on which it stands. Their filth is consequently cast either into the open and wretched drain in the street, or into the Mill Pond, from which, moreover, the people draw most of their water for washing, and sometimes, even for culinary purposes, "the conveniences" of more than half these 1,100 people empty themselves together with the filth from the County Gaol, and of some portion of the other three Parishes of Dorchester. The population, with few exceptions, consists of mechanics, labourers, and paupers from this and many other parishes. Vice, in its worst forms, abounds amongst them.

This chronic overcrowding was caused by the building of tenements in the early 1800's, as an outlet for the poorer inhabitants of the increasing population of Dorchester, on the only piece of freehold land available in the area. The land was owned by the Duchy of Cornwall, which since the death of Prince Albert had become poorly managed. In these circumstances several Pitfield families lived in Mill Street, Holloway Row, Cuckolds Row and elsewhere in Fordington, throughout the nineteenth century. Their fortunes had changed from the time of their yeoman ancestors and those who still had farming connections were employed as agricultural labourers. Others worked in the iron foundry or were general labourers or mason's labourers, whilst their womenfolk were engaged in domestic service or took in laundry to supplement the family income. Illegitimacy rates were high in such areas, including amongst the Pitfields

The conditions in Fordington were ripe for the spread of cholera, which was introduced by the intake of unwelcome strangers to Dorchester in 1854. After the departure of the garrison to the Crimean war, the Dorchester Barracks were left empty, and it was proposed that they should be used to house convicts from the overcrowded Millbank penitentiary in London. Despite the concern and protests of the Mayor and Aldermen of Dorchester regarding the risk of the spread of cholera, which was rife in the London prison, 700 prisoners were transferred to Dorchester on August 15th. On August 24th Rev. Moule found that two women in Holloway Row had been employed to wash for the convicts. Moule pleaded in vain with the Mayor to have the laundry removed, and within a few days a child living 60 yards from one of the women's cottages was taken ill and died. In the weeks that followed there were at least 30 more deaths from cholera, with many more taken ill. Although no members of the Pitfield family were amongst those who died it is probable that they were affected to some extent by the outbreak.

A local Board of Health had been set up in Dorchester in 1853, and after the cholera epidemic it implemented street cleaning and drew up plans for deep sewerage and a new water supply. Due to the efforts of the Board, and the campaigning of the Rev. and Mrs. Moule, conditions in Fordington gradually improved during the second half of the nineteenth century.

George Pitfield (1815-1874) prospered as publican of the Union Arms in Cuckold's Row, Fordington. His son George (1844-1917) became publican of the Bull's Head and was succeeded by his son George John (1871-1947). The elder George was a keen pigeon breeder and won many prizes and cups at national events such as the Crystal Palace Show in 1896. George John was unsuccessful - family lore says he drank the profits. He moved his family to Uxbridge in Middlesex in 1906 and set up a small business as a barber. He had been an apprentice to his uncle Edwin earlier in his life. The Bulls Head still exists, as does the building that was the Union Arms.

Edwin Pitfield (1855-1922) was a successful master hairdresser with premises in High West Street (they still exist). He was barber to Thomas Hardy and described seeing the first Mrs Hardy freewheeling her bicycle down the street with her skirts flapping behind her. Edwin's daughter Hetty was murdered by her husband after she discovered him having an affair, He, Lewis Owen, then committed suicide.

Another anecdote relates to the huge stone on the corner of Fordington Square opposite the church. This stone is still there but in former times it was highly polished. This was because all the lads of the area, including very many Pitfield boys used to gather there in summer evenings and sit on the stone. This had the effect of smoothing and polishing it. It became known as 'The Pitfield Stone'.

The coming of the railways brought further opportunities for work including for several Pitfields. Resulting mobility meant that families could look further afield for homes and work, thus the Fordington Pitfields began to spread out to other parts of the country with many being drawn to London and the South East.

Others made their future even further afield and emigrated to the New World and the antipodes. Many of those who left have been traced and have been connected to the family tree. Other members of the family had criminal tendencies and Mary Pitfield was transported to Australia in 1842.

In common with most families, the Pitfields lost sons in the First World War. One such was very unusual - an early airman, Henry, Air Mechanic 1st Class, in the Royal Navy Air Services on HMS President. He died in 1918 at the age of 19, son of Henry and Kate Pitfield who were by this time living in Wimborne. He features in the War Memorial Book at Wimborne Minster.

The Fordington parish records contain more Pitfield entries than in any of the other Dorset parishes, due to several couples having ten or more children. Sebastian Pitfield (1757-1815) had ten children and 28 Pitfield grandchildren christened at Fordington, although a fairly high child mortality rate meant that a number did not survive. In 1871 there were 43 Pitfields listed in the census for Fordington. During the next ten years there was a marked reduction in this number, with many female Pitfields marrying and other members of the family moving out of the parish. The last christening of a Pitfield at Fordington was in 1916, although some members of the family were buried there as late as the 1940's and there are still Pitfields living in nearby Dorchester today.

Michael Pitfield is an active contributor to the Dorset Online Parish Clerks website and has posted details of the Fordington Pitfield family along with a number of photographs - <http://www.opcdorset.org/>

3 Land tax records 1804 - Sebastian Pitfield occupied a cottage owned by William Iwerne.

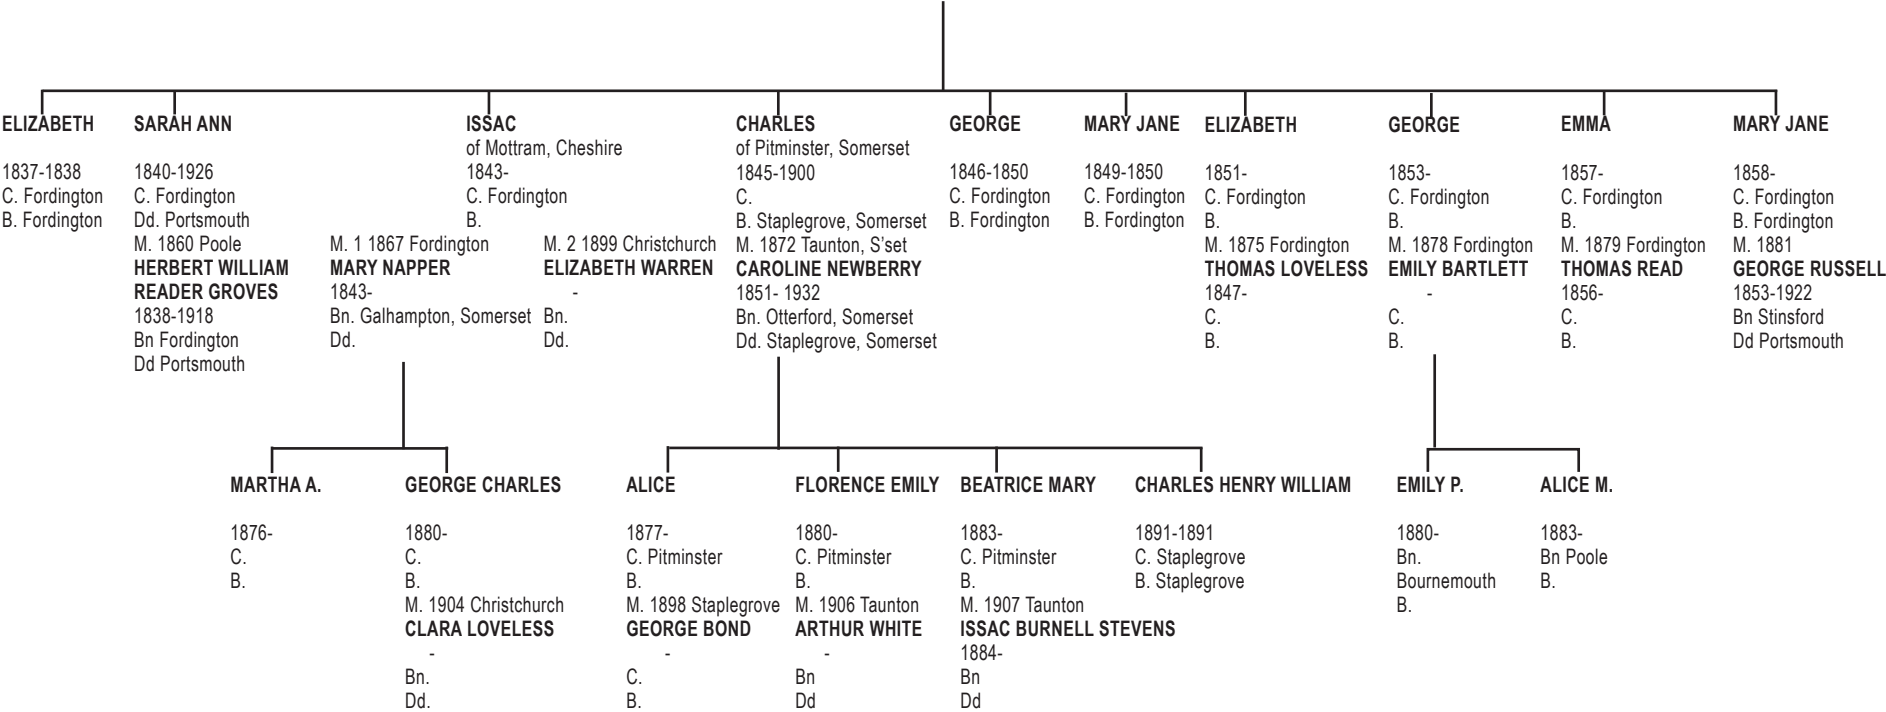

¹ Mary Pitfield, widow, was listed in the 1841 Census at Mill Street, Fordington, Dorset, England. Mary was tried 18th October 1842 at Dorchester Quarter Sessions for receiving stolen goods. She was found guilty and was sentenced to be transported for 7 years. Departed London aboard ship Margaret (4th Voyage) on 5 February 1843, arrived 164 days later, on 19th July, at Hobart, Van Deimen's Land. She was accompanied by her 11 year old daughter Hannah Pitfield. Mary remarried 20 September 1849 in Tasmania, to John Constable, freeman. On the 25th October 1849 Mary was given her freedom.

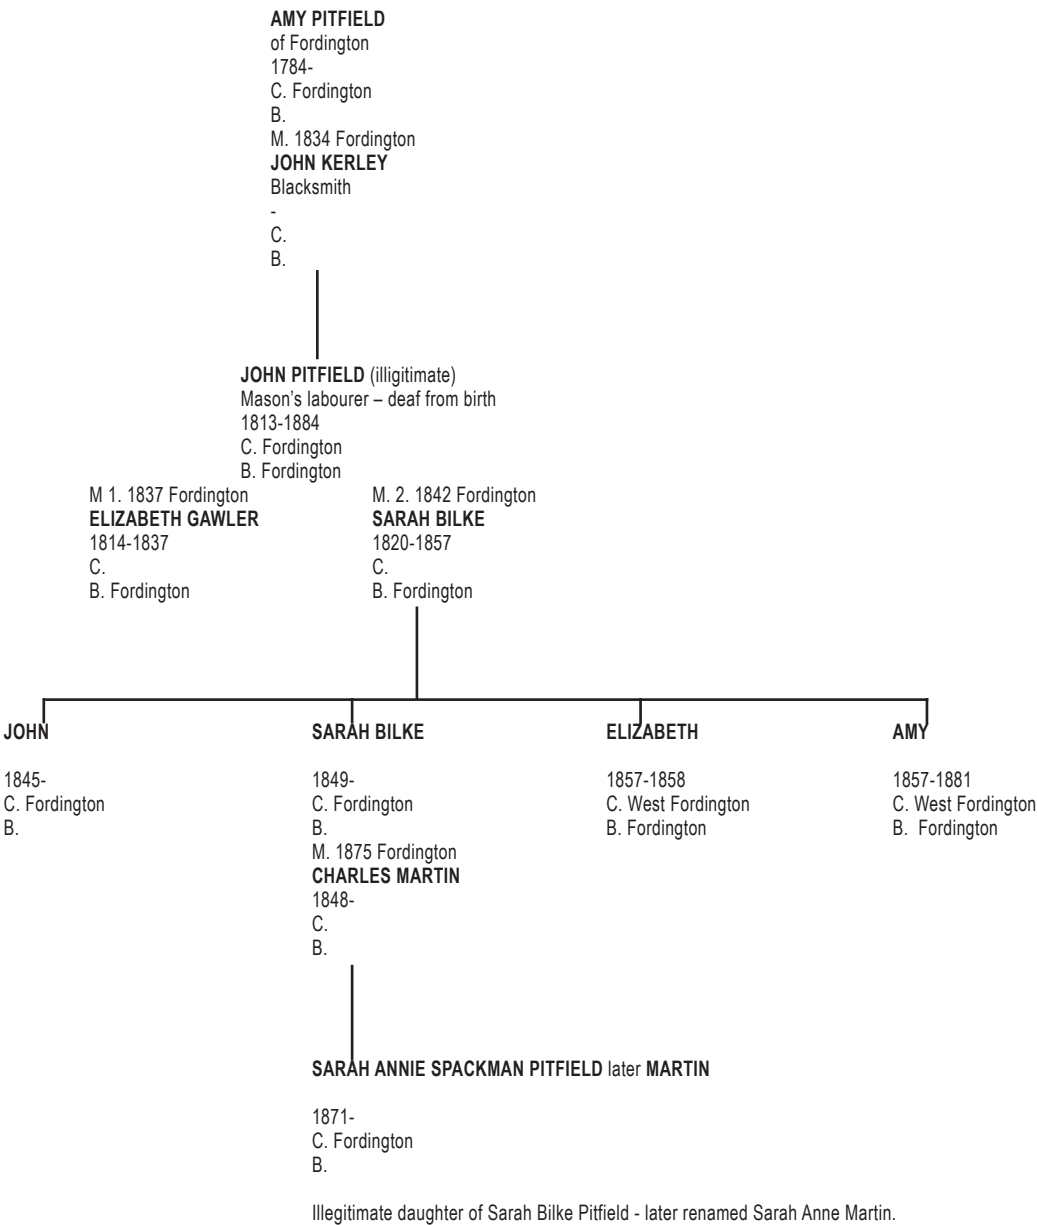

² Samuel John Pitfield was a farm labourer and lived in Mill Street, Fordington with his wife Mary Ann. The couple had eight children. Samuel died in 1870. His widow Mary Ann then worked as a housekeeper in Mill Street, Fordington to the invalid mason George Wellspring and his brother Philip. She was still living with George in Mill Street in 1891 and moved with him to live at 15 Shorts Lane Fordington by 1901. She died there aged 83 in 1903.

- 1 The first reference to a James Pitfield living in Southampton is the birth of George Pitfield in 1842 the son of James Pitfield, waggoner and Mary Pitfield formerly Joyner. James and Mary do not appear on the 1841 census and their marriage does not appear in Civil Registration records which begin in 1837. It is possible they married pre 1837 but I have not been able to find a marriage record.
- 2 At the time of his second marriage, to Elizabeth Light, James gives his age as 30 and his father as Sebastian Pitfield, labourer. In the 1851 census he gives his age as 52 and in the 1861 census he gives his age as 44 - 1851 age seems incorrect. 1851 - birthplace Dorset, 1861 birthplace Dorchester, Dorset. No christening of a James has been found but a Sebastian, son of Sebastian and Mary Pitfield was christened at Fordington in 1817. I have found no further references to the younger Sebastian and I think it likely that James Pitfield of Southampton was christened as Sebastian Pitfield in 1817 at Fordington.

- 3 THE HAMPSHIRE INDEPENDENT, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1865

Fatal accident in the docks-An inquest was held at the Saddler's Arms, Marsh-lane, yesterday after-noon, before Mr. E. C. Coxwell the borough coroner, on view of the body of James Pitfield - Dr. Palk deposed that about ten o'clock on Saturday night he was called to see the deceased, at No. 12, Threefield-lane. He found him in a state of great exhaustion, but quite sensible. He was evidently suffering from a great shock, and told witness he got between the buffers of two railway wagons, and before he could get out of the way was jammed. He complained of pain in the lower part of the back. Witness examined him carefully, but could not detect the injuries he had received, but imagined death was occasioned by the rupture of some internal organ, probably the bladder. The only external injury appeared to be an abrasion of the skin at the upper part of the hip. Witness prescribed suitable medicine, and upon visiting him about seven o'clock on the following morning he found him quite insensible and dying, and he died while witness was present. The injuries received in the way deceased had described were without doubt the cause of death. Deceased imputed blame to no one.-Charles Freeborn, a carter in the employ of the Dock Company, said that the deceased was a driver in the same employ. On Saturday evening, just after nine o'clock, witness was coupling some railway wagons in the docks, and deceased was bringing them towards him with his horses. When taking away the hook attached to the traces of one of the wagons he could not get it off, and tried to escape, but in so doing was caught by the buffers. Witness was between the same wagons, and so long as he remained so there was no danger, and he could not account for deceased attempting to get out as he did. When the wagons parted deceased fell down, and witness took the hook off and lifted him up. In reply to his Question as to whether he was hurt, he said, "I shall be better directly" Assistance was procured from the dock gates, and he was carried as far as the gate, where he was placed in a fly, and then driven home, one of the dock policemen accompanying him-A verdict of "Accidental death" was immediately returned.

- 4 Robert James' birth was registered at Southampton - as Robert James Light - father's name was given as James Light and the mother's name given as Elizabeth Light previously Smith formerly Blake. The use of the name Smith is a mystery. It would seem that the James Light named was actually James Pitfield as Elizabeth Light had been a widow since 1844. Elizabeth Light and James Pitfield married in 1850 following the death of James' first wife. In the 1851 census Robert James was named Pitfield, the son of James, whilst other children in the household kept the surname Light (children of Elizabeth's previous marriage). Two others - George and James - named Pitfield, were children of James' first marriage. Anne Pitfield aged 6 months is also listed.

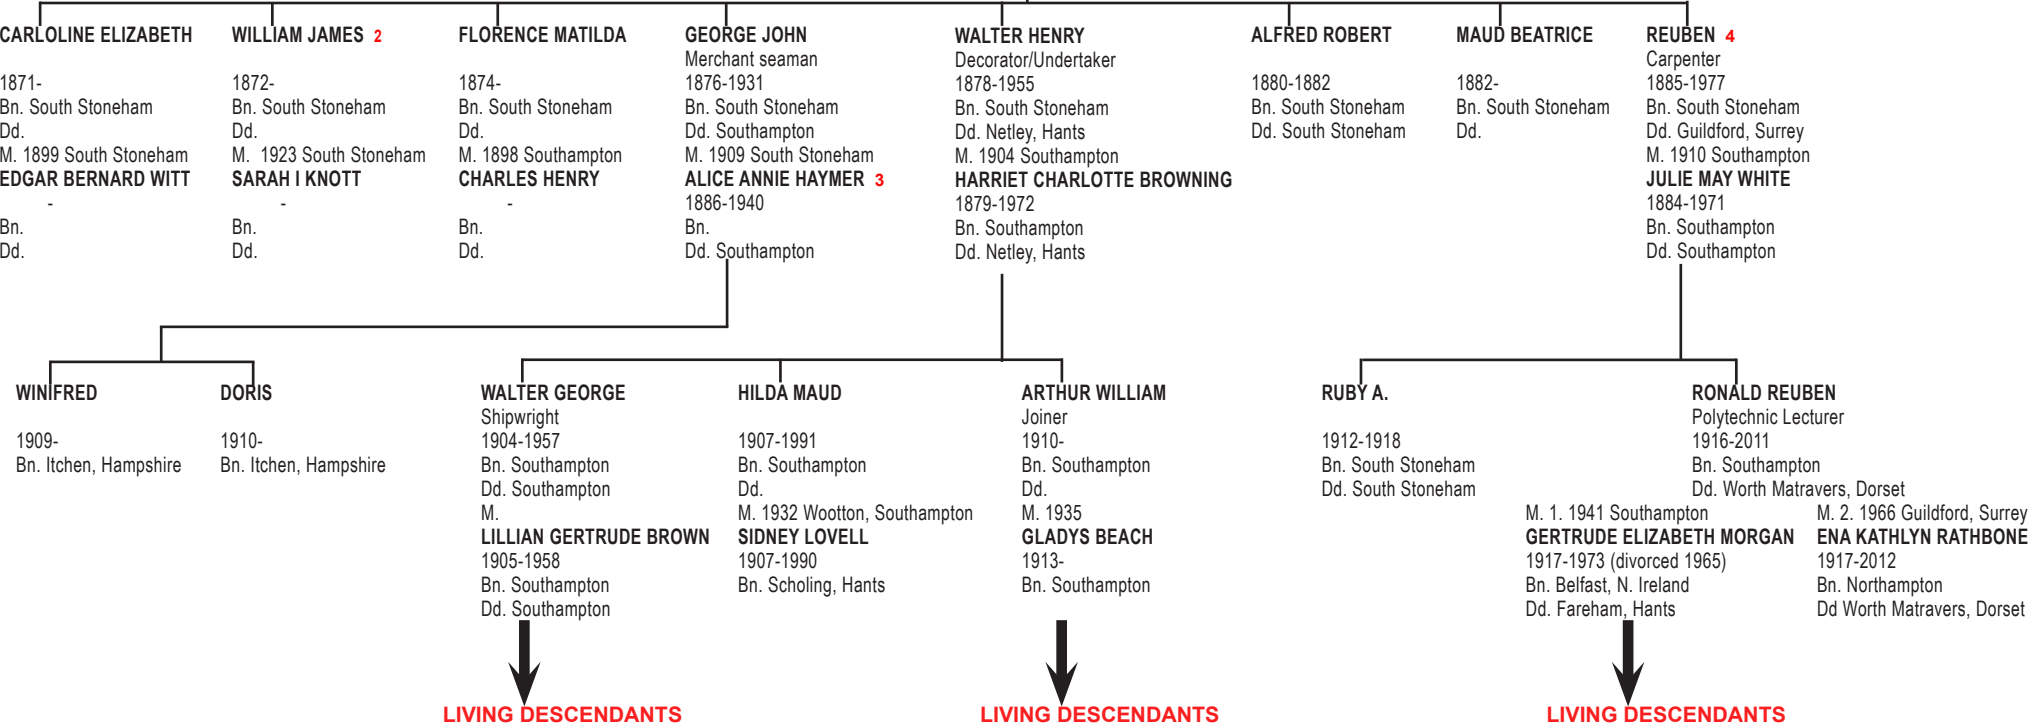

1 George James Sebastain Pitfield received the First World War Mercantile Marine Medals and the British War Medal.

1 Robert James Pitfield was christened as Robert James Light, being the illegitimate son of James (Sebastian) Pitfield and Elizabeth Light. Robert James's surname changed to Pitfield after James (Sebastain) married Elizabeth Light, following the death of his first wife (see table Dorset 10.1.1.4.1). Robert James often went by the name of James Pitfield which has caused some confusion as his half brother was named Jame Pitfield (see tables Dorset 10.1.1.4.1 and Dorset 10.1.1.4.1.1)

4 Reuben Pitfield
Reuben Pitfield (1885-1977), the youngest son of Robert James, lived at Bitterne, Southampton. Reuben was a master carpenter and was employed in the docks fitting out the transatlantic liners that called there. He used to tell the story of how he was trying to finish off a job aboard the "S.S. Titanic" and was one of the last to leave before she set sail on her fated maiden voyage.

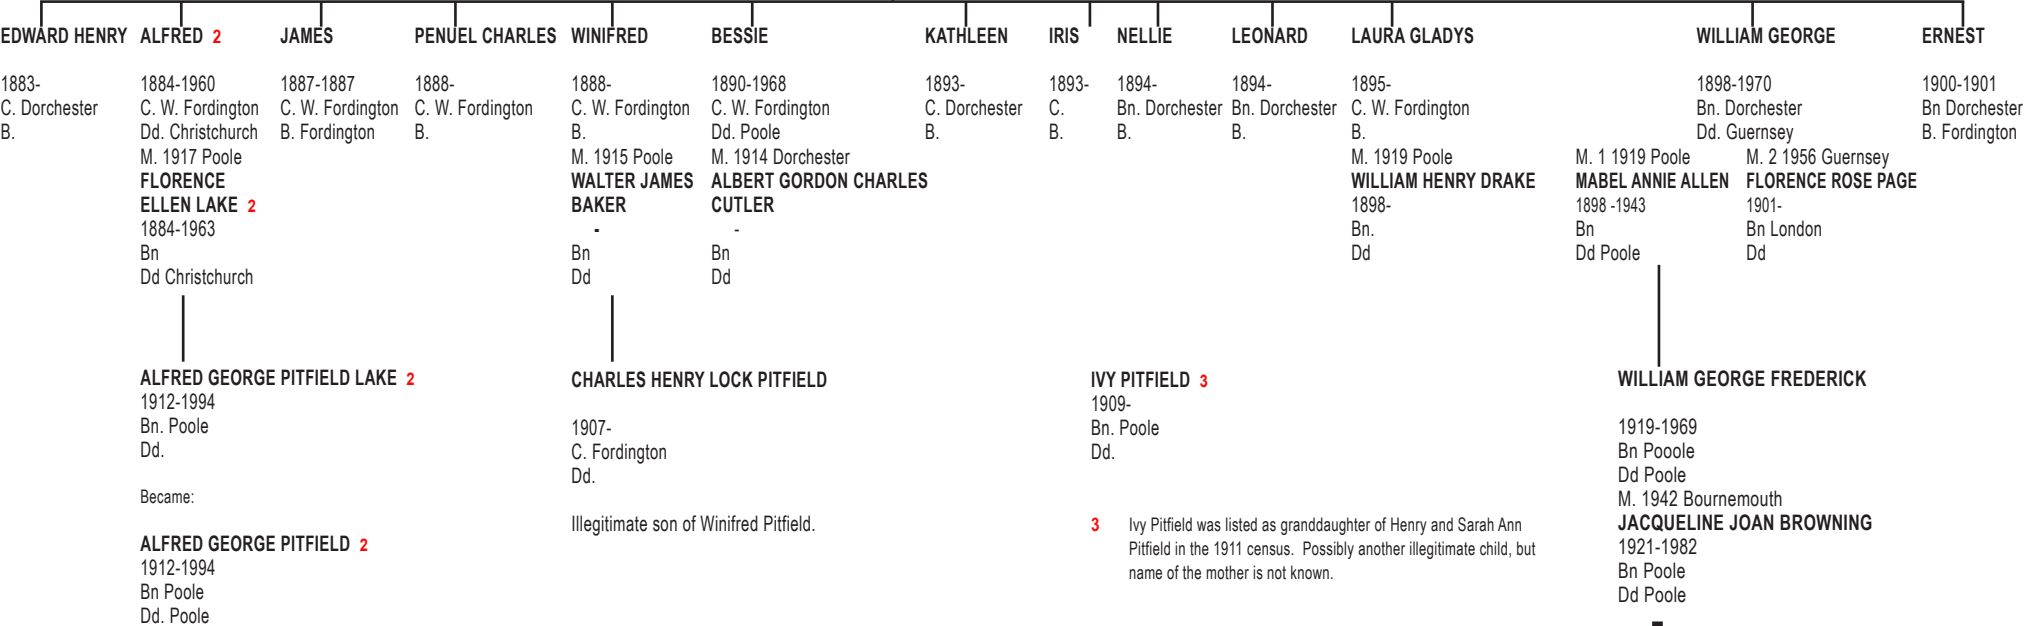

- ¹ William James Pitfield (1886-1912) was a marine fireman who signed aboard the "S.S. Titanic" on the 6th April 1912 as a greaser, on a monthly wage of £6 10shillings. He had previously sailed on the Oceanic, another transatlantic liner. William James was one of 1,600 passengers and crew who perished on the night of 15th April 1912 when the ship struck an iceberg and sunk. His body was never recovered. At the time of William's death his wife Haidee was expecting their first child, who was born later that year. In 1913 there was a payment made from the Titanic Relief Fund to Haidee Pitfield to pay the expenses of the illness and funeral of her daughter.

2 Alfred Pitfield was born in 1884 although he was not christened until 1888. In January 1900 he enlisted in the Artillery Division of the Royal Marines when he gave his date of birth as the 6th September 1882. He served for 373 days although it was noted on his record that for 233 days he was underage.

At the time of the 1901 census Alfred was living back with his parents where his age was given as 16 and he was employed on the railways.

In February 1904 Alfred enlisted in the Royal Engineers at Fordington. He gave his aged as 19 years and 5 months and gave his occupation as Engine Driver. He signed for a Short Service, involving 3 years with the colours and a further 9 years as a reserve. For 2 of his three years service Alfred was stationed in Mauritius. He spent two months in hospital in Mauritius suffering from Gonorrhoea. He was discharged to the reserves in March 1907.

At the time of the 1911 census Alfred Pitfield was an engine driver in the pottery manufacture industry and was a lodger at Poole in Dorset, in the house of William Lake, widower and his 6 children. One of these children was Florence Lake aged 27.

In 1912 Florence had an illegitimate child named as Alfred George Pitfield Lake.

As a reservist Alfred was mobilized at Bulford Camp, Salisbury Plain, at the outbreak of war on 4th August 1914. His service record lists his illegitimate son - Alfred George Pitfield Lake - which implies that he acknowledged him and presumably contributed to his upbringing.

Alfred appears to have been sent to France almost immediately and was wounded on 26th August 1914. He spent a lot of the war in England and had several spells in hospital with various ailments (including venereal disease in 1916). He was charged on several occasions of being absent without leave or not returning at the end of leave.

In 1917 Alfred married Florence Ellen Lake. Alfred George Pitfield Lake became Alfred George Pitfield. Alfred returned to France in October 1917, returning home for 14 days leave on 30th August 1918. His leave was extended to 17th September but he did not return from leave until 8th October. He was arrested and served 28 days and forfeited 21 days pay. He did not return to France.

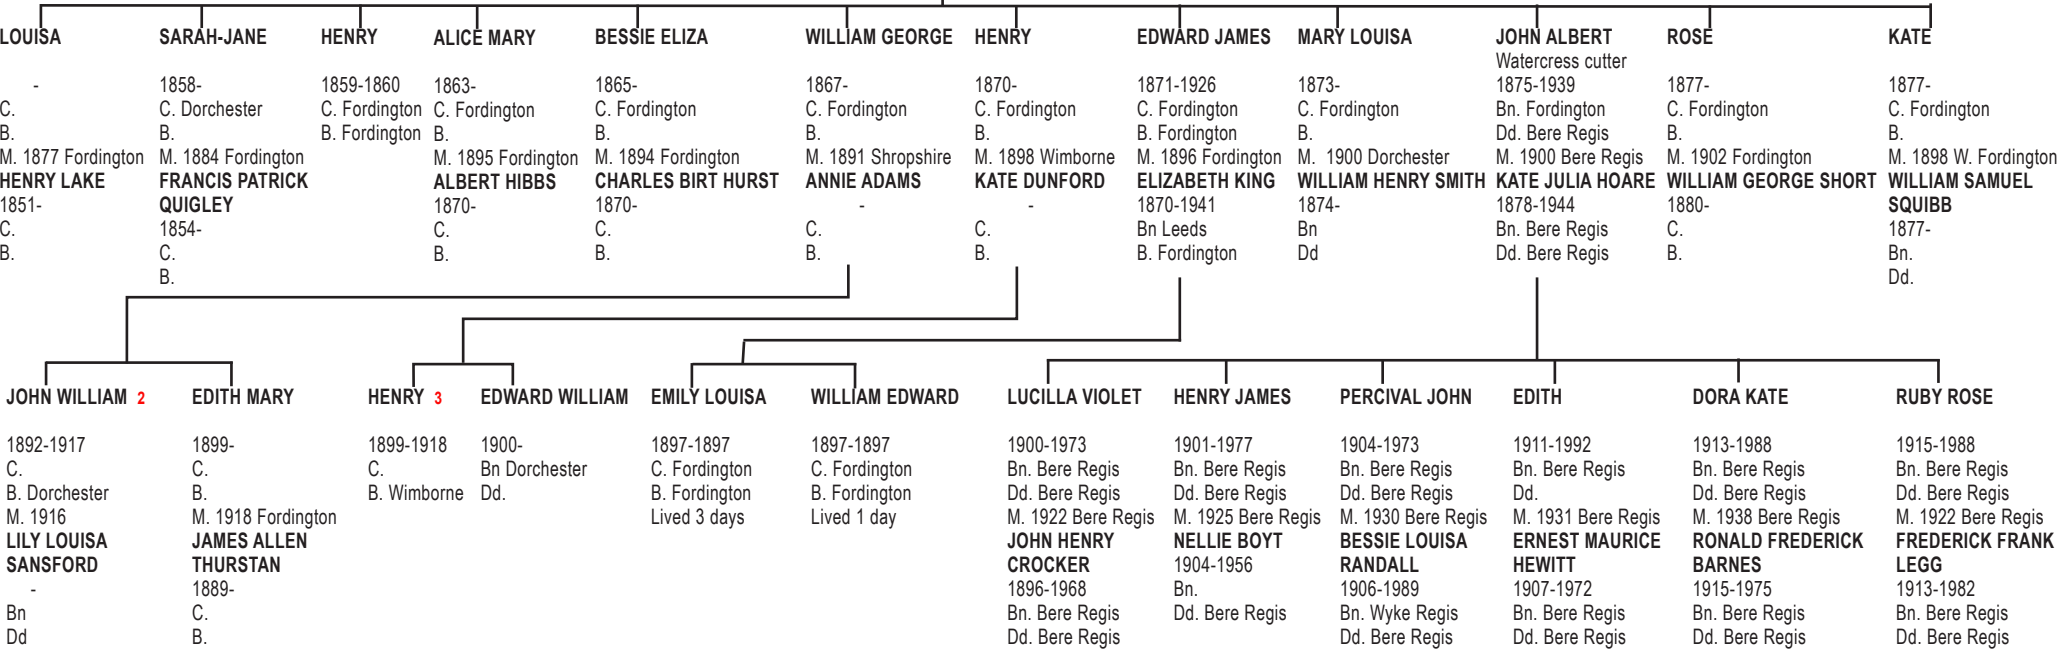

Alfred was discharged back to the reserves in 1919.

2 John William Pitfield (1892-1917) was killed whilst serving as a Fifth Engineer Officer aboard the hospital ship "AUSTURIAS" which was torpedoed by the Germans in the English Channel – March 20th 1917. He was buried in Dorchester Cemetery in a grave maintained by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.

The ASTURIAS was built in 1907 for the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. and went into service on the Southampton - Buenos Aires run. When war with Germany was declared in 1914 she was requisitioned by the Admiralty and converted into a Hospital Ship. Within a few months she was handed over to the Army and was soon employed making regular crossings to France carrying back the wounded from the Western Front. She had accommodation for 896 patients, but on one occasion due to very heavy casualties at the Front, she transported 2,400 sick and wounded. She served in the Eastern Mediterranean during the Dardanelles Campaign, returning wounded from Gallipoli, Egypt and Salonika to the UK. In March 1917 after landing her wounded at Avonmouth, she was attacked by a German submarine and struck by a torpedo which blew off her stern, killing 35 of her crew.

3 Henry Pitfield (1899-1918) was an Air Mechanic 1st Class in the Royal Naval Air Service. He joined on the 4th January 1918 and served at HMS President, which was a shore based training facility. He died on the 1st March 1918 from natural causes.

He is buried at Wimborne, Dorset in a grave maintained by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.

Notes for George 1 - the family of George Pitfield of Canada (1749-1827)

The earliest reference to George Pitfield in North America is in New York City where he is listed as a member of the Freemason Lodge No 210 in 1780.
Where George had been previously to this date is unknown, although it is known he was born around 1749.
His parentage is the subject to two differing theories.

George Pitfield's origins - theory one

The first theory concerning the origins of George Pitfield is that he originally had the name PETTFIELD and was the son of George Pettfield and Isabel Jefferson, who married in Hessle, Yorkshire in 1731.

The theory is based in part in the belief that George Pitfield of New Brunswick had the second name of Jefferson. This is based on a newspaper report in the Sussex Kings County Record in 1894 which refers to George Jefferson Pitfield, the grandfather of William T and Ward C Pitfield. This article was written 67 years after the death of George Pitfield. However there are no references to George having a middle name during his lifetime. George's son William Henry Pitfield (1806-1872) did christen a son as George Jefferson Pitfield in 1843 (see George 1.3)

It is possible that William Henry Pitfield named his son after his father, but as there is no proof the "original" George Pitfield (c1749-1827) used the middle name Jefferson it is equally possible that William Henry chose Jefferson after a local family that he, or his wife, was connected to. William Henry Pitfield (1806-1872) used surnames, that had connections to his wife's family, as middle names for a number of his children - (see George 3.1). Although Jefferson was a fairly common family name in New Brunswick at this time I have been unable to establish a connection between a local Jefferson and Henry William Pitfield or his wife Anna Barbara Cogle, so it is possible the connection could be back to George (c1749-1827).

Another son of George Pitfield (c1749-1827), Oliver Arnold Pitfield (1809-1880), christened a son as George J. Pitfield c1845 (see George 1.4). It is not known what the initial J stood for but if it was Jefferson it would add great weight to this first theory.

This first theory is boosted by the fact that Gorge Pitfield (1749-1827) christened a daughter Isabel, possibly after his mother.

No christenings of any children of George Pettfield and Isabel Jefferson have been traced.

George Pitfield's origins - theory two

Family tradition in North America has it that George Pitfield (c1749-1827) was the brother of Benjamin Pitfield (1741-1793) of New Jersey and therefore the son of John Pitfield and Hannah Hallett of Colyton, Devon - see Dorset 2.1.1.1

George Pitfield's age at the time of his death in 1827 was given as 78, giving a date of birth of circa 1749. Hannah Pitfield had been a widow since 1746 so it seems unlikely that she was the mother of George, although she could have been if George's date at death was incorrect and he was born a few years earlier.

In 1885 George William Brown, of Philadelphia, America, wrote a book entitled "Historical Genealogy relating to a Branch of the Brown Family". In the volume Brown states that his wife's grandfather, Benjamin Pitfield (1741-1793) came to America from England, but that nothing was known of Benjamin's origins in England. My research has now established Benjamin's origins. Brown says in his book that Benjamin came to America at the invitation of an uncle who was in possession of a tract of land lying upon Timber Creek, in the state of New Jersey. I think this part of Brown's narrative has been distorted and that in fact it was George Pitfield who was invited to America by his uncle Benjamin Pitfield - who was indeed settled at Timber Creek, New Jersey. If George Pitfield (c1749-1827) was the nephew of Benjamin then he must have been the son of John Pitfield of Child Okeford (1727-1771). A birth of George Pitfield around 1749 would fit with the marriage of John Pitfield to Mary Crago in 1747. There would have been only eight years difference in the ages of the uncle and nephew.

The above three paragraphs are copied from Notes 20-22 from Dorset 2.1.1.1 - see that table for more details.

No christenings of any children of John Pitfield and Mary Crago have been traced.

New York City was the stronghold of the British Forces fighting against the American Colonists in their struggle for independence from the British Crown. A warrant was issued on February 20, 1779, under the authority of the Atholl Grand Lodge of England to form a lodge numbered 210, with no name. According to the American Lodge of Research, this lodge, though mainly composed of civilians, initiated or affiliated a number of men who were under arms on the British side. It seems that George Pitfiel was a civilian and had made his way to New York along with many others who were loyal to the British Crown.

During and at the end of the American War of Independence, 1776-1783, some 40,000 Loyalists moved north into Canada. Of these, 32,000 went to Nova Scotia, most of them in the fleets of ships organized at New York by General Sir Guy Carleton, commander-in-chief of the British forces. New York was the last stronghold of the Loyalists and was evacuated by the British in November 1783, two months after independence had been granted to the thirteen American colonies.

George Pitfield arrived at Saint John, Nova Scotia in May 1783, aboard one of the ships that made up "The Spring Fleet" from New York. The bulk of the Loyalists went to the St. John River valley and the shores of the Bay of Fundy. Aided by government rations, tools and land grants, they carved homes out of the forests and began the long, tough job of pioneer settlement. George is listed as arriving at the Bay of Fundy, along with one servant and received food rations.

This Loyalist influx trebled the existing population of Nova Scotia and thus they heavily outnumbered the 'Neutral Yankees' who had moved north prior to the Revolution. In the Fundy-St. John region the Loyalists at once demanded their own government, complete with elective assembly. The British government fell in quickly with the request and broke up the old province of Nova Scotia in 1784, creating a new Province of New Brunswick which incorporated most of the mainland of the old Nova Scotia and with an elective assembly. Thus New Brunswick became the Loyalist province par excellence.

George settled on land by the St. John's River belonging to Colonel William Spry and in 1786 he was listed as having cleared and improved over ten acres, with 2 dwelling houses, 2 outhouses and owning 2 cattle and a horse. Two others holding land under Colonel Spry had also been members of 210 Lodge in New York.

In 1786, George Pitfield stated in a petition that he had come with The Spring Fleet from New York and had settled on a lot of land belonging to Colonel Spry. This lot was on the Saint John River, below Jemseg Creek, Queens County. In the Petition George asked that he be permitted to hold this lot of land as he had seven or eight acres under improvement.

A new Freemason Lodge - Sion Lodge, No 21, was established at Kingston, New Brunswick, in 1792 and was removed to Sussex Vale, Kings County, New Brunswick in 1799. George Pitfield is listed as one of the founding members of the Lodge in 1792 and became Master in 1802.

It would appear that George did not keep up his original lot of land in Queens County and in 1794 he was living at Sussex Vale, Kings County where he made a petition for 200 acres of land. This petition was made in conjunction with nine others - several of these were members of the New Jersey Volunteer Regiment, giving circumstantial evidence that George could have come from New Jersey.

After settling at Sussex Vale George married Eliza Kenny (1768-1827). Eliza was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, the daughter of Samuel Kenny, a loyalist who fought with the British troops. Samuel Kenny died soon after arriving in Canada. George and Eliza had eleven children and the family prospered in Sussex Parish.

In 1796 George was a Warden of Trinity Church, Sussex Vale and later became a Justice of the Peace. In 1809 he stood in the General Election for the House of Assembly, for one of the two seats in Kings County. He was declared elected but the return was declared void and a new election held in 1810, when George was defeated. He stood again in 1819 but was once again defeated.

Eliza Pitfield died in April 1827 aged 59 and George died in June of the same year aged 78 - both were buried at Sussex Vale.

Thomas Pitfold of Barbados, West Indies

- ¹ Thomas Pitfold left a will made in Barbados 1659 and proved in 1660, in which he is referred to as Captain Thomas Pitfold, Gent - names wife Margaret and son Sebastian (younger than 18 years).
- ² Sebastian Pitfold/Pitfield left a will made and proved in Barbados in 1681 in which he is referred to as Sebastian Pitfield - names his wife Sarah and his mother Mrs Elliott (possible his mother remarried or could be referring to his mother-in-law). Refers to "plantation which was my father's Capt. Thomas Pitfield.

Must be closely connected to the Dorset family where the name Sebastian was common. The name changed from Pitfold to Pitfield at the same time as a similar change occurred in Dorset.

It would seem that Thomas Pitfold was an early settler in Brabados which was occupied by the British from 1627. No references to the family name have been found in any parish records in Barbados. By 1660 sugar plantations had become established and were worked using black slave labour.

- 1 John Pitfield (-1780) was described as a tin miner in the parish records of Sancreed, in the far west of Cornwall. His origins are unknown but it is possible he was the John Pitfield, christened in 1737 in Westminster, London, son of Daniel Pitfield and Jane Owen as shown on Dorset 2.1.1.
- 2 John Pitfield (1762-) the eldest son of John Pitfield and Anne Rosevear was a sailor and settled at Port Glasgow, Scotland where he married a Christian Mackenzie, although no record of the marriage has been found.

The Lancashire Pitfield families

As well as the Pitfields who can be traced back to the county of Dorset I became aware, during my researches, that there were a number of family groups who appear in the UK census returns in 1841, 1851, 1861, 1871, 1881, 1891, 1901 and 1911 who either lived in the County of Lancashire or whose origins were in Lancashire.

I decided to look further into these Lancashire families. I quickly discovered that the names Patfield, Peatfield, Patefield, Paitfield were commonplace throughout the north of England and in particular in the County of Lancashire. References to various spellings of the name appear in the earliest parish records in the mid 16th century. Some of these spellings have survived and the names Patefield, Patfield and Peatfield are in use today.

Within parish and other records in Lancashire the spelling used by some family members changed to Pitfield from around 1760. It is notable that this spelling was only adopted by some family lines and it was commonplace to have Peatfield, Patefield and Pitfield spellings appearing alongside each other in the records, with in some cases different names being used by siblings. By the time of the first census taken in 1841 the Pitfield spelling had become firmly established in several family groups.

The tables that follow show the vast majority of people who appear in the census returns from 1841 and 1911 within the County of Lancashire, or have Lancashire connections, and who used the Pitfield spelling. Some of the lines go back further than 1841 and further forward than 1911 where I have been able to find information. All the Lancashire Pitfields who appear in the eight census returns, can be traced back to one of four family groupings, which I have shown in the charts as Lancashire 1, 2, 3 and 4. Each group is headed by someone who was originally a Peatfield, Patefield or Patfield. I have not undertaken research into all of the many family groups who used these other name variants. Research into the Peatfields, Patfields and Patefields has been done by others.

Some of the Lancashire Pitfield families that are shown within these tables settled in America and Australia, and I have shown their history within these countries where I have the information (some of which has been supplied by Australian and American Pitfield descendants).

James Patefield/Pitfield

Also included in this booklet are tables and notes showing James Patefield from Bradford, Yorkshire whose name changed to Pitfield when he was arrested and subsequently transported to Australia.

The parish register at Tunstall, Lancashire:

Charles Pitfield of this parish Dancing Master and Ann Robinson of this parish were married in this church by Licence with consent of Parents this 26th February 1767 by me John Wilson Curate.

The Allegation and Bond relating to this marriage survives.

The Allegation states that Charles Pitfield was aged 21 years and upward and Ann Robinson was aged 16 years and Elizabeth Robinson her mother gives her consent to the marriage. The Allegation is signed Charles PITFIELD.

The Bond refers to Charles Pitfield and Ann Robinson of Cantsfield within the Parish of Tunstall and Archdeaconry of Richmond spinster. The bond is signed Charles PATFIELD.

Tunstall is in the north of the Count of Lancashire and there are no Paitfield/Patfield/Peatfield/Pitfield entries in the parish records before this marriage.

It seems likely that Charles came from the parish of Whalley, in the centre of Lancashire and some way from Tunstall, as he and Ann baptised their first child there:

Baptisms: 18 Feb 1768 St Mary and All Saints, Whalley, Lancashire, England
Britania Peatfield - Daughter of Charles Peatfield of Whalley, Dancing Master

If he was from Whalley then he could have been baptised in 1742:

Baptism: 12 Dec 1742 St Mary and All Saints, Whalley, Lancashire, England
Charles Patefield - Son of James Patefield of Whalley, shoemaker.

There are a very large number of Paitfield/Patefield entries in the Whalley registers going back to their start around 1566 and the name appears in the registers through to modern times. There are no PITFIELD entries at Whalley.

Baptism entries for the children of Charles and Ann use the PATEFIELD spelling has been used. However, all of the children who survived to adulthood adopted the spelling PITFIELD in their lifetimes - all the marriages of the children from 1793 through to 1819 use the PITFIELD spelling.
The burial entry for Ann (nee Robinson) in 1817 also uses the PITFIELD spelling.

In 1827 Hugh Pitfield and Bryan Pitfield appeared in court charged with larceny - namely stealing horse gear.

Bryan Pitfield was found guilty and sentenced to 7 years transportation. He died 6th June 1827 aboard the Prison Hulk Justitia, moored at Woolwich in Kent, whilst awaiting transportation.

Hugh Pitfield does not appear in the 1841 census. He used the name William in the 1851 census and the name Henry in the 1861 census, but uses his correct name for both of his marriages and the correct name is used to register his death.

Lancashire 1.1.1

William and Alice Pitfield appear in the 1851 census in the township of Royton, parish of of Oldham, Lancashire, England with eight children.

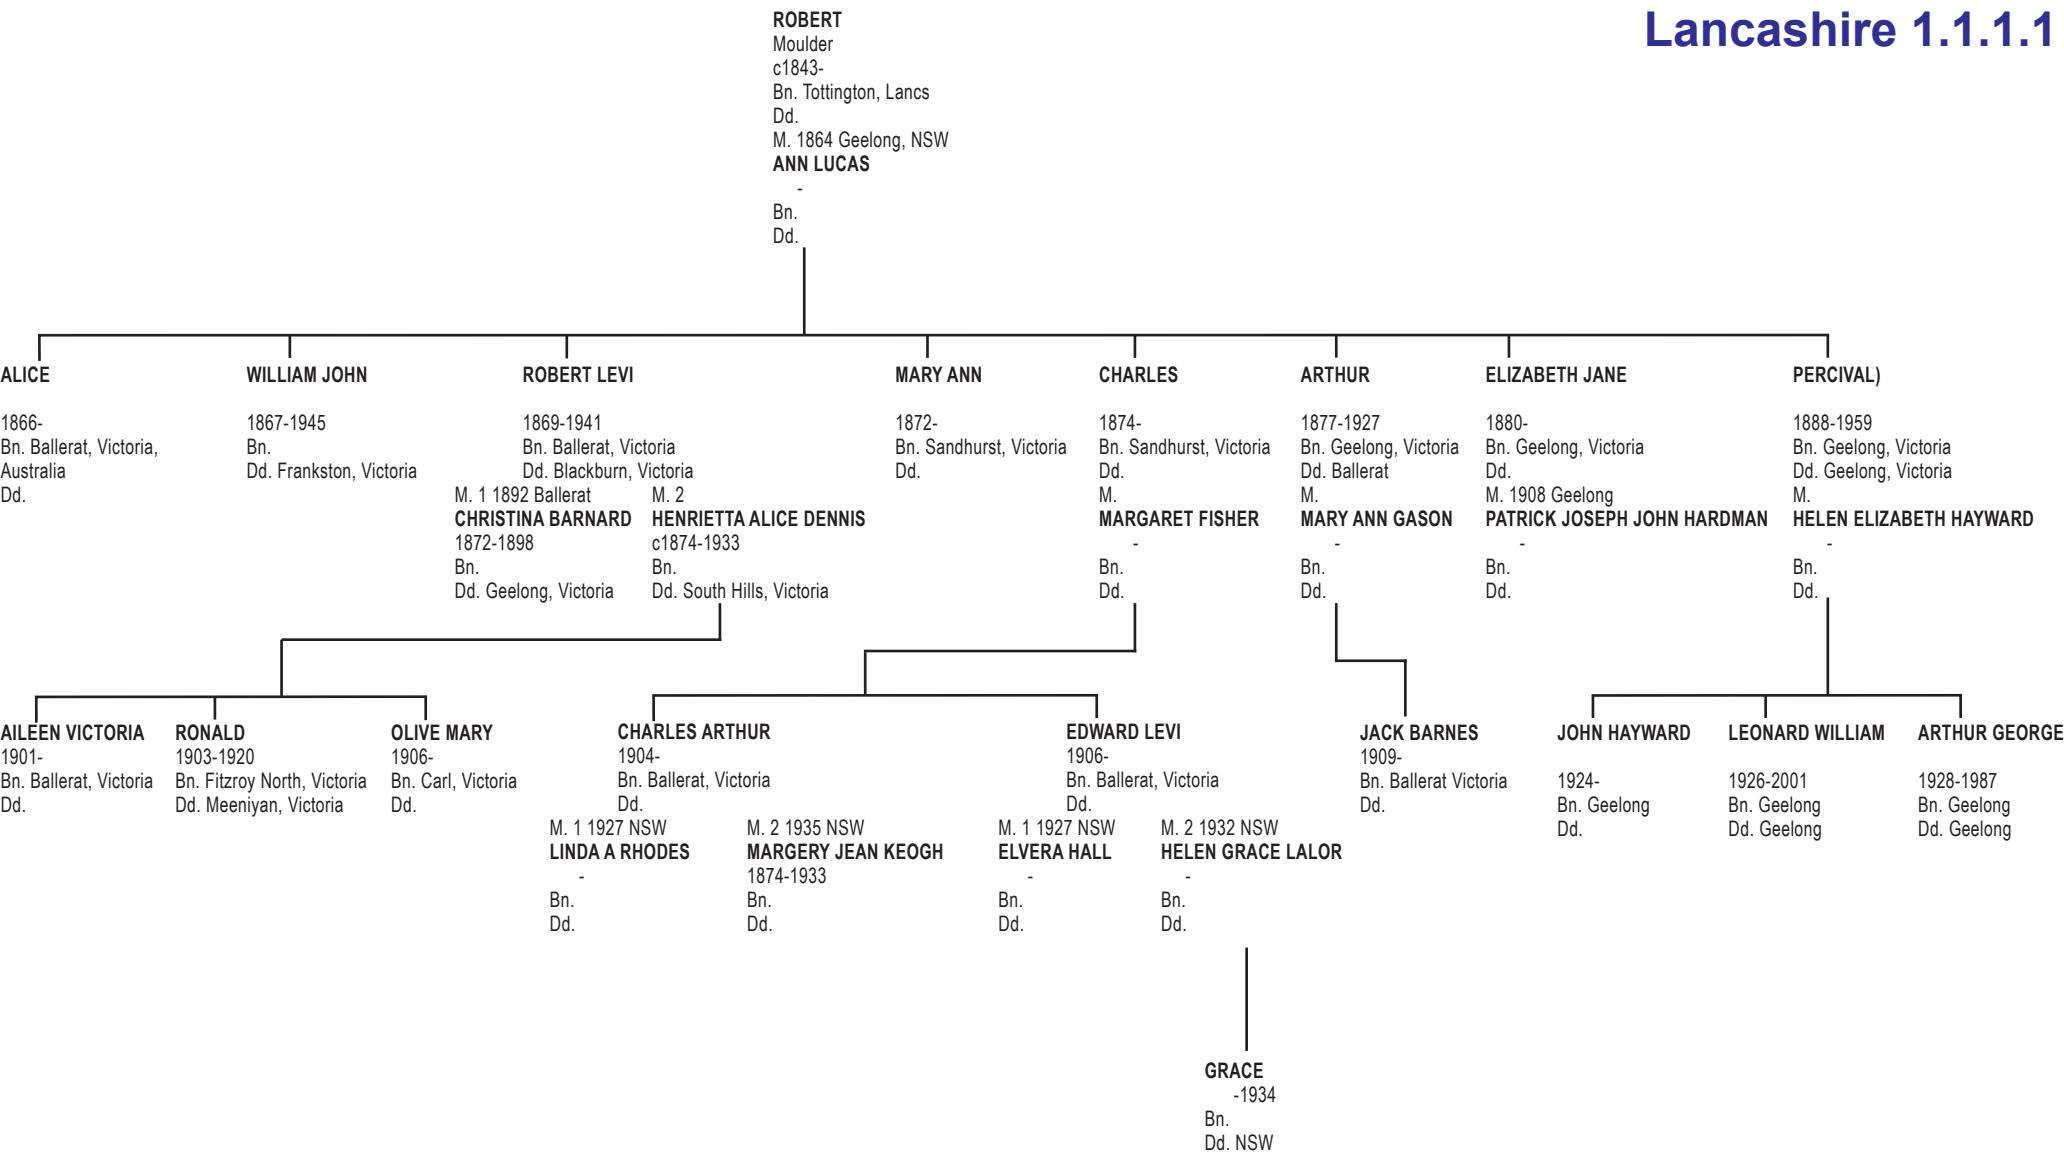

William Pitfield junior had arrived in Melbourne in January 1857 aboard the vessel Tiptree
William Pitfield senior had arrived in Melbourne in August 1858 aboard the vessel Salem.

It would appear that James Pitfield (1837-) returned to England as he married at Bury, Lancashire in 1863.

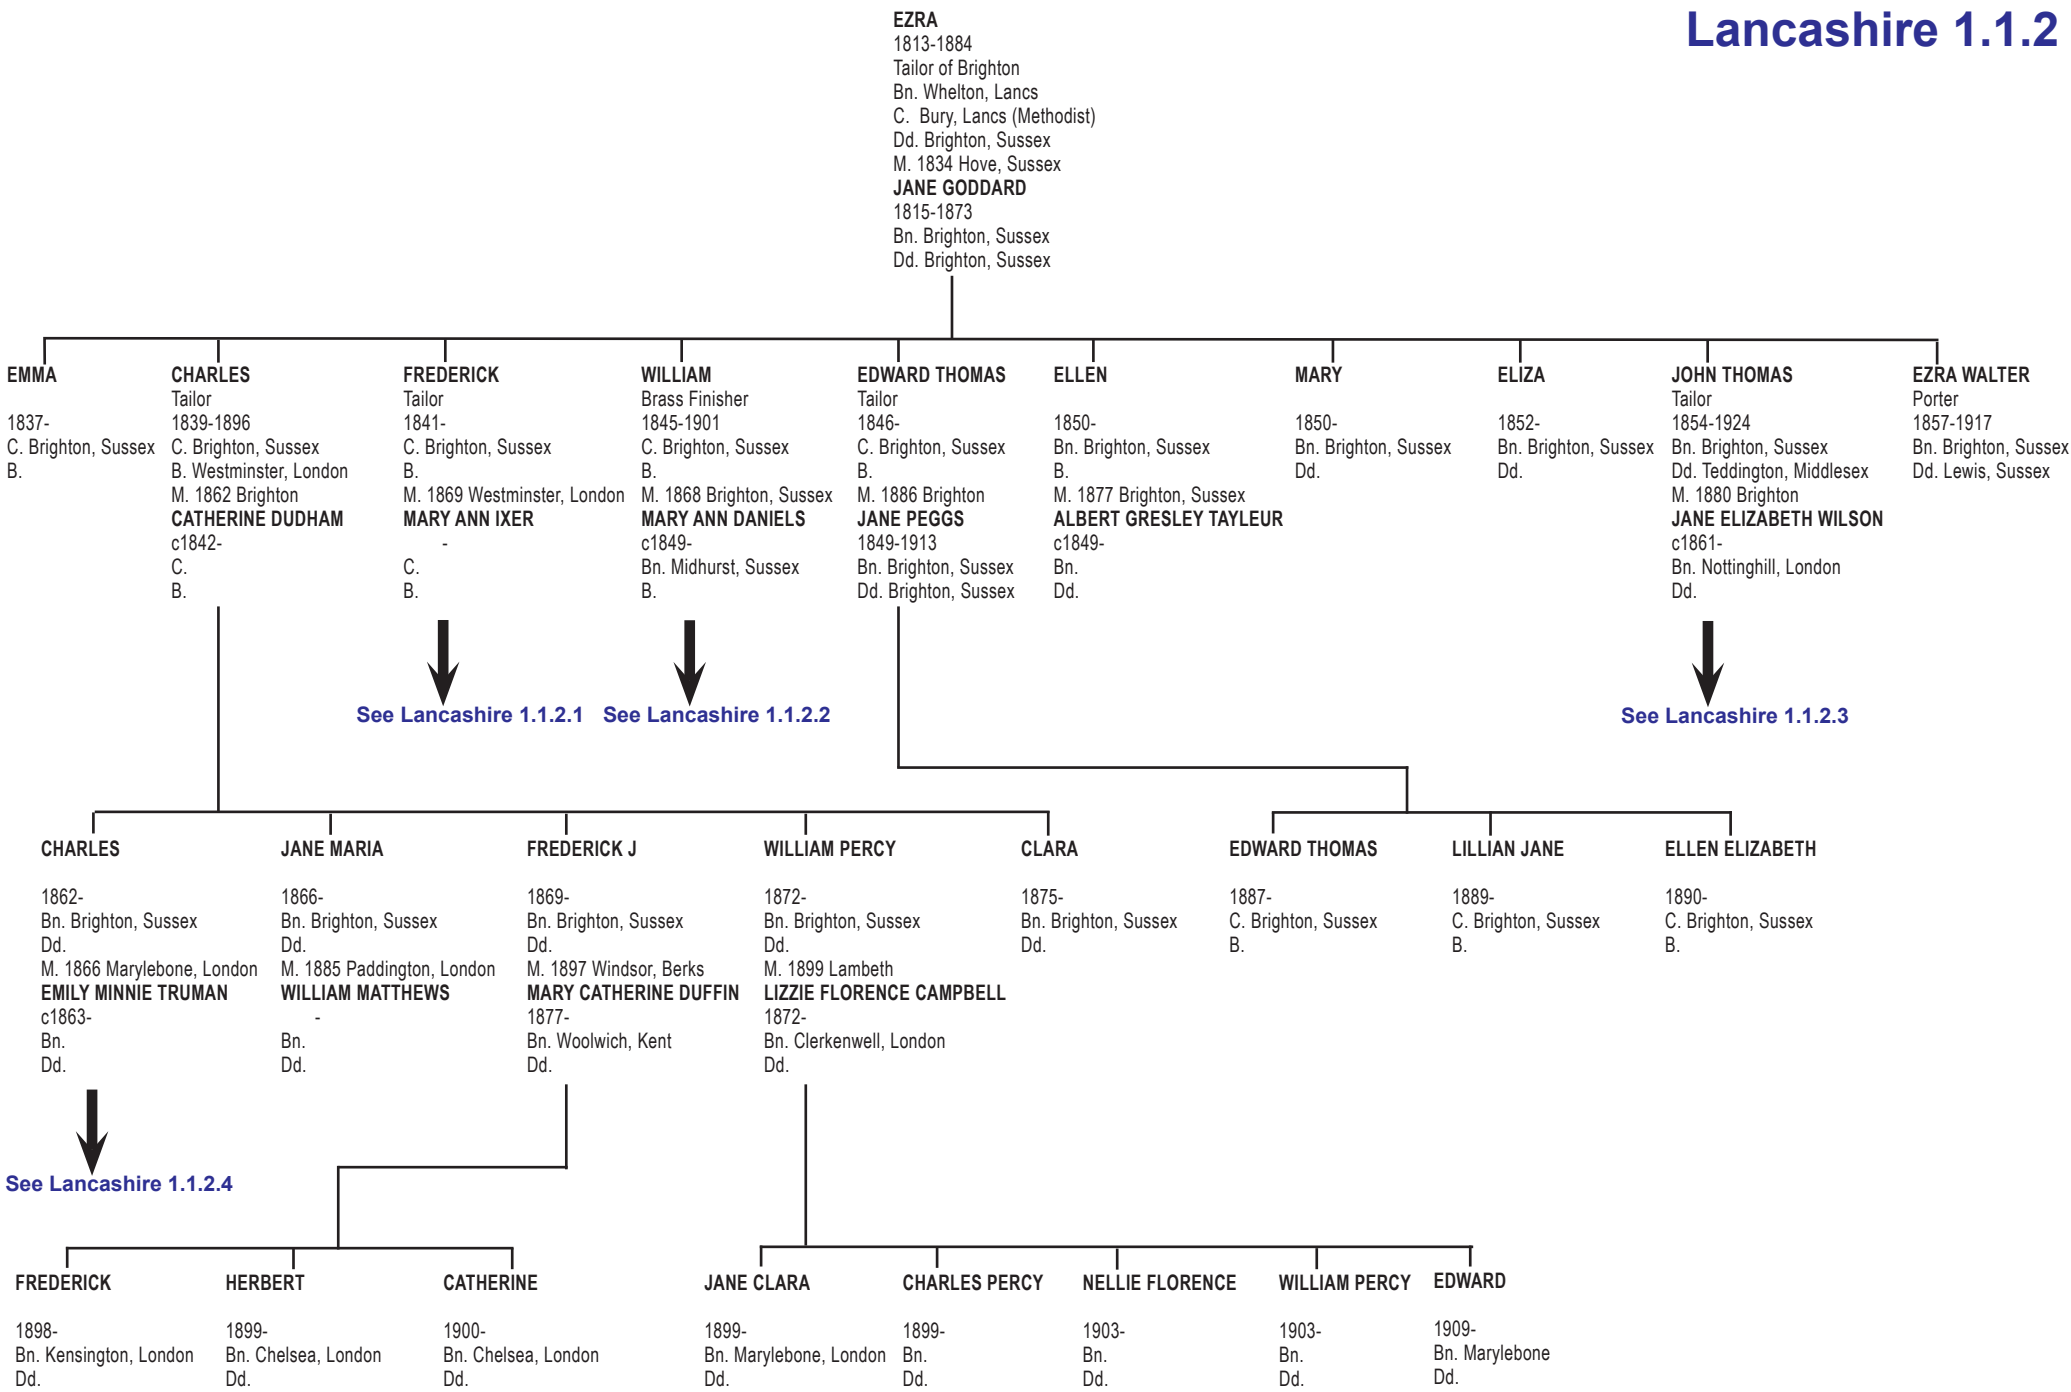

Alfred Pitfield (1839-1904) did not go to Australia until 1879, arriving in Melbourne aboard the vessel Garonne.

Alice arrived in New South Wales, Australia, in 1860 aboard the vessel Tudor, aged 56 and was described as a Housekeeper, with her children Charles aged 30, Alice aged 26, James aged 22, Robert aged 17. The family were listed as "wife and family of residents"

New South Wales Deposit Journal 1859 lists a James Woolstenholme as paying a deposit for:
Alice Pitfield aged 50,
Charles Pitfield, engineer, aged 29,
Alice Pitfield aged 25,
James Pitfield, Iron Moulder aged 21,
Robert Pitfield, Iron Moulder aged 17

The family are listed as of Ramsbotton, Bury, Lancashire, England

James Pitfield/Patefield/Peatfield/Pitsfield c.1796-1851

James Pitfield was born in Bradford, Yorkshire around 1796.
(Source Newgate Prison records PCOM 2/191 - see below)

He was originally know as Patefield or Peatfield.

It is possible that he was the James Patefield christened 25th December 1795 at Birstall, Yorkshire, the son of Joseph Patefield of Gomersal (a small village to the south of Bradford).

James Peatfield/Patefield is listed in the musters of the 3rd Foot Guards from the end of 1812 and in 1815 James Peatfield is listed in a Company commanded by Captain Masters. The company were all listed as being “On Foreign Service” and 5 men were killed on 18 June 1815, indicating they were present at the Battle of Waterloo. (WO 12/1817)

In the musters of the 3rd Foot Guards for 1817 a James Patefield was listed in the company commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Aitchison. For the period 25 December 1816-24 June 1817 he was marked “On Duty”. For the period 25 June 1817-24 December 1817 James Patefield was only listed up to 21st July. No reason for his discharge was given. (WO 12/1819)

The spelling of James' surname changes from PATEFIELD or PEATFIELD to PITFIELD when he comes to the attention of the legal system.

In May 1817 a James Pitfield, was arrested in London for Burglary.

He was detained at Bridewell Prison and transferred to Newgate Prison on 26th June 1817.

Newgate Prison records (PCOM 2/191) state that James Pitsfield was aged 21, born at Bradford, Yorkshire and was a soldier in the 3rd Glos. (The Duke of Gloucester was the Colonel in Chief of the 3rd Foot Guards.)

On 4th July 1817 James Pitfield was tried at the Old Bailey before Mr Justice Parker.

JAMES PITFIELD and CHARLES JACKSON , were indicted for feloniously breaking and entering the dwelling-house of John Keily , about three in the afternoon of the 21st of May (he and others in the said dwelling-house then being). and stealing therein, one watch, value 30s.; one chain, value 6d.; one seal, value 10s., and one watch-key, value 4s., the property of George Doubikin ; six tea-spoons, value 30s.; one pair of sugar-tongs, value 10s.; one desert-spoon, value 6s.; one broach, value 6s.; one seal stone, value 5s.; two rings, value. 10s.; one snuff-box, value 3s., and one 10l. bank note , the goods and property of William Mott . (The Proceedings of the Old Bailey)

Jackson was found not-guilty and James Pitfield was found guilty and sentenced to death.

On 22 July 1817 Viscount Sidmouth, who was the head of the Home Office, wrote to the Duke of Gloucester thanking him for a letter he had received from him in which Gloucester had inserted a letter from Lieutenant Colonel Aitchison. Sidmouth assured the Duke of Gloucester that the substance of both letters would be laid before the Prince Regent in Council when the case of James Pitfield was next brought under consideration.

On 13th August 1817 the sentence of James Pitfield was commuted to be transported for life. (PCOM 2/191)

On 8th September 1817 James Pitfield was discharged from Newgate Prison and transferred to the Prison Hulk Retribution at Sheerness. (PCOM 2/191)

On 5th November 1817 James Pitfield was discharged from the Retribution for the Lady Castlereagh. (HO9/7)

James Pitfield was listed aboard the Lady Castlereagh November 1817 for transportation to Australia. (HO 11/2)

James Pitfield is listed in N.S.W. convict indents as arriving in New South Wales aboard the Lady Castlereagh on 1st June 1818. The Lady Castlereagh left after a few days and James Pitfield landed at Hobart, Van Demeins Land, later in June 1818.

James Pitfield appears in most of the Convict Musters taken from 1818 until 1836. He was given the Police Number 36. He was employed on “Public Works” and in 1820 he was sentenced to 150 lashes and labour in the Gaol Gang for six months for stealing wheat from a mill.

James Pitfield, convict aged 22 per ship “Lady Castlereagh” married 7th August 1820 at Hobart, Tasmania to Maria Pollard, convict per ship “Janus” aged 19 years.

James and Maria had a son John Pitfield, christened at Hobart, 1820.

Maria died at Hobart 1828

James Pitfield was listed in: Nominal Return of Individuals to whom Free or Conditional Pardons have been issued during the year 1836

James Pitfield died 24th December 1851 at Hobart aged 58 years. Occupation given as stonemason. Cause of death given as asthma.
